Sixteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time (07-18-2021)

In the first and the Gospel readings, we see the effects of poor shepherding. Jeremiah pronounces woe on the false shepherds. The Lord holds past leaders accountable for the scattering of God's people. Jeremiah prophesies the return from exile and restoration of a noble king. He foretells that the Lord, the noble king himself gather the remnant of his flock and bring them back to their meadow, where they will be safe and will increase and multiply.

In the Gospel, Jesus and the apostles seek to get away from the crowds and rest, but they cannot. Jesus' heart is moved with pity for them, for they were like sheep without a shepherd. Sometimes the image of a good shepherd may not be familiar to us. We may not have the true understanding of the role, value and importance of these people. But all of us can understand the need for this. At least we may understand who is a true leader. A true leader will tend to the needs of those in their care. A true leader must be always with his people. In the case of the people in his care they must be cared for and protected – as well as fed, led, and given a shelter.

We are called, by virtue of our baptism, to protect and care for one another. That is, to be nourished in body and spirit, to be directed along the safe path, and to be given rest in order to remain healthy and well. We all have a responsibility to shepherd each other. We are obliged by our baptismal vocation to holiness to not lead others astray.

The Lord is our shepherd and we find verdant pastures and restful waters in him. Today, Jesus calls us for some refreshment, the Eucharist. He calls us to come away by ourselves to this holy place and rest a while in his peace.

Father Joseph Sebasty
