Knowing and Loving God

Some, or maybe even you, may wonder how can we possibly know and understand God. How can we possibly fathom the greatness and awesomeness of God? I know we cannot fully understand God's holiness, His mercy and His love for us, but we do know God reveals Himself to us through the Scriptures and through His Son Jesus Christ.

Knowing and loving God can have a significant impact on our lives. Knowing God can change how we pray, as we may seek to ask for what God wants, rather than what we want. Knowing God can deepen our trust in Him and the courage to do so. As we know more about God, we become more aware of ourselves and the role we play in the salvation plan.

Loving God with all our understanding can help us obey Him, as we know what pleases and displeases Him. Jesus said that the key to knowing God is important in complex times. Jesus said that our love for fellow Christians is a sign that we are His disciples.

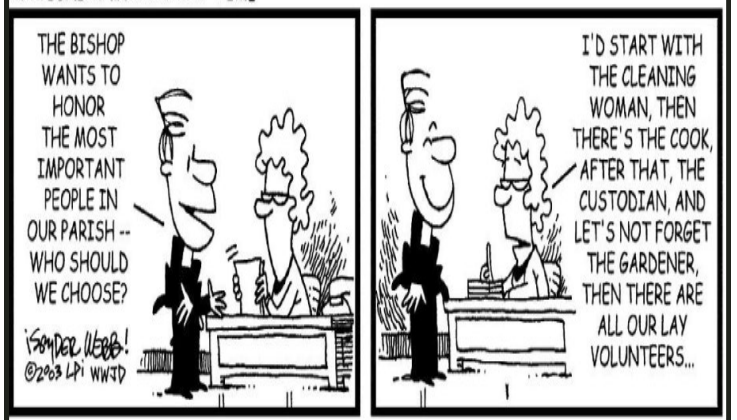

When filled with God's love, we can endure our daily trials, forgive freely, and help others. When filled with God's love, we can conquer our fears and avoid conflict. There is no greater joy than to know that God loves us unconditionally!

Have fun getting to know our Lord and Savior!

- Deacon Mike

Hurricane Relief Collections

As you know, in the last two weeks, Hurricanes Helene and Milton have torn through communities in Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina and Tennessee, leaving a devastating toll in their wake, with more than 230 dead and hundreds still missing. The storms have washed away homes, highways, decimated power, and water systems. The devastation is so great that Catholics around the nation are springing into action to provide immediate disaster relief for necessities such as water, food and shelter. The Archdiocese is urging for an extra collection will be taken up to help our brothers and sisters affected by these tremendous storms. Thank you for your care and concern, and for your generosity.
