2021 Books & Reading (Pt. 1)

“Peace is the seal of Christ. It is not just one of His many gifts; it is, in a certain way, His own gift.”

These words are from Luis Martinez (1881-1956) who was a philosopher, theologian, spiritual writer, poet and Archbishop of Mexico City. It is from his slim book When God Is Silent (2000) which I read last year. I read 24 books last year, a bit more than usual. In the middle of the year I had an inclination toward reading more fiction which resulted in 12 novels. The other half of the books were non-fiction works of biography/memoir, spirituality, essays, travel writing, one book on art and one of poetry. Looking back at the list I like the variety but the novel reading of the second half of 2021 has continued into 2022.

The quote from Martinez is beautiful, with valuable simplicity that teaches us our faith in Christ. It also is the truth that was essential to the authors of two of the memoirs I read.

Madeleine L'Engle (1918-2007) is probably most remembered for her book A Wrinkle In Time. She wrote more than 50 books including several memoirs. One them is titled The Rock That Is Higher: Story As Truth. Written following a major car crash, it is a story of her journey back to God in the time of her recovery. It is also, as the title implies, about the importance of story. She wrote: “So what is it about my faith that I enjoy? I enjoy it because I believe it to be true, not necessarily factual, but true. If it's factual I don't need faith for it. I enjoy my faith because I believe God created this wondrous universe out of love and that God had fun in the act of creation - hydrogen clouds and galaxies and solar systems and planets capable of sustaining life, and fish and birds and beasts and us human creatures...I enjoy my faith because it is full of story, marvelous story.”

Faith is a gift and it transcends mere facts as L'Engle understood and one can imagine her smiling as she wrote about the wonder of the Creator and creation.

Faith for our needs of being fragmented- sustaining us, restoring and healing, was expressed by L'Engle and in the same way by Kathleen Norris in her memoir Acedia & Me: A Marriage, Monks, and A Writer's Life (2008). And Norris is also able to say how the story, the faith, the Scripture are so important: “I need the words of Scripture because of the challenges they bring. And because what I find in them I can find nowhere else.”

St. Vincent de Paul Home Visit Story

The mother of three young children contacted St. Vincent de Paul (SVDP) recently to request a bed. The children all had good beds but the mother was sleeping on a mattress with holes and springs sticking out. We spoke with her while the youngest girl, almost 2 years old, sat in her lap. In addition to talking about mattresses, we discussed the WIC and EBT food programs. Hearing all these letters, the toddler decided to join the conversation by singing the Alphabet Song. So precious!

Thank you to all parishioners who responded to the SVDP appeal for furniture donations. Increased donations have definitely helped bolster the supply in our stores. As we prepared to leave their home, we asked if the children knew any other songs, and this time all three joined together to softly sing Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star. Truly a wonder-full visit.
