From the Pastor

At the 10:30 Mass last Sunday I began my homily with comments about the Super Bowl, which would be played later that day. I made a reference to it as part of our national culture. We also have a local culture, and I mentioned the atmosphere in our gym the previous Friday evening when we played St. Anthony’s. The gym was “electric” for want of a different term. One of the most exciting times I’ve witnessed in the many games I’ve been to. And then, to top it off, Saturday afternoon our Wooden Shoes won their 2,000th victory in a game against Robinson. Our athletic program, for all sports, I presume, goes back to 1924! And Tyler Repking assures us that we are the 6th team in Illinois to have reached this milestone. Prior to the Mass I had thought of asking the members of the congregation to stand if they had ever played on the basketball team over the years, but then I realized that our culture is “basketball geared.” Many people would be in the pews, who played on State championship teams in baseball, and others have poured hours of their time and talent into tennis, soccer, track and so forth. How often do we recognize the women’s side of sports?

On my desk, and for many years I have had with me, no matter what state or country, where I was assigned, I have two wooden shoes having the names on them of the 1986 male and female teams and their records: 33-0 and 31-1. That was my last year here, and it couldn’t possibly have become better when you are the champions!

I draw your attention to the February 2025 issue of America Magazine. It has an interesting article in it with the title: “Why Sunday Matters: Youth sports, Mass and the meaning of rest.” Going back to the fathers of the Second Vatican Council, who raised concerns about sports tempting people away from the practice of religion, Joshua J. Whitfield, the writer of the article quotes: “To put it simply, the pews are empty, but the bleachers are full.” I think there is a homily in here for a future Sunday. Stay tuned in.

God Bless Those Serving Our Country.
 Anthony Vahling, Shawn Zerrusen, Ali Kingery,
 Andrew Simmons, Jesse Koester, Justis Coventry,
 Braydan Bushue, Mallory Stone, Damon Sabo,
 Myles Stortzum, Gavin Tegeler, Avry Kreke.
