Murder in the Cathedral

The week after Christmas includes the feasts of St. Stephen, St. John, and the Holy Innocents, on the 26th, 27th, and 28th of December respectively. The 29th of December is the optional memorial of St. Thomas Becket, and the 31st is the optional memorial of a fourth-century pope, St. Sylvester.

St. Thomas Becket is especially worth looking at, as we consider the heritage of Christianity in England, which began when St. Gregory the Great (pope 590-604) sent St. Augustine “of Canterbury” to the kingdom of Kent in England. The story is told that Gregory and Augustine were at a slave market in Rome, and were commenting on the tall, fair-haired slaves from the distant northern island. Augustine said to Gregory that these people were called “Angles.” Gregory replied, “Not Angles, but Angels.” (This exchange was lampooned in a spoof on English history called 1066 and All That. This time it was Augustine who said they were “Angels,” and Gregory replied, “Not Angels, but Anglicans.”) The largest city in Kent is Canterbury, which became the headquarters of Christianity in England. To this day, the head of the Church of England is the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Thomas Becket of London was Archbishop of Canterbury when he was killed by agents of King Henry II in the Canterbury Cathedral on December 29, 1170. Becket had been feuding with Henry over securing the autonomy of the Church and keeping it free from interference from the Crown. At one point, these agents overheard Henry saying, “Who will rid me of this turbulent priest?” and they took this to be an instruction to kill the archbishop.

St. Louis native T.S. Eliot wrote a play, Murder in the Cathedral, which dramatizes the inner struggles of Thomas. Famous lines in the play include “The last temptation is the greatest treason; to do the right deed for the wrong reason” and “Human kind cannot bear very much reality.” It is of interest that a similar conflict occurred in the 16th century, when a king wanted to set up his own church (that “of England”). They bore the same names: Thomas (More) and King Henry (VIII).

Steve's Notes (🎵) on Scripture

Stephen Stack, Pastoral Associate for Liturgy & Music

"Let ev'ry heart prepare him room"

In the Christmas story from the Gospel of Luke, we hear of Mary and Joseph finding "no room in the inn." The Greek word translated into English as "inn" means "a putting-down place" — more specifically, a place of hospitality. They were returning to Joseph's hometown for the census, i.e., going home to family. But when they got there, they found no hospitality: the Holy Family found no welcome among family.

From whom would the Holy Family find welcome and recognition? From some shepherds, themselves considered moral outcasts, who were out under the night sky with their sheep. And when the angel hosts appeared to them, and told them to go to the place of the Messiah's birth, what did they see? They saw a swaddled, powerless infant lying in a manger — not a crib, but a feed trough. And, scripture tells us, once they saw, they understood; they recognized him and received him. And all those to whom they would then proclaim this news of great joy were amazed.

Jesus is the Savior of the outcast, the poor, the lowly and marginalized, precisely in being one of them — that is to say one of us. God became one with us who are, of ourselves, of little account, except that He has loved us so. This Child, in His life, death and resurrection, would be Good Shepherd and Bread of Eternal Life for all who receive him.

In his Incarnation Jesus has made us, all who will receive him, to be family — his Holy Family.

...While the Gospel of John doesn't have a birth narrative, it begins instead with a parody of the Book of Genesis about the birth of the world and the creation of human beings in the image and likeness of God, which we hear at the Christmas Mass During the Day:

"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God....

"And the Word became flesh and made his dwelling among us" (John 1: 1, 14).

So it is fitting that on this Feast of the Holy Family we hear from the Letter of St. Paul to the Colossians:

"Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly, as in all wisdom you teach and admonish one another, singing psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs with gratitude in your hearts to God. And whatever you do, in word or in deed, do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him" (Col 3:16-17).

May the Lord Jesus find welcome in our hearts. May we receive him with gratitude and joy, that he may dwell in us—his holy family— richly.

Feast of the Holy Family

Luke 2: 41-52 Reflection by: Jude Siciliano, OP

Christmas celebrates God's becoming one of us and one with us. Jesus comes as an infant, placed in the care of a struggling but loving family. We celebrate that family today.

The gospel has a familiar ring. We have heard stories of famous people who showed precocious signs of future greatness while they were still young. Jesus, while still only twelve, declares his primary allegiance. He is to be in God's house, God's work will be his life's work.

Jesus belonged to an observant Jewish family and so his parents take their firstborn to the Temple in Jerusalem. They are teaching him his Jewish heritage. It must have seemed like an eternity for Mary and Joseph--- for three days they search for their missing child. What parent has not had a hint of that feeling when turning around in a mall they notice their child has wandered? How much greater the anguish experienced by those parents whose child has run away, or made decisions they were much too young to make, with consequences that may last the rest of their lives?

Parenting has profound joys and more than its share of worry, fright and anguish. Imagine the relief Mary and Joseph felt when, at last, they found Jesus. Mary's tone sounds like what one would expect from a parent who has just gone through. She is correcting Jesus. But his response isn't the humble request for forgiveness we might have expected. Instead, he seems to reproach them for their worry. Jesus, is a young man finding his calling for life. He will be about God's business and his choice of vocation will take him outside the influence of family and village.

Jesus's response doesn't clarify the matter for Mary and Joseph; they did not understand what he said to them. The call he has heard, to be in my Father's house, and to dedicate himself to God's ways, is exactly right for him---- and for us. This is just the beginning. Jesus will always cause continued questions and anguish for his parents, most especially for Mary, when she stands, wonders and grieves at the foot of his cross.

QUOTABLE by CThomas Merton

Into this world, this demented inn, in which there is absolutely no room for him at all, Christ has come uninvited. But because he cannot be at home in it, because he is out of place in it, his place is with those others for whom there is no room. His place is with those who do not belong, who are rejected by power because they are regarded as weak, those who are discredited, who are denied the status of person, who are tortured, bombed and exterminated. With those for whom there is no room Christ is present in the world.

Nativity of the Lord, Christmas Luke 2:1–14

Christmas is finally here! Our Advent time of preparation and anticipation has come to an end, and Christmas Time has begun!

Christmas is such an important feast that we continue to celebrate it through the Baptism of the Lord (on January 9 in 2022). Within the Christmas season, the Church celebrates several feast days of note:

12/26 – The Holy Family of Jesus, Mary, & Joseph;

12/27 – Saint John; 12/28 – The Holy Innocents; 12/29 – Saint Thomas Becket;

12/31 – Saint Sylvester I;

1/1 – Solemnity of Mary, the Holy Mother of God; as well as World Day of Peace;

1/2 – Epiphany of the Lord;

1/3 – Most Holy Name of Jesus;

1/4 – Saint Elizabeth Ann Seton (USA);

1/5 – Saint John Neumann (USA);

1/6 – Saint André Bessette (USA);

1/7 – Saint Raymond of Peñafort;

1/7 – Saint André Bessette (CAN); and

1/9 – Baptism of the Lord.

Take time this season to hear about these saints at mass, or read up on their lives.

Christmas is an exciting time! We celebrate the birth of Jesus, look forward to spending time with family and friends, and give and receive presents. Shepherds and Magi came to honor the Jesus. The Magi brought gifts, but Jesus was the greatest gift of all.

How can Jesus be born into your heart this Christmas?

Spend time in front of the church Nativity scene (crèche) and think about who was present at Jesus’ birth. Imagine yourself in the scene.

Lord, help us to seek and see you as we celebrate Jesus’ coming at Christmas. Amen.

Pax, and Merry Christmas!
