Sabbatical Reflections from Fr. Sakowski

St. Benedict and Conversion

Today we conclude a three-part reflection on the vow taken by many monks and sisters who follow in the footsteps of Benedict of Nursia. They enter a covenant of obedience, stability, and conversion of life.

Conversion is the most important of the three dimensions, balancing the other two and served by them. Without conversion, obedience and stability become toxic structures of decay and death.

There is an impostor stability that resists needed reform. It happens in every institution! There will be some who resist risk, while cheering for the changes to fail. They feel a perceived need to keep things the same, and an obstinate refusal to see the evident truth that the status quo is failing. They make an idol out of comfort, trying to serve both God and mammon. They feel entitled to happiness in this world, rather than accepting their status as strangers and sojourners. It is ultimately a refusal to die and rise with Jesus.

There is also an impostor obedience that kills conversion. It comes in many forms, both among leaders and followers.

Some leaders rigidly demand obedience. At its “best,” this becomes authoritarianism within a benevolent dictatorship. At its worst, it is a dumpster fire of narcissism, in which the leader demands unquestioning loyalty and the admiration of all. On the flipside, many of us leaders resist responsibility for the hard stuff – which always means being hated and persecuted by some. Who wants that unless he or she is truly committed to dying and rising with Christ?

For followers, too, there is an impostor obedience that refuses to walk the path of conversion. There are always the kiss-ups who ambitiously angle for power of their own, with no interest in seeking first the Kingdom of God. Much more toxic and dysfunctional is the tendency of institutions to equate obedience with a demand for loyalty, even when loyalty means a loss of honesty and integrity. Well-meaning followers, in the name of obedience, will collude in cover-ups, stay silent in the face of failing policies, protect the perpetrator, or blame the victim.

Now let’s state the obvious: disobedience is not obedience. Obstinate disobedience exalts one’s own will and hardens one’s own heart. It is the opposite of conversion.

There are many ideological Christians these days (both on the left and on the right) who wish that their church leaders would become noisy political warriors. Their deepest thirst is not for the Kingdom of God – which is not of this world (John 18:36). They are behaving like the disciples of Jesus, who expected him to stick it to the Romans and bring back the good old days of the Kingdom of Israel.

We leaders need to hear their concerns. There are many injustices to be upset about, and many causes for fear and concern. What then?

For Benedict, it means we need to have a conversation. The Latin words for “conversion of life” are conversatio morum. It means turning around and following Christ, but it also means a conversation, a willingness to enter into and stay in dialogue in healthy relationships – even with people we dislike or disagree with.

Conversion does not mean hopping onto a social media platform, undermining authority, name calling, mocking, and shaming. That kind of criticism is not courage. There is no conversation and no conversion there. It is much harder to speak face-to-face and to listen with vulnerability and respect. No one possesses the truth; rather, we are possessed by Truth, and it is always greater than us. Conversion means I always have more to learn – even from those who are different from me. The disobedient do not tend to be lifelong learners.

Conversion is about turning around from our present misery and joyfully journeying to our true home. Benedict urges us to hasten along the path of holiness: “Run while you have the light of life!” The Latin verb is currere, which means “to run, to move quickly, to hasten.” Think of it not so much as a sprint but as a marathon, or (better yet) a pilgrimage.

I once walked a 120-mile pilgrimage. My longest day was 31 miles. It became 32 miles because I missed a turn. My stomach dropped in dread when I realized my mistake. I felt such an ache to get to my destination, and now it would take longer. In this case, my clearest option was to turn right around and go back to the crossroads. But one could easily imagine another scenario in which a new path would be much faster, and going back would be disastrous.

On a pilgrimage, you ache for your destination – and I mean that you feel the ache all over your body. You might linger here and there to delight in the scenery. You might even sing as you walk and enjoy the journey. Sometimes it is sheer pain. But the one thing you do NOT want is to travel in the wrong direction. Conversion corrects our course whenever and however necessary.

Most of us prefer to live in denial about the fact that we are pilgrims. Our true homeland is not here. We need not fight in fear over the things that are passing away. The Benedictine vow of conversatio morum is a renewal of the baptismal vow. It is an absolute decision that I want to die and rise with Christ, and that I renounce all seductive counterfeits.

In the Prologue of his Rule, Benedict teaches that God does not will the death of the sinner, but our life. God lengthens our lifespan to give us adequate time to turn around and hasten to the Kingdom. God gives us many chances to commit and recommit on our journey of conversion. He shelters and guides us along our way, and is so eager to welcome us when we finally arrive at the Feast. Will we remember who we are and where we are going?

Formed.Org

This week we celebrated the Feast of the Dedication of St. John Lateran. Many people mistakenly believe that St. Peter's is the Pope's Church, but that is not correct. The Pope's Church is St. John Lateran and so this is a day when the universal church celebrates because this Church is the sign of all of the faithful who belong to the Church of God. For a reminder on why we have and need a Church, check out Session 8 of Symbolon this week on Formed.org. "Why do I need the Church?"

Congratulations to the New Pastoral Council Members

Curt Black - St. Mary's

How would I describe myself? I'm a cradle Catholic who grew up at Sacred Heart Church and school. I'm a Regis graduate. I've been practicing as a chiropractor for over 30 years. My wife, Barb and I have been married for 31 years. We have eight children. The three oldest girls are married. The five other kids are still at home. Our youngest attends school at St. Mary's. I'm a good listener. I enjoy a good pun, if there is such a thing. I can speak and read German, but not as well as I'd like. I enjoy long-distance running and travel.

Why is St. Mary's important to me? St. Mary's is important to me because our Catholic faith is a major part of our family's identity. The idea of a community united in faith is important to me.

What would I look forward to most as a Pastoral Council member? I would look forward to helping guide the mission of our parish and supporting Father Sakowski and other members of the leadership team.

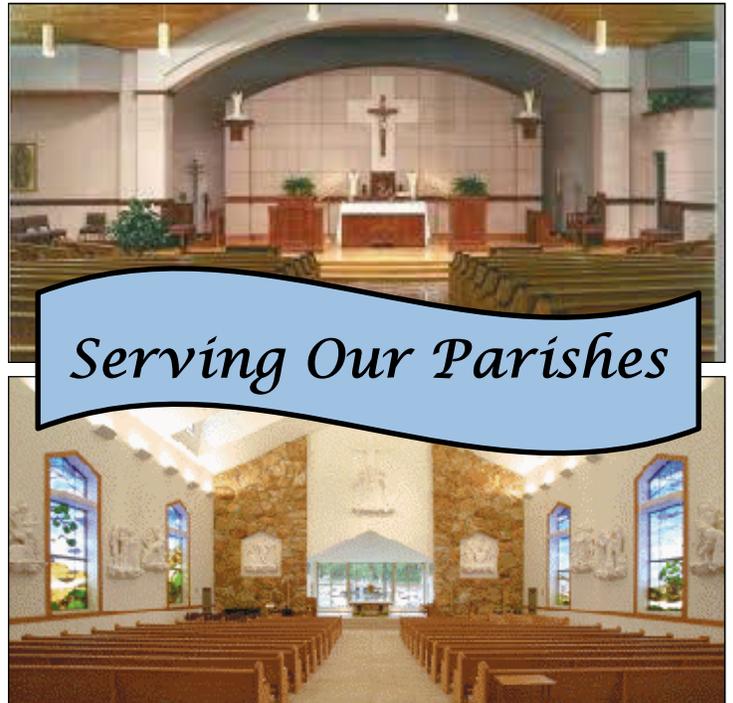

Adam Smiskey - St. Mary's

I would describe myself as a family oriented dependable cradle-Catholic who enjoys the outdoors. St. Mary's is important to me because it is where my wife and I feel supported in helping our children grow closer to God. I would look forward to working with other members of the parish and to serve the parish community.

Serving Our Parishes

Luke Zwiefelhofer - St. Raymond's

My family and I have been members at St. Raymond's since moving to Eau Claire three years ago. I am originally from the Eau Claire area, and over the past 21 years we've been active members of several parishes as we moved around the country for education and jobs. I have a strong faith background that I attribute to growing up on a family farm as well as twelve years in the Catholic school system. I also have a strong background in science with a degree in physics, and have been employed as a scientist at a public university for the past 16 years. Our parish is important to me as it is the most welcoming parish I've experienced in the area. I've had the joy of meeting many of the parishioners while ushering at Sunday mass, participating in the Faith Formation programs, and attending the pastoral council meetings. The parishioners that I have met have a true caring for our parish family, and I am blessed to be a part of it. The thing I look forward to the most as a pastoral council member is hearing the perspectives of the other council members, and providing feedback our pastors need to ensure that our parish continues to meet the spiritual needs of its members.

Paul Gordee - St. Raymond's

I am a Catholic fully alive in my faith. Rooted in the Catechism of the Catholic Church and a bold love of Jesus. My lovely wife of 30 years has been, and continues, to be my inspiration to be a better man and Catholic. Evangelization of our amazing faith is my passion. I am a servant leader who enjoys a challenge and is not afraid to have difficult conversations.

My wife and I were warmly welcomed as new parishioners and consider ourselves blessed to be members of this faith community. This parish has become our spiritual home. I would like to see it remain open to hearing new ideas while maintaining the beauty and sacred tradition of our Catholic faith.

If allowed to serve on the parish council I will enjoy better understanding the needs of our parish, vigorous conversation and debate, and prayerfully advising our Pastor on securing the future of St Mary's / St Raymond's.
