LIVE THE LITURGY

Inspiration for the week

We have often heard it said that God is always calling but we are not always listening. It is not only that we are not listening, but that we are not familiar enough with God to even recognize that it is God who is calling! We can easily mistake God's voice for someone or something else and miss some profound opportunities for connection. We have to train our minds, hearts, and souls to specifically listen for the voice of God. It is a voice that draws us to deeper places, leading us to moments of grace and more profound God awareness. To look at Jesus and be able to say, "Behold, the Lamb of God," means that I know something special about this person whom others know as simply a man. I will become more attentive and receptive when he says, "Come, and you will see." I may even be more willing to set aside what I am doing and actually go.

CHRIST IS ANYTHING BUT ORDINARY

We're about to dive headlong into week two of Ordinary Time, and we need to admit, after the hustle and bustle of the holidays, things are indeed looking more ... ordinary, at least in our spiritual lives.

The transcendent highs of the Christmas season are flatlining a bit and the vivid imagery of the Nativity scene has faded. The solemn anticipation of the Advent season is by now a distant memory.

Are you bored yet?

Here's a secret: I think that Ordinary Time can actually be quite extraordinary, if we're really living out our baptismal call.

In today's Gospel, Jesus point-blank asks Andrew, who is following him after hearing

John the Baptist's testimony: "What are you looking for?" He's asking us the same question.

What are you looking for? Why are you following me? Is it for the Christmas cookies and the Advent carols? Is it for the King's Cake on the Epiphany? Is it for the feeling we get on Christmas when we just know God has done a wondrous thing?

None of those things are bad, but they are not what Andrew was looking for, and they were not what Christ promised him when he said, "Come, and you will see." Andrew was looking for the Messiah — the One who makes even Ordinary Time extraordinary. The One who can sanctify the longest and dullest of to-do lists, on the longest and dullest of days. The One whose peace can reign in our homes on January 25, not just December 25.

—Tracy Earl Welliver, MTS

WHAT ARE YOU LOOKING FOR?

What are you looking for, is the question today's Gospel puts before us. It is a vocation question that means, "What do you and God want to do with the life you have been given." The answer to that question speaks of our relationship with God and how that relationship shapes all that we do--- our life decisions, our choice of careers, and the use of our talents as we become aware of the needs of our times. Ultimately, our decisions contribute to the shaping presence of God within us allowing us to change the face of the world. When we know what we are looking for, our world view changes dramatically.

The young man came to the city's shopping mall not to purchase but to ponder. Looking down the street he saw clearly, maybe for the first time, the parade of people that past his way. He later wrote about this encounter: "In Louisville, at the corner of Fourth and Walnut, in the center of the shopping district, I was suddenly overwhelmed with the realization that I loved all these people, that they were mine and I theirs, that we could not be alien to one another even though we were total strangers. ...I suddenly saw the secret beauty of their hearts, where neither sin, desire nor self-knowledge can reach, the core of their reality, the person that each one is in God's eyes. If only they could all see themselves as they really are. If only we could see each other that way all of the time."

[Conjectures of a Guilty Bystander, by Thomas Merton.]

God's call is an attraction that often leaves us wordless.

If only we could all see as Thomas Merton saw that day in Louisville! In today's Gospel, Jesus invites two of John the Baptist's disciples to "Come and you will see." I wonder what it was that Jesus said to them that made such an impression. That day spent with Jesus profoundly changed their lives, as they were willing to answer his call with eager and hopeful faith---a faith that called them to discipleship.

That day Andrew found what he was looking for. How about us? What are we looking for? That question has profound importance for us. God's call is an attraction---an attraction that often leaves us wordless. Blessed John Henry Newman, the 19th century's most important English speaking Catholic theologian, viewed his vocational call in these words: "God has created me to do some definite service. He has committed some work to me, which he has not committed to another. I have my mission...I am a link in a chain, a bond, a connection between persons. I shall do God's work! I shall be an angel of peace, a preacher of truth. ...Therefore I will trust God. God does nothing in vain. God knows what God is about."

Do we hear God's voice speaking in our lives? Thomas Merton saw and heard, as did John Henry Newman and many others. Spiritual writer Alice Camille suggests that if we don't hear God's call, "maybe we need to put ourselves in a more advantageous position. Do we make time for stillness in our lives, rest, retreat, reflection, and meditation? Do we sit before the mystery of our own lives---our relationships, our work, our story, and allow God to speak to us by name through what is most meaningful and personal to us? If we don't come and see, we can't say we haven't been called."

Today, we are asked the same question: What are you looking for? How we answer that question will change us as profoundly as it has changed so many others. Jesus is calling us to himself and bids us, "Come and you will see," and in that process he creates a bond of love that transforms us. As we begin a new year, do you know what are you looking for?

Day of Prayer for the Legal Protection of Unborn Children January 22, 2021

Good and gracious God,
you blew into our nostrils the breath of life.
You are the One to whom we owe our very existence.
Give us the courage to take that unpopular position of protecting those who have no voice,
the unborn child in the womb
to the person taking his or her last breath.
The life you have given us is a gift beyond measure.
Embolden us to speak the truth about protecting the child, the elderly, and the one without a voice in the public square.

With thankful hearts,
we ask all this of the One God,
Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.
Amen.

Give Thanks to the LORD for He is Good; His Mercy Endures Forever
1 Chronicles 16:34

Most of us are trying to put together the jigsaw puzzle we call life without a very important piece. Over time this can become incredibly frustrating. In this extraordinary book, Matthew Kelly powerfully demonstrates that we cannot live the life we have imagined, or experience the joy we yearn for, unless we learn to tend the soul. From there, with his classic style of practical wisdom, he teaches us how to remedy the problem.

Are you taking care of your soul? Are you feeding it and nurturing it? Or are you ignoring it and neglecting it? The reality is most people have never really been taught how to tend their souls.

I Heard God Laugh will help you to do just that, and so much more.

Copies of this book will be available during Lent.

Our families say it best...See what ASCS families are saying about All Saints Catholic School. "As we began looking for places for our son to attend school, we were a bit unsure but kept an open mind and heart. Our uncertainty disappeared the minute we stepped foot into All Saints Catholic School! From the amazing administrative staff to the wonderful teachers we met that day, we both knew immediately this is where we wanted our son's education to start. The entire feel of our visit was so warm and welcoming. We are now half way through the school year, and we say every day that we could not be happier with our choice. The dedication the teachers and staff make to each of their students is incredible. I am so appreciative that ASCS has remained committed to in person learning during these unprecedented times. Not many other schools can say the same. Thank you ASCS!" Our Open House is scheduled for Sunday, January 31, 2021 from 11am-2pm. If you are considering enrolling at ASCS for the 2021-22 school year, enrollment for 2021-22 school year for new families begins January 31, 2021!
