Twenty-Fifth Sunday in Ordinary Time

Dear Loving Parishioners,

In the Gospel passage today, we hear Jesus predicting His passion a second time, as the disciples were discussing who was the best among them. This tendency explains why there is so much trouble and conflict all around us. The famous author, T.S. Elliot said: "Most of the trouble in the world is caused by people wanting to be important or the best." St. James is very clear on this: "For where jealousy and selfish ambition exist, there is disorder and every foul practice."

Fr. Joseph Donders, in his homily book, shares with us an imaginary conversation which the disciples had on their way as Jesus was speaking about his passion.

Peter: "Of course, without doubt, I am the most important! Didn't He call me the Rock on which that community of His will be built?"

John: "I am sorry for you. What you are saying may be true but that is only a question of administrative bureaucracy. Though you may be a good administrator, it does not mean that you are important to others. You should look for something else, something more important. You should look for His love. When you do, you will realize that well, he loves me the most."

Judas Iscariot: "The most important person in a group is the one who holds the money. The world is ruled by money. To whom would you entrust your riches?"

Philip: "Do you remember when he had that catering problem? Thousands followed Him, eagerly awaiting the words of wisdom that flow forth from His mouth. Nobody knew what to do – not even Him, it seemed. He turned to me for advice. I am sorry for you, but he asked me!"

Because of this argument, Jesus assembled the Twelve and said: "If anyone wishes to be the first, he must remain the last one and the servant of all." This appears not to be practical advice for someone wanting a promotion.

One person who was last in many ways but became first was John Mary Vianney born in Dardilly near Lyons, France in 1786. I suppose we could say he is the most famous Pastor or Parish Priest in France since he later became the Curé of Ars but he endured many difficulties along the route. He was so dull and found it very difficult to learn Latin. In 1812 he went to the preparatory seminary at Verrières and was the last in the class of 200 due to his poor Latin but when they examined him again in French, he was still the last in the class. His theology studies went so badly at the seminary at Lyons that he was asked to leave after five months. After that he was taught theology privately in French by Father Balley, the Parish Priest or Curé of Ecully, and he was ordained in 1815. Three years later he was appointed to Ars. Out of the 200 people in the parish only a few were practicing their faith. Most had abandoned their religion. He began by doing penance for his parishioners. Reports of his holiness spread and people came from the surrounding parishes for confessions. In 1827 people began to come on pilgrimage to Ars to confess to the Curé. From 1830 until his death in 1859 four hundred people came each day. He began hearing confessions at 1 am until before Mass at 7 am and gave a teaching at 11 am and continued hearing confessions until evening. By 1855, there was a daily service of two horse buses between Lyons and Ars, and two other buses met the Paris train at Villefranche. The railway station in Lyons even had a special ticket counter for people going to Ars, so many were the pilgrims. So, the one who had to leave seminary because his theological studies went so poorly was later so sought after by the faithful that even special public transport and ticket offices had to be added. It is an example of the last being first, as Jesus teaches in the Gospel today. John Mary Vianney was last but now he is first, since he is the patron saint of Pastors.

Jesus is not opposed to having power or position. Jesus wants us to use our position and power to serve others. We, the disciples of Jesus, are not expected to use our power or position to serve our own greed and selfish motives. If we serve one another and become great there will be no feeling of jealousy or rivalry. The disciples were victims of jealousy and selfishness. They thought Christ would establish a kingdom and they were hoping to handle the most important portfolios in His kingdom. But Jesus corrected their thoughts.

Socrates, the great Greek philosopher, once pointed out that the world has two kinds of people: the wise, who know they are fools and the fools, who think they are wise. We can also say that there are two kinds of people, the humble and the proud. Even Bishop Fulton Sheen once said: "There is no one in heaven who did not become humble." When St. Bernard was asked what the four cardinal virtues were, he replied: "Humility, humility, humility and humility." Let us follow our Master who taught us to be humble and become great by serving one another. May our Master continue to inspire millions so that we can make this world a better place for everyone to live in joy and peace.

Have a wonderful week

The Korean Martyrs

This week we celebrate the feast of the Korean Martyrs. Korea is the country with the 4th highest number of canonized saints, mostly due to martyrdom. Overall over 10,000 Christians were killed out of religious persecution in the 1800s in Korea, but we celebrate mostly St. Andrew Kim Taegon and Paul Chong Hasang and their 101 companions who were all canonized together. Korea was ruled by the Joseon Dynasty at the time. The culture was based on Confucianism and class structures. There was a minority of rich nobility, a majority of common peasants, and a slave class. The noble scholars first introduced Christianity to Korea through Christian literature obtained from Jesuit priests in China in the 1700s. When the peasants heard about Christianity, they flocked to it since it offered them hope beyond the world they lived in. They called themselves “Friends of the teaching of God of heaven” because “friends” was the only word in Korean that meant some equality in a relationship. The nobles, however, discarded Christianity since they saw no benefit or need for it from their posh lifestyle. They even started persecuting Christians as it threatened the class structure that allowed them such luxury. A Chinese priest at one point snuck into the country and found 4,000 Catholics who had never seen a priest. They had learned about Christianity and formed communities led by people who could read the texts they had obtained years ago from the Chinese Jesuits. Many Christians, though, faced much persecution even early on. Their families rejected them, they went to the lowest class rank, and were in constant threat of losing their lives. However, the faith kept spreading thanks to the courage and conviction of the converts. This priest asked for more help, but help was short-lived as priests were quickly deported or killed. Finally, the well-known Paris Foreign Mission Society sent missionaries to begin working again to smuggle priests from China to Korea. One Bishop and 10 priests were smuggled into Korea. They hid during the day and ministered to all the people at night. Andrew Kim Taegon was the first Korean priest who was educated abroad, but snuck back into Korea. He was killed at age 26, thirteen months after being ordained. During this first large wave of persecutions, 11 priests died, one Bishop, and 15 female virgins who essentially lived the religious life without knowing what the religious life really was, along with a host of lay people, young and old, rich and poor. Most were beheaded after suffering horrible tortures. Beatings were very common. Another common torture the Christians endured was having their ankles and knees tied tightly while their shin-bones were pulled apart and broken. The authorities tried to inhibit the growth of Christianity by all the torture and killings, but they didn't know the blood of the martyrs is the seed of the Church. Christianity is the largest religion in South Korea at this point, and many Korean priests and religious are sent as missionaries throughout the world. North Korea also has many Christians, but they are still being persecuted and must practice their faith in secret. Let us remember and emulate the courage of these brave martyrs, and the current brave Christians in North Korea and other hostile countries today. Many of us take our faith for granted since we can go to Church and practice our faith without anyone batting an eye. But so many Catholics in other countries would be so grateful and amazed to be able to go to Mass anytime they wanted without any risk. Let their example make us grateful and let us not take for granted the opportunities to practice our faith. Let us also pray for all our brothers and sisters who suffer immense torture for the sake of our faith. All you Korean martyrs, pray for us!

MEMORIAL OF ANDREW KIM TAE-GŎN, PRIEST, AND PAUL CHŎNG HA-SANG, AND COMPANIONS, MARTYRS

Today's readings: Ezra 1:1-6; Luke 8:16-18

Sound the depths of your faith

This year marks the 200th anniversary of the birth of Andrew Kim Tae-gŏn, the first native-born Korean priest and patron saint of Korea. He was one of an estimated 10,000 who were martyred for their Christian faith in Korea in the 19th century. The theme of the bicentenary celebration is "Are you Catholic?" because Andrew's "yes" to that question during interrogation cost him his life. The bishop of the Korean city of Daejeon said the theme "calls us to reflect seriously on our identity and our consistency as Catholics." Take this opportunity to consider what your Catholic identity means to you.

"No one who lights a lamp conceals it with a vessel or sets it under a bed."

September 21, 2021

FEAST OF MATTHEW, APOSTLE, EVANGELIST

Today's readings: Ephesians 4:1-7, 11-13; Matthew 9:9-13

Let peace begin with me

The United Nations designates today as the International Day of Peace. It's also the feast of Saint Matthew—the evangelist whose list of Beatitudes includes the words "blessed are the peacemakers." According to the Catechism of the Catholic Church, the "Beatitudes are at the heart of Jesus' preaching." They "shed light on the actions and attitudes characteristic of the Christian life" and are the "paradoxical promises that sustain hope in the midst of tribulations." Matthew must have experienced such tribulations when he, as a hated tax collector, joined the other apostles. Be a peacemaker today, especially among people you're nearest to.

"I desire mercy, not sacrifice."

September 22, 2021

Today's readings: Ezra 9:5-9; Luke 9:1-6

Share the wealth

Power sharing and collaborative ministry are thorny questions within church circles and many faith communities. Jesus can be our model and our guide, in this as in all questions. When he sent the apostles out he did so in pairs and "gave them power and authority." Add it up and it equals shared, collaborative ministry. Those who are sure of their own authority are able to share it freely and without fear. More ministries and leadership positions will open up in the church when those with power learn to trust the faith community the way Jesus did.

"He sent them to proclaim the Kingdom of God and to heal the sick."

September 23, 2021

MEMORIAL OF PIUS OF PIETRELCINA, PRIEST

Today's readings: Haggai 1:1-8; Luke 9:7-9

Be an everyday mystic

In a secular world that prizes material possessions, the mystical aspect of the church can captivate. Saint Padre Pio (1887-1968) certainly drew attention for his mystical attributes. A relatively obscure Italian Capuchin priest, he gained fame for reportedly displaying the wounds of Christ, called stigmata, and for his insightful (some called it psychic) abilities as a confessor. He spent up to 10 hours a day with people who sought guidance and forgiveness in Confession. Only a few of us become mystics, but all can seek holiness and insight. Today meditate and act on the path to holiness that God has placed before you.

"Herod said, 'John I beheaded. Who then is this about whom I hear such things?'"

September 24, 2021

Today's readings: Haggai 2:1-9; Luke 9:18-22

Grounded in a sense of belonging

In our Western mindset, we often think of land as "property," owned and available for human use. But if we hope to stem climate change, we need to realize it's really the other way around. The land doesn't belong to us; we belong to the land. Writes Pope Francis in his encyclical on caring for creation, Laudato Si': "Many things have to change course, but it is we human beings above all who need to change. We lack an awareness of our common origin, of our mutual belonging, and of a future to be shared with everyone." How will you commit to the care of this land that sustains us in so many ways?

"In this place I will give you peace."

September 25, 2021

OPTIONAL MEMORIAL OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY

Today's readings: Zechariah 2:5-9, 14-15a; Luke 9:43b-45

Ripe with possibilities

Jesus was born to Mary "in the fullness of time," as one scripture passage puts it. This rich metaphor of time ripening rings true to human experience. Think of the blessings in your own life, and how they have developed often from small beginnings or mere glimmers of hope: deep and lasting relationships, hard-earned insights, lifelong achievements and legacies. Good things take time, patience, perseverance, courage, and perhaps most of all, trust. Think of Mary's journey of trust in response to God's call, and make it your own. And may the blessings in your own life ripen in the fullness of time!

"Sing and rejoice, O daughter Zion! See, I am coming to dwell among you, says the LORD."

It is to God that we must give our heart. He must possess it competely.

ST. EMILY DE RODAT

On the way home from the Ash Wednesday service a young boy asked his mother, "Is it true, Mommy, that we are made of dust?" "Yes, darling." "And do we go back to dust again when we die?" "Yes, dear." "Wow!" said the boy. "When I said my prayers last night and looked under the bed, I found someone who is either coming or going!"
