On Our Journey.....to victory

I was recently talking to a young person about a conversation they had with their Spiritual Director. Their Spiritual Director said that when we are in conversation with others, ten minutes is the threshold for turning the conversation toward spiritual matters. They said, in general, any more than ten minutes invested in dialogue with another soul, without speaking of faith, is a waste of time. Time is too precious to continually exchange pleasantries about trivial matters. The victory of Salvation of all souls is too important!

That conversation really got me thinking and paying attention to the subject matter of my subsequent conversations throughout the week. I was extremely surprised about how I interacted with others once I really paid attention. I entertained a number of conversations I knew truly little about. Topics such as sports, hobbies, politics, fitness, the economy, and pop culture were some of the themes. I did a lot of head nodding, smiling, and trying to stay engaged. Don't get me wrong, I really did enjoy the interaction with the person, but something in me had changed.

What conversations are most important to me? What conversations should be most important to me? Am I most concerned about winning the victory of the Kingdom or of winning in the world?

Now you're in on the conversation. I wonder what your reaction will be?

Our Lady of Victory, pray for us!

-Deacon Art
