Issue: Religious Freedom

Religious Liberty Under Attack in the United States
- HHS mandate for contraception, sterilization, and abortion-inducing drugs.
- State immigration laws.
- Altering Church structure and governance.
- Christian students on campus.
- Catholic foster care and adoption services.
- Discrimination against small church congregations.
- Discrimination against Catholic humanitarian services.

Teaching:

What the Church teaches, is in scripture, or is the position of the archdiocese or USCCB:

Religious Liberty Is More Than Freedom of Worship

Religious liberty is not only about our ability to go to Mass on Sunday or pray the Rosary at home. But also, it is about whether we can make our contribution to the common good of all Americans. Can we do the good works our faith calls us to do, without having to compromise that very same faith? Without religious liberty properly understood, all Americans suffer, deprived of the essential contribution in education, health care, feeding the hungry, civil rights, and social services that religious Americans make every day, both here at home and overseas.

What is at stake is whether America will continue to have a free, creative, and robust civil society—or whether the state alone will determine who gets to contribute to the common good, and how they get to do it. Religious believers are part of American civil society, which includes neighbors helping each other, community associations, fraternal service clubs, sports leagues, and youth groups. All these Americans make their contribution to our common life, and they do not need the permission of the government to do so. Restrictions on religious liberty are an attack on civil society and the American genius for voluntary associations. USCCB
