FROM POPE FRANCIS

ST PAUL AND THE GOSPEL

Brothers and sisters, good morning!

When it comes to the Gospel and the mission to evangelize, Paul is enthusiastic, he comes out of himself. He seems to see nothing other than this mission that the Lord has entrusted to him. Everything in him is dedicated to this proclamation, and he has no interest other than the Gospel. It is Paul's love, Paul's interest, Paul's profession: to proclaim. He even goes so far as to say:

'Christ did not send me to baptize, but to preach the Gospel' (1 Cor 1:17). Paul interprets his whole existence as a call to evangelize, to make Christ's message known, to make the Gospel known: "Woe to me", he says, "if I do not preach the Gospel" (1 Cor 9:16). And writing to the Christians of Rome, he presents himself simply as follows: "Paul, a servant of Christ Jesus, an apostle by calling, chosen to proclaim the Gospel of God" (Rom 1:1). This is his vocation. In short, he is aware that he has been "set apart" to bring the Gospel to all, and he cannot but devote himself with all his strength to this mission.

One can therefore understand the sadness, the disappointment and even the bitter irony of the Apostle towards the Galatians, who in his eyes are taking the wrong path, which will lead to them to a point of no return: they have taken the wrong path. The pivot around which everything revolves is the Gospel.

Paul does not think of the "four Gospels", as is natural for us, Indeed, while he is sending this Letter, none of the four Gospels had yet been written. For him the Gospel is what he preaches, what is called the kerygma, that is, the proclamation. And what proclamation? That of the death and resurrection of Jesus as the source of salvation. A Gospel that is expressed in four verbs: "Christ died for our sins in accordance with the scriptures, he was buried, that he was raised on the third day in accordance with the scriptures, and he appeared the Cephas, then to the twelve" (1 Cor 15: 3-5). This is Paul's proclamation, the proclamation that gives life to all. This Gospel is the fulfilment of the promises and the salvation offered to all men. Whoever accepts it is reconciled to God, is welcomed as a true son, and receives the inheritance of eternal life.

Paul does not think of the "four Gospels", as is natural for us, Indeed, while he is sending this Letter, none of the four Gospels had yet been written. For him the Gospel is what he preaches, what is called the kerygma, that is, the proclamation. And what proclamation? That of the death and resurrection of Jesus as the source of salvation.

Faced with such a great gift to the Galatians, the Apostle cannot explain why they might think of accepting another "gospel", perhaps more sophisticated, more intellectual, I don't know ... but another "gospel". It should be noted, however, that these Christians have not yet abandoned the Gospel announced by Paul. The Apostle knows that they are still in time not to take a false step, but he warns them strongly, very strongly. His first argument points directly to the fact that the preaching carried out by the new missionaries - those who bring novelty, who preach - cannot be the Gospel. On the contrary, it is a proclamation that distorts the true Gospel because it prevents them from attaining the freedom acquired by arriving at faith - this is the key word, isn't it? - it prevents them from reaching the freedom acquired by coming to faith. The Galatians are still "beginners" and their disorientation is understandable. They do not yet know the complexities of the Mosaic Law and their enthusiasm in embracing faith in Christ leads them to listen to these new preachers, deluding themselves that their message is complementary to Paul's. And it is not.

However, the Apostle, cannot risk compromises on such decisive ground. The Gospel is only one and that is what he proclaimed; there can be no other. Beware! Paul does not say that the true Gospel is his because it was he who announced it, no! He does not say this. This would be presumptuous, it would be boastful. Rather, he affirms that "his" Gospel, the same one that the other Apostles were proclaiming elsewhere, is the only authentic one, because it is that of Jesus Christ. He thus writes: "I would have you know, brethren, that the gospel which was preached by me is not man's gospel, but it came through a revelation of Jesus Christ" (Gal 1:11). We can understand why Paul uses very harsh terms. Twice he uses the expression "anathema", which indicates the need to keep far from the community that which threatens its foundations. And this new "gospel" threatens the foundations of the community. In short, on this point the Apostle leaves no room for negotiation: one cannot negotiate. With the truth of the Gospel, one cannot negotiate. Either you receive the Gospel as it is, as it was announced, or you receive any other thing. But you cannot negotiate with the Gospel. One cannot compromise. Faith in Jesus is not a bargaining chip: it is salvation, it is encounter, it is redemption. It cannot be sold off cheaply.

This situation described at the beginning of the Letter seems paradoxical, because all those involved seem to be animated by good feelings. The Galatians who listen to the new missionaries think that by circumcision they will be even more devoted to the will of God and thus be even more pleasing to Paul. Paul's enemies seem to be inspired by fidelity to the tradition received from the fathers and believe that genuine faith consists in observing the Law. In the face of this supreme fidelity, they even justify their insinuations and suspicions about Paul,

FROM FATHER ERIC CAPITAL CAMPAIGN

Dear Epiphany parishioners and friends,

Since our major parish-focused capital campaign in 2008, our Parish and School have been working diligently behind the scenes to renovate the Elementary School building summer by summer, classroom by classroom, with the help of a local contractor. These summer projects were funded from our parish/school capital improvement budgets.

We are at the final step in this overall renovation process—the Junior High building. After considering possible scenarios for accomplishing this task, the Finance Council and I believe that this effort is better tackled as one major project using a major contractor that will guarantee the shortest possible disruption of students and staff of the Junior High. In addition, we hope this approach will save both time and money by completing the balance of our projects all at once.

- Renovation will permit us to continue to offer our school and CCD families a safe (a paramount concern), clean and exceptional learning environment for education and Catholic formation.
- Completing the renovation of our school facilities is a form of stewardship owed to generations of parishioners and school families who first laid our cornerstones and then built up our facilities over successive generations.
- Part of the project is to attend to parish maintenance and other needs that have surfaced in the twelve years since our Church renovation. This too is a form of stewardship to you and other donors over generations.

It is the view of the Finance Council that the scope of the JH project and the costs associated do not lend themselves easily or economically to a series of summer projects.

In the coming months, we will make a more detailed case and appeal to our parish and school communities for the funds needed to realize this Junior High Renovation Project and associated parish-side projects.

My personal goal is to add the finishing touches to our campus renewal plan such that no other major expenses/campaigns will be needed for decades to come.

Please stay tuned. Best wishes always, Father Eric

Cover Art: The Saviour, Paolo da San Leocadio, 1482, Prado Museum, Madrid, Spain.

A votive image of Christ the Savior crowned with a cross-shaped halo. He wears a green tunic and red robes and has an expression of profound sorrow. All of these are symbols evoking his Passion. The golden inner frame around the bust contrasts with the greater volume and expressionism of Christ's face, and these latter aspects of the work exemplify this painter's move towards more modern forms. This work is attributed to Paolo de San Leocadio and seems to confirm that artist's evolution, which is not well known due to the scarcity of dated and documented works.

We look forward to future Date Nights where we can hang out with you and your kids.
