5TH SUNDAY IN LENT

Due to declining numbers of Covid-19, masks are no longer required for ministers distributing Communion at Mass. As always, please continue to use hand sanitizer before distributing. Masking is voluntary for those who feel they would like to continue masking for now. At the discretion of each pastor, through Lent, we have been encouraged to continue to have a section for anyone wanting to wear a mask and remain socially distanced. If anyone has questions, please ask Fr. Dox.

The family of Ray LeBrun wish to offer their heartfelt thanks to all those who helped at Ray's funeral service.

Also a big shout out to the kitchen crew and those that brought food which was greatly appreciated.

5th SUNDAY OF LENT

Who is without sin among you? When we are confronted with supposedly sinful people, we often think only of the evil thing they do. But have we ever wondered what their situation in life is, which may explain why they committed those wrongdoings?

The woman caught in adultery may have violated the rights of others or disturbed the peace of a family. But this does not give us license to do to her as the Jews want even if in the eyes of the Law, she is worthy of being stoned to death. Jesus' response is different. Instead of joining the band that wants the woman killed, he challenges them to examine themselves.

Are they also not guilty of sin? It may not be adultery but something else. As we can see at the end of the story, Jesus does not condone what the woman did, but gives her another chance and urges her to sin no more. And we can only guess the change about to happen in the life of the adulterous woman who is given another chance.

Do we sometimes usurp God's prerogative to judge? Why not give people the benefit of the doubt?
