A Message from Father Andrie

Building What Lasts

This weekend is the only time we hear a passage from Ecclesiastes at a Sunday Mass. The book's title, Ecclesiastes, in Hebrew is Qoheleth, which means "one who assembles."

The author assembles or gathers together the experiences from his life. He looks back at his experiences and shares what he has learned. It is akin to grandparents sharing experiences in life and the wisdom gained with their grandchildren.

Today, we have the opening in the book. Vanity of vanities, says Qoheleth, vanity of vanities! All things are vanity!" What an interesting way to open the book! In Hebrew, vanity (hebel) means "vapor, mist, or breath." A vapor or mist is there for a brief moment and then gone.

Interestingly, Abel (Havel) who was killed by his brother Cain means "nothing" or "vanity." Others have translated Abel's name as "vapor." Killed by his brother, Abel left no permanent mark on the world. Ecclesiastes opens, then, with a dour feel. The author says that everything under the sun is meaningless.

He has pursued a life of pleasure or joy (2:1-11). Yet, he has found it unfulfilling. He has pursued wisdom (2:12-17). Yet, this, too, has been unfulfilling. In our reading, we hear that he has worked hard, acquiring wealth (i.e., property) (2:21-23). This also is vanity as he knows that he will die and must leave his property to others. And who knows whether this person will be wise or a fool!

For the author, then, all three pursuits of life – pleasure, knowledge, and wealth – have proved futile. All of it passes away and ultimately, he knows that he will as well.

Given the pessimistic worldview of the book, one wonders how did it make its way into the Bible? What does it offer? For some, it is the "bad news" so to speak, i.e., a life without faith or a life without authentic love. In some sense, the rest of the bible is a kind of answer to the pessimism and frustration found in this book.

St. Augustine believed that every person must go through the experience of Ecclesiastes either personally or vicariously with another in order to grasp the significance of the good news of eternal life.

Our first reading ties in nicely with our gospel. Jesus reminds the man who wants his share of the inheritance, "One's life does not consist of possessions." Naturally, we ask, "If it doesn't consist of possessions, what does life consist of?" Here, we can say that the good life, the fulfilled life, is a life of fulfilled relationships that God has put in your life. This includes your vertical relationship with God - Father, Son, and Holy Spirit – making Him the center of your life, daily conversation with Him, and serving Him.

The good life also includes fulfilling the horizontal relationships in your life – honoring your parents, loving your spouse and children, kindness to your siblings, helpfulness to your co-workers, and supporting parishioners and your friends.

Here is the key: the stronger your relationships – the more time, effort, and heart you put into them – the happier you will be. You are literally made for relationships. Conversely, the weaker your relationships and the more isolated you become (i.e., living for yourself), the more vanity and feeling of emptiness you will experience.

Most importantly, building relationships prepares you for heaven, which is the fulfillment of your relationship with Christ and the fulfillment of the relationships you have with those around you here on earth. Heaven is communion with Christ and your participation in the Communion of Saints. May each of you, then, work on what lasts – not possessions – but rather building relationships with Christ and those around you!

~St. Thérèse, pray for us!

Goldy and Goof enjoying their friendship on a nice summer day.

Deacon John's Note

Fool's Treasure

All three readings this weekend send a clear message about the foolish pursuit of wealth. Jesus in our first reading (Ecclesiastes 1:2; 2:21-23) teaches that the meaning of life has nothing to do with getting rich. The value of our lives is not measured by our possessions. We have to be careful not to treat our wealth as an end in itself. Instead, wealth is an instrument to fulfill a much higher purpose of knowing and loving God.

It is not bad to have wealth. We are actually created to work and add value to society. It is a good thing to use our God given talents in a way that can create wealth. We need money and possessions to live dignified lives and it is certainly no sin to enjoy them. However, Jesus knows that we can be easily tempted by money and possessions because they seem to promise so much. John D Rockefeller, the first billionaire in the US, was once asked by a reporter, "How much money is enough?" Rockefeller's response was "Just a little bit more." Doesn't it make you wonder what Rockefeller thought about all of his wealth on the day of his judgement?

We must never lose sight of our number one priority of building our relationship with God and our neighbor. At the time of our death, the only thing that will matter is how we loved God and our neighbor. Were we generous with our time and treasure? One of the most impactful verses for me at the peak of my career was Matthew 16:26, "What does it profit one to gain the whole world, but lose one's soul?" It was a reminder that wealth as an end in itself, was the pursuit of a "fool's treasure".

Sacrament Preparation Policy: Uninterrupted ongoing faith formation provides the seamless faith development that is essential for the reception of the Sacraments of First Reconciliation, First Eucharist and Confirmation. Attendance at Mass and the regular reception of the sacraments of Reconciliation and Eucharist are crucial to the forming of one's faith. We recognize that some students may have had an interrupted formation process. These students will be required to take a course of Faith Formation prior to registration for Sacramental preparation. Exceptions to this policy may be made on an individual basis.

We need your help! Contact Liz Lammers or Angie Wilz in the parish office to learn more or volunteer (952-473-4422):

- Faith Formation catechist or small group leader
- Planning team for annual Christmas Box Projects or Meal Pack.

Is God Calling You to Join the Catechist Team?

We pray that our parish family will always be blessed with those who will respond to the call to share in Christ's prophetic mission as catechists. May we too be open to the universal call to service that Christ addresses to all of his disciples, contributing our gifts to the communion of faith, the Church. We ask this in Jesus' name. Amen.
