Episcopal Trivia

With the ordination of Bishop-elect Joseph Williams this Tuesday (1 pm at the Cathedral!) I thought it would be fun to pull together some trivia about bishops. Here are some little tidbits, in no particular order:

- Episcopal is the adjective form of the noun bishop
- Each bishop is given a diocese. An archdiocese (led by an archbishop) is in most ways the same as a diocese, but the archbishop coordinates the bishops in the surrounding dioceses.
- What about bishops that don't have their own diocese? Bishops that work for Vatican offices and auxiliary bishops are a couple of examples. They are given a titular diocese. These are dioceses that used to exist but were suppressed due to changing needs. So, for example, Bishop Williams will be the titular bishop of Idassa which, as near as I can tell, was a town in what is now northeast Algeria.
- Bishops choose a motto for their ministry, as well as a coat of arms. I haven't been able to find what those are for Bishop Williams as of this writing.
- We believe there is an unbroken line of succession from every bishop back to one of the apostles, even if we can't trace it with historical records. The website catholic-hierarchy.org tracks Bishop Williams' succession back to the mid-1500s.
- To ensure this succession is unbroken, when a bishop is ordained (also referred to as consecration) there is always a bishop who serves as principal consecrator and two others who serve as co-consecrators.
- The distinctive color for a bishop's garb is fuchsia.
- His cassock (a button-down garment reaching down to his shoes) may be black and piped with fuchsia or be completely fuchsia.
- Over his cassock, the bishop often wears a fuchsia fascia (say that 10 times fast!), which is a sash around his waist.
- You might see a bishop wear a short matching shoulder cape over his cassock. This is called a mozzetta or simar. (This was something new I learned compiling this list!)
- The bishop's small fuchsia hat is called a zucchetto, while the tall pointy hat worn at Mass is a miter.
- Bishops have a crozier (shepherd's staff), a ring, and a pectoral cross that is worn around their neck, and sometimes placed in their shirt pocket near their heart.
- When addressing a bishop in formal conversation, the appropriate title is "Your Excellency." In writing, the bishop's title is "Most Reverend Joseph Williams," for example.

Outreach

Prayer Shawls and Prayer Shawl Ministry

Compassion and the love of knitting/crocheting are combined into a prayerful ministry that reaches out to those in need of comfort and solace, as well as in celebration and joy.

Many blessings are prayed into every stitch.

The shawl-maker begins with prayers and blessings for the recipient.

The intentions are continued throughout the creation of the shawl.

Upon completion, the shawls are blessed by Father Ellis before the shawl is given away.

Some recipients have continued the kindness by making a shawl and passing it onto someone in need.

Prayer Shawl Ministry is an opportunity for those who knit and/or crochet to reach out in prayer to others.

Our knitters and crocheters prepare their shawls at home and come together once a month to pray for all who have received a shawl from their ministry, as well as to encourage each other.

If you know of someone who would benefit from a prayer shawl, or you would like to take part in this prayerful ministry, please contact Anne Marie (amstrabala@olpmn.org)

Are you interested in this ministry but do not know how to knit or crochet?

Our prayer shawl group is happy to teach you!

Rosary Makers

Last month The Rosary Makers donated 1550 Rosaries to charities.

"Thank you so much for your hard work making and distributing Rosaries to us. Many of our Evangelists, giving rosaries to strangers on the street, opens the door to conversations that lead to conversions to Jesus Christ and His Holy Catholic Church." - A recipient of some of our Rosaries

If you would like to learn more about the Rosary Makers or would like to join in this outreach ministry contact James Pike (parishadmin@olpmn.org) in the parish office.
