Prayer Chain Requests

Some 40 years ago, while I was in graduate school in Washington, DC, one of my classmates and I decided to head to Rehoboth Beach, DE, for the weekend. It was October, so we were bundled up against the chilly ocean breeze, but the water was still warm enough for us to wade in. Here we were in our 20s, laughing and playing like children.

As we were enjoying the waves, a man appeared walking toward us on the beach. As he approached, and we began to chat, we learned that he was at Rehoboth with his wife to celebrate his 70th birthday. As we continued our conversation he discovered we were graduate theology students. We spoke a bit more, and then he said, "I knew you two were disciples when I first saw you." At that moment he turned and walked back up the beach toward his cottage. I was stunned breathless by his statement. I said to my friend, "What just happened?" I truly felt, and still do, that he had been an apparition of Our Lord Jesus himself.

> Why are you troubled? And why do questions arise in your hearts? Look at my hands and feet, that it is I myself. Touch and see, because a ghost does not have flesh and bones as you can see I have.
> Lk 24:38

Luke's account of the Risen Christ appearing to the two disciples on the road to Emmaus is well-known and beloved. Today's Gospel tells us what happens after those disciples return to Jerusalem and report what they have just seen and heard. Their fellow disciples are frightened and confused by the accounts they'd been hearing of Jesus—whom they'd watched die a horrific death, seemingly a failure to his mission—appearing to Mary Magdalen and other women, now to Cleopas and his companion. Jesus suddenly appears to them in this locked room. Can you imagine what they thought and felt at this moment? Frightened and confused would be an understatement!

I have recently learned the Jesuit form of Imaginative Prayer. The pray-er puts their self into a Scripture passage and imagines, using their senses, what they see, hear, feel, smell, and taste. They be a bystander or a member of the crowd following Jesus, witnessing the signs and miracles he performs. Or they can imagine being one of the characters in the story—a disciple, one of the lepers, even Jesus. They then reflect on the passage from that vantage point. It's quite an enlightening way to pray and get to know the scripture stories, especially Jesus, much more intimately.

On the beach at Rehoboth that day, I identified with Cleopas—or maybe his companion (quite possibly his wife). That man had appeared out of nowhere, walked toward my friend and me with intentionality, declared his recognition of us as disciples, and then quietly slipped away leaving me knowing that, in some profound way, I had met the Risen Lord.

In prayer, I am one of these two disciples, now in the locked Upper Room, trying to explain to my frightened and confused friends what we had just experienced. Suddenly here Jesus is in our midst, flesh wounds and all, gently trying to assuage our fears: "Why are you troubled?" As we stand incredulous and dumbfounded, (probably with our mouths gaping open), he reminds us he predicted his Passion, Death, and Resurrection. He convinces us he is truly the same Jesus we have known and loved and followed for the past three years. And then, once recognized as he had been at the table in Emmaus, he vanishes.

It has now been two weeks since we celebrated Easter Sunday. The lilies are turning brown and fading; we are still enduring a pandemic; and we're feeling the chill of Wisconsin's April. But there's still more Easter season to go. Where can we imaginatively insert ourselves into the story of the post-resurrection lives of the first century disciples? How can we, like the disciples in today's story, after seeing and hearing Our Risen Lord, return to our otherwise mundane lives, changed and renewed "with great joy…continually praising God" (v. 53)?

Easter Blessings,
Marianne

Becoming our Best Selves One Step at a Time

Tenzin Kiyosaki works in a hospice program for the dying. One topic Tenzin hears about a lot from her patients is their regrets. There are three that she hears most often.

One is, "I did not live out my dream." All of us have had dreams for our lives. Maybe it was to climb a mountain, or see a particular part of the world, or begin our own business. But maybe we could never afford it. Maybe we didn't have the courage to try it. Well, maybe we can still live that dream or a different one.

Another is, "I didn't share my love." This doesn't mean we don't love others, but that we seldom, if ever actually tell anyone. I know, for example, that the members of my family loved each other, but we never said the words, "I love you." I learned that phrase from Paula. We all have time for this one.

And the most common regret is, "I didn't forgive." Why we hold on so tight to the words and actions that hurt us is a mystery. But the result is always the same: Resentment, thoughts of revenge — maybe even hate — are always ready to boil over under the right (Or should I say the wrong?) conditions. Everybody loses. It can be hard to swallow our pride to try mending long-broken fences, but it sure as heck is worth it.

Hopefully, none of us will still have those regrets as we are dying.

Roger LeBouton, Lay Minister

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS
IN SERVICE TO ONE. IN SERVICE TO ALL.

Join the Knights of Columbus

A Knights of Columbus Council can work wonders; in fact, with its many programs, it can help change the community, town, city, or neighborhood in which you live. However, a successful Knights of Columbus Council depends on people taking the initial idea, modifying it to suit specific situations and local needs, then implementing the program in the way it works.

Each local council evaluates the needs of their community and implements those programs and activities that are most needed in their area. The Knights of Columbus Faith in Action Programs activities are designed to engage the council members in various activities across a host of categories.

If you need more information before you join, you can contact Jay Schaefer, the Grand Knight for Council 614, or you can go online to, Learnmore.kofc.org for more information and even sign up!
