Remarkable Hospitality

When we reduce our weekend Mass schedule from six Masses to four between the two parishes, which will happen on the weekend of February 6th, we also want to take a long hard look at the overall Sunday experience (when I say Sunday, I also mean the Saturday vigil). We want to begin planning what it will take to create an even better experience at our Masses through hospitality, music, and the message. Today I would like to say a few things about hospitality.

I believe hospitality is the lowest-hanging fruit. There are simple and practical ways for churches to be more hospitable beyond just having greeters at the doors. That said, hospitality takes work, and it takes a team of people who aren't just volunteering but who believe that their service is a powerful way to reach people for Christ, which is our mission.

Hospitality begins with the idea that we want to make the best possible experience for guests. Believe it or not, it is not just the same people coming to Mass every weekend. We have guests. We have people reading this bulletin who have made St. Joan of Arc and St. Thomas More their home parish for decades. We also have people reading this bulletin who are first-time visitors or who have been attending Mass occasionally for years but still feel like outsiders. Those of us who feel like this is "home" have a responsibility to ensure that those who feel like outsiders feel welcome, to "make them feel at home." If we want to grow, we have to ensure that those who are occasional visitors become not only regular attendees but proud members of our mission to reach more people for Christ.

TJ Simpson, our Director of Evangelization, will be leading this initiative. It will happen in stages, and he will eventually ask church members to engage in the mission of reaching people for Christ by joining a hospitality team.

We will say more about hospitality in the coming months and probably years, but I'll leave you with this excerpt from a book called Secrets of a Secret Shopper.

> Imagine you're hosting a small group in your home. Imagine you're hosting a birthday party. Imagine you're having friends over for dinner. Can you picture one of these scenarios? When you have company over, what do you do? You clean house! You prepare. You want to welcome your company with open arms and make sure they feel right at home…

Similarly, every week thousands of guests visit our local churches. We need to clean house, prepare, and be ready to host them. We all need to have the mindset and expectation that company is coming. How we prepare for and welcome "company" or guests to our churches says a lot about how seriously we take the Great Commission.

In Christ,
Fr. Jeff Lorig

Sensory Friendly Mass
December 19, 2021 at 2:30 pm

In an effort to welcome the members of our community with Autism and other intellectual and developmental disabilities, St. Columbkille hosts monthly Sensory-Friendly Liturgies. These Masses include lower lights, softer music, scripture from the Children's Lectionary, and shorter homilies in an environment free of stigma. We encourage families and individuals to get up and move if needed, to bring fidgets or noise cancelling headphones, and to participate in the liturgy just as they are. Questions? Call Amy Hornocker 515-491-5160.
