A MESSAGE FROM FATHER ANTHONY WROBLEWSKI

If you had any nuns in school, or a very Catholic mother, I am sure that you heard them tell you, whenever you were experiencing any pain or difficulty, that you could “offer it up.” Where did the Catholic practice of offering up suffering for a cause come from? The Bible is full of sacrifices for others, with Jesus' death for our salvation as the greatest example. St. Paul teaches us in several of his letters the usefulness of putting up with pain for our own good and the good of others. Many saints have offered themselves up, like St. Faustina or St. Thérèse of Lisieux.

Quite simply for me, it is a type of prayer. What we do is offer our pain, suffering or difficulty to the Lord, uniting it to Jesus' suffering on the cross, and ask Him to use our pain for the good of someone else. Pain without purpose is simply pain. But pain and suffering with purpose is sacrifice. And sacrifice can be used by God for the good of others. So we could offer up our suffering for those who have died but haven't made it yet to heaven. We could offer it up for our children. We could offer it up for others who may be suffering more than us. The point is that if we ourselves give it purpose, then that suffering can become sacrificial, and can even gain meaning.

In 1984, Pope John Paul II, who was no stranger to suffering, wrote his apostolic letter Salvifici Doloris, which eloquently describes the meaning of human pain. He pointed out that suffering is not meaningless, but in fact can be very fruitful. Suffering, the late pope wrote, is "one of those points in which man is in a certain sense 'destined' to go beyond himself, and he is called to this in a mysterious way." John Paul II described how we, the members of the church, share in Christ's redemptive death and even help complete it. We are called to "offer it up" with all our brothers and sisters for the good of others.

I have some personal experience of this. When I first contracted Covid in September, things progressed quickly, to the point that it was difficult for me even to do my normal prayer. So I began offering up my day of suffering for particular purposes. I would choose someone, or something, and then tell the Lord: "I wish I could pray Lord, but things are so overwhelming, that it's hard for me to do anything. So please accept my pain today as a prayer for ..." at that point, even my illness became a prayer. So next time you are experiencing any pain or suffering, rather than complain, offer it up, making it a powerful prayer for the good of others.

In Christ & Mary Immaculate,
Fr. Tony

THE BAPTISM OF THE LORD

FAITH FORMATION

Today we celebrate the feast of the Baptism of the Lord. In Luke's Gospel today we hear John the Baptist address the confusion of the people who thought that he might be the Messiah. John the Baptist says that he has baptized with water, but that someone will come and baptize with the Holy Spirit. We hear how the Holy Spirit descends upon Jesus during his time of prayer after his baptism and tells him that he is the Son of God.

Through our Baptism in Jesus' name, we are made children of God. Through our prayer, we too will learn what this means for our lives.

Every family is unique in their behaviors, attitudes, and expectations that shape their family's daily life. These expectations and behaviors can be shaped by a number of factors, but are unique to every family.

In today's Gospel, we learn that Jesus' behavior, attitudes, and expectations were governed by his identity as God's beloved Son. He conducted himself and lived his life in a way that would be pleasing to his Father. Just as Jesus learned what being the Son of God meant in his life through prayer, so our prayer helps us learn what it means to be a child of God.

Knowing that we are children of God, members of the family of Christ, brothers and sisters of Jesus, should shape our family's daily life. What are some of the expectations and behaviors that are unique to your family and make you a family of God? How do these behaviors set you apart from other families?

Continue to be vigilant to your prayer life, asking the Holy Spirit to help you remain ever faithful to your baptismal identity as children and families of God. Continue to have expectations that show your families identity as children of God.

Faith Formation continues this week with our normal class schedule along with our First Communion sacramental prep class.

-Sonya Morris, Director of Faith Formation K-5
