Vision Statement

We, the people of St. Joseph of the Lakes Catholic Church, as Christ's Body, strive to be the heart, hands and feet of Jesus Christ.

Fourteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

July 4, 2021

FROM FR. MIKE'S DESK

The following is an excerpt from Cardinal Sean O'Malley's (Archbishop of Boston) Blog June 25, 2021

In my lifetime, our Church has not done a great job in teaching people about preparedness for the Eucharist. I grew up in a world where many people were afraid to come to Communion. If you swallowed even a sip of water while brushing your teeth, you might be afraid to draw near the Communion rail for fear of committing a sacrilege. As a young priest, I spent hours in the confessional with people tortured by scruples. No Catholic ever wants to commit a sacrilege. That fear often made people hesitate to receive the sacrament.

At the same time, I saw many people were motivated to leave behind a life of sin and vice because of their hunger to receive the Eucharist. Mauriac speaks of how people's hunger for the Eucharist brings about conversion in their lives. Some people have resisted temptation, overcome feelings of jealousy and revenge, abandoned infidelities and lies, all because of their desire to be able to receive the Body and Blood of Christ worthily.

After the Second Vatican Council, we had many liturgical changes that came quickly. Many of these changes were very helpful, but often there was little explanation or catechesis about why things were changing. When I was a young lad, to receive Communion, we fasted from midnight, even from water. Only the priests could touch the host. We received Communion kneeling down. We all went to confession almost every Saturday. Women covered their heads in Church, if not with a hat, with a piece of Kleenex or a glove. All of this changed practically overnight. There was never any anthropological consideration of how changing the symbols can change the meaning for people.

One of the things that changed was the connection between confession and Communion. Suddenly, the impression was often given that everyone was invited to come forward to receive, regardless of their preparedness or lack of it.

I would welcome a good catechesis about how we must prepare to receive the Eucharist worthily, but I fear that the discussion that is simply about denying Communion to politicians has already become the focus of the conversation, resulting in a lot of finger-pointing and finger waving. The serious examination that we need to make as Catholics is being subsumed into the political polarization of our country.

Our Catholics, whether conservative liberal or middle-of-the-road, have been through a lot. I always say that being a Catholic in Boston is a contact sport. The secularization of our culture, the loss of a commonly held Christian anthropology, and now the fallout of the sex abuse crisis have left Catholics shaken in their faith, angry at the bishops and mistrustful of leadership in the Church.

The controversy about the denying of Communion to politicians fuels anger on both sides. If we bishops get caught up in this fight, we can easily give the impression that we are divided in our opposition to abortion, and I do not believe that.

We need to show a united stance on behalf of the Gospel of life and all of its ramifications. If we are divided, we will be weakening the Church, and our ability to promote the Gospel of Life will be compromised. Denial of Communion to politicians will be interpreted by most Americans and Catholics as partisan politics that has nothing to do with reverence or piety.

I understand how Catholics can be angry and saddened when our elected officials try to dismiss the Gospel of Life as some optional sectarian issue rather than the sacred duty to defend human rights. It has nothing to do about imposing our Catholic faith on anyone. It is a human rights issue.

We need to recommit ourselves to working tirelessly to overcome abortion by changing hearts, by serving women in difficult pregnancies and by changing the conditions of injustice that push people to the tragic choice of destroying their own children.

So often, when I am speaking to our priests and deacons about their great responsibility to teach the truths of the Catholic faith, I try to make the point that people will give us a hearing if they see that we are authentic in living our life of discipleship and if they are convinced that we care about them.

The Holy Father calls on us to dialogue with those who do not agree with our convictions. We must try to engage in a way that will bring more light and less heat to the conversation. Otherwise, the sad divisions that plague our country and our Church will only grow deeper and more intractable.

Today, we are living a very challenging time for the pro-life cause, as became evident at our Spring General Assembly of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops. Though each bishop may have a different opinion on the best way to promote the defense of life in the current context, there is no doubt in my mind that they are all pro-life and want to do what is in their power to protect innocent human life and communicate the Church's social teaching to our Catholic people.

It's hard to imagine anyone in the United States who does not know of the Catholic Church's unfailing opposition to abortion. This will never change.

The present debate about Communion for Catholic politicians supporting abortion exhibits a deep divide among the bishops on this topic, but not on abortion.

Unfortunately, when these kinds of divisions become too evident, it hinders our ability to be able to teach the Gospel and draw our communities closer to Christ and one another.

The Eucharist is the center of our life as a Church, and I hope that, as the drafting of the document progresses, we will find a way to reconcile the different perspectives on how to take a pastoral approach with our Catholic politicians without undermining the centrality and importance of the Eucharist.

The Holy Father is urging us to find paths to heal divisions and announce the good news boldly and joyfully.

COMMUNITY LIFE

Coffee & Donuts—We have Faith

We are a church so with Faith we are beginning to offer Coffee & Donuts on Sundays after Mass starting on July 11. We have Faith that additional people are willing to step up to volunteer to serve and clean up so this ministry can continue. Please consider helping as an individual or as a family! Training is provided. Contact Andi Million in the parish office 651.784.3015.

Dispensation has Ended in Minnesota

The bishops and diocesan administrators of the Minnesota Catholic Conference have decided to reinstate the obligation to attend Mass on Sundays and Holy Days of Obligation beginning the weekend of July 3-4, 2021.

Even after this weekend, there remains reasons why a Catholic has a dispensation from the Sunday obligation, including when he or she is ill or serving as a caretaker for one who cannot attend Mass. The faithful who do not attend Mass in person are asked to find a Mass on TV, the radio or online and make a Spiritual Communion. Where that is not an option, it would be appropriate to pray the Liturgy of the Hours or the Rosary. With the end of the dispensation, our drive up communion has ended. If you are unable to come to Mass but would still like to receive please contact Barb Uschold Anderson in the parish office at 651.784.3015 extension 112.

You can read about this decision, and find examples of special circumstances when a dispensation would still apply in recent letters from Archbishop Hebda and the Minnesota Bishops on our website www.mystjoes.me or on the Archdiocese of St. Paul and Minneapolis website at www.archspm.org.

Faces of the Festival

Our Summer Festival is such a big part of our community life here at St. Joe's and we thought this would be a great time to share with you the people who enjoy being a part of this Wonderful Tradition.

Maggie Carney

1. How long have you been a part of St. Joe's Summer Festival? Over 10 years, but it's a bit of a blur. I started by wandering around and offering help in different areas but found my niche in the silent auction room. I have watched as the silent auction has bended and morphed into many different forms, culminating in last year's online auction due to the Covid-19 pandemic. We've come a long way, baby!
2. What do you look forward to the most in regards to the Summer Festival? I really love the Monday morning after the festival when we crunch some numbers and see that all the work and stress has paid off. That and the great wrap-up party at Pam and Hal Leibel's (who are fantastic hosts) where the whole committee gathers to re-hash the festival pros and cons while beginning to plan for the next year.
3. Tell us about your favorite Summer Festival memory. The Saturday night dance and fireworks has been a highlight for me. After working hard to get the silent auction setup "just so" it's fun to let loose and enjoy the crowd. A special highlight for our family is when our adult kids bring their spouses and the grandkids to the party and fireworks show - even when they cry and think the whole place is going to blow up.

STAFF CORNER

Even in the midst of summer, when all of life seems to be “open wide to the greening power of God”, as St Hildegard of Bingen would say; there is still many of us who experience pain and grief that can not be masked. We must encourage ourselves to reach out toward the beauty, towards the presence of God around us—sometimes in the people we meet, love, live with, and sometimes in the strangers who come to our door.

One of my favorite wisdom theologians, Joan Chittister offers this reminder to us: “There are some kinds of pain which cannot be taken away in life. Loss. Hurt. Rejection. Disability. But those who enter into the pain of another know what it is to talk about the love of a God who does not change the circumstance that form us but walks through them with us every step of the way.” We continue to be reminded of the ways in which we, as the people of God-the Body of Christ must be present to another, to share with one another. Perhaps it is in the small things, truly listening with genuine concern. Perhaps it’s opening our heart to something bigger than ourselves. Will you walk in the shoes of the other and truly enter into their experience? Will you walk with another as companion?

Sr. Joan offers this wisdom I share, “to go down into pain with another breaks open the heart of God who looks among us always for the face most like God’s own.” Remember, we are the people of God, called to be present to one another and those most in need.

Director of Pastoral Care

STEWARDSHIP MESSAGE

During this time, we celebrate the independence of our country. We would do well to echo the psalmist, saying, “Our eyes are fixed on the Lord, pleading for His mercy.” May we always recognize and use wisely the gifts of freedom and abundance He has showered upon us.
