Christian Service was called upon for an emergency situation. A mother was left with her two children and no money for groceries. She just started working a full time job and along with her high school son, who is now working a part time job to help to pay their rent. Our parish was able to assist her with much needed personal care items, groceries from forgotten harvest and the Romeo Family Restaurant made them a full dinner for them to enjoy. What a great feeling to be able to come together and help a family in need. Blessings are abundant when we come together!

THE GREATEST BAILOUT By Deacon Kurt Godfryd

In Mark's Gospel (14:22-26), we read about the Institution of the Lord's Supper. There, in the Upper Room, Jesus took bread, blessed and broke it, gave it to his disciples, and said: "Take, this is my body." Shortly thereafter, Jesus took a cup, gave thanks, and gave it them. He said: "This is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many."

Did you know that each time we celebrate the Eucharist and receive Jesus' body and blood in Holy Communion, we renew that covenant?

This past week, I found myself thinking about the Mass and especially, it's many parts. From the Introductory Rites to the Eucharistic Prayer to the Dismissal, each has a special place within our liturgical worship of the Lord. By our attendance at Mass, we have been exposed to these many parts. Over time, these parts become so familiar to us that it is though they become part of us. Nonetheless, there is one phrase repeated more than any other.

At the distribution of Holy Communion, the bishop, priest, deacon, or extraordinary minister, says the following words over and over: The Body of Christ or The Blood of Christ. In the silence of our worship space, if we listen closely, these four words form a litany. If we allow them, they possess the capacity to penetrate our entire being.

We might ask ourselves, why is it that these words are repeated over and over? The obvious answer is that for each communicant, the one distributing Holy Communion is required to say these words. Or, is it that we need a continual reminder that we are not the source of life's answers? Still yet, perhaps the answer rests in the reality that these words are not just words; rather, these words signify the presence of some One. At the liturgy, that One is Jesus Christ. He is present. The eternal Word is in our midst.

In the Eucharist, Jesus is fully present: body, blood, soul, and divinity. And His deepest desire is to give Himself to each of us in order that we might be more fully joined to His body. Once joined, we are forever changed and called to go forth so that we might be the body of Christ for others.

As such, when we receive the Body and Blood of Christ, we should always say: "Amen! Yes, Lord, do with me as you will. My journey begins and ends with you!"

I once read an article that contained the testimony of a man who reflected on how certain Catholic practices had made an impression upon him while he was still a Protestant, especially the Catholic custom of bowing one's head in honor of the Real Presence when passing a Catholic church. While many of us no longer subscribe to that tradition, perhaps in our increasingly secularized society, a return to such a practice might be worth considering.

During this season of Lent, I am reminded of an interesting mathematical calculation published some years ago by The Word Among Us. Entitled "The Greatest Bailout Known to Man," it noted:

"Recently, world population passed the 7 billion mark. If we imagine that, on average, each person commits 10 sins a day, a total of 70 billion sins are committed each day. Now, multiply that by 365, and you get over 25 trillion sins every year. If you multiply 25 trillion by the current average life expectancy of 68, you come up with over 1.7 quadrillion. This figure does not include those 6 billion people who lived on the earth before us. Of course, there is no way of truly estimating how many sins are committed each day, but just looking at calculations like these gives us a sense of the immense number of sins committed against the Lord and other people."

My sins. Your sins. Our sins. All washed away in the blood of Jesus.

Walk Every Step with Christ

Holy Week is a week for being mindful. We must set loose the baggage of Lent, and not be deterred by the dazzling sunrise of Easter morning beckoning in the distance.

It's okay for us to be excited for Easter. We've waited so long, after all. In my opinion it's one of the best feelings there is: the yearning we have in our hearts for the Resurrection as we embark on Palm Sunday. And in a purely logical sense, many of us have Easter celebrations for which we are preparing, and practical considerations to contend with. It's going to be a busy week, one likely full of happy distractions.

But my friends, we simply must keep our feet on the ground. Let's not "skip" Holy Week. Resist the urge to flip to the last page of the book, to fast-forward to the final scene of the movie. Don't rob yourself of the journey. This week is a blessed opportunity. It is this week that teaches us who we are. In the span of the Triduum, we have the birthday of the priesthood, the institution of the Eucharist, the sacrifice on Calvary and so many other vivid and meaningful scenes.

It may sound strange, to advise someone to savor the moments of Holy Week. There are so many violent and heartrending moments, after all. But this is the valley of tears, remember — we are not in Heaven yet. And here, in our fallen, sin-filled world, it is the heartrending moments that seem to matter the most.

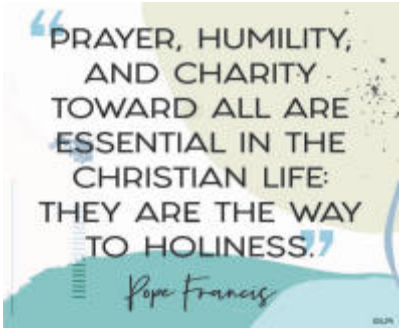
These are the moments that define us as Catholics. Live them. Cherish them. Be present for each one. — Tracy Earl Welliver, MTS

St Clement of Rome
Romeo, Michigan

Many struggle with Jesus. Some who consider themselves faithful hail him in their churches but still struggle to figure out what to do with him on our streets. The message is somehow more palatable when it echoes pious renderings and sentiments and involves singing hosannas during worship. It becomes a bit trickier when it gets to the part about changing the way we conduct the business of our lives, becoming more sensitive to the disadvantaged, poor, and marginalized, and living as servants of our Loving Creator. Ultimately, it is a struggle between wanting to be God ourselves and letting God be God as God is. That's why it's so easy to become hypocritical. We, like those who hailed Christ as he arrived in Jerusalem and sent Christ to the cross to die, also talk out of both sides of our mouths. We entertain what suits us at the time and walk away from the rest.

Many neglect God's beautiful creation because they prefer what humans have made instead. Progress isn't seen in preserving and enhancing what God has made but replacing it with something we believe is better and more useful. The earth, flowers, and animals are all expendable if they stand in the way of the "more" we want to achieve. We seek to remove as many obstacles and hurdles as possible in search of the easiest, quickest, and most efficient path we can find. We have created drugs and laws that preserve our free choice, even though it may mean setting aside God's vision and example. Why suffer when we can easily be put to rest? Why endure insult or injury when we can retaliate, eliminate or subdue? Why accept life when it is acceptable to choose otherwise? We want to be God and resist accepting the fact that our real Creator has already given us the blueprints for the life we need to live in the Beatitudes and in the example of his Passion. We don't like being stewards and managers and really want the power to do as we wish and desire. We want to create our own way.

Where has the true, effective Christian voice been through all of the wars and violence, prejudice and unjust conquests, abuse of human beings and attempted extinctions of nationalities, the establishments of procedures and protocols that serve only a few and not the many and all of the injustices and exploitations that are a part of our human history? A few courageous prophets have stood up and out throughout all of the comings and goings of our human journey with many receiving the same fate as the Crucified One we hail this week. Some still walk among us as shining stars showing us how it really can be. How would Jesus' journey have ended if he lived life as we do? Unless we encounter the good with the bad, the just with the unjust, the grace with the sin, the glory with the cross, the death with the life we most certainly risk rendering God obsolete. After all, haven't we already convinced ourselves that we can do better?



A Family Perspective...

The Passion of Jesus makes it clear, no one escapes suffering. Suffering is inevitable but no one should suffer alone. That is one of the primary roles of families, to stand with and support each other in suffering. ~ Bud Ozar
