As you probably know, we are currently without a staff person for Religious Education and/or Youth Ministry, as well as being a 2-priest parish instead of 3. The importance of the youth & children ministries cannot be overstated. Our youth and children are the future of the Church, and they need loving, faith-filled adults who show up and invest in their lives on a consistent basis.

We are looking to find a volunteer coordinator for religious education, and one for youth ministry. The volunteer coordinator could be more of an organizational role, rather than a hands-on one, if you preferred. For youth ministry, it could be something that a couple of people step into and lead. If you would like to see a “job description” of what we are looking for, please contact the parish office or email Jennifer at jmwallwey@archomaha.org. In addition to this – if you would be interested in being a youth sponsor (help with youth group & events for our 7th-12th graders) and/or a religious education teacher, we need those roles as well!

FROM FATHER STARMAN

Dear Parishioners and Friends of the Catholic Parishes of Western Holt and Boyd Counties,

The sayings and parables of this weekend's gospel are stitched together with the themes of vigilance, preparedness, and fidelity. Christians are to be "girded," ready for action. The biblical memory behind the parable's action is the Pass-over from Egypt when the Hebrews had to be girded, clothed, and belted up suitably so they would be ready to escape into freedom (see Exod 12:11). The early church lived in expectation of Christ's return during the great Easter night, yet unfolding history showed that the watch for the Parousia would be long.

In the first parable, addressed to disciples in general, the faithful servants are eagerly awaiting their master's return from a wedding banquet, a favorite biblical image of the end of time. This weekend's selection may seem more appropriate to Advent, but the positioning of it in the middle of Luke's gospel and halfway through the journey to Jerusalem reminds us to be alert at all times so we may recognize the Lord when he comes. He comes in those we meet, in the circumstances of our daily lives, and in the signs of our times. In a very real sense, every hour is an hour of the Lord's coming and knocking, and our response to this will either prepare for or hinder its final fulfillment.

For those who open the doors of their hearts to Jesus, the parable has a dramatic reversal of roles: the Master will be our "God-in-an-apron" who serves his watchful servants. The hospitality of God, incarnate in Jesus, serves us at every eucharistic table. At each Eucharist, too, we have some form of the "an-amnesis," the "not-forgetting" prayer that recalls the death and resurrection of Jesus and the need to "look forward to his second coming" (Eucharistic Prayer III). It is a reminder, too, that one Eucharist will be our last, that our life and world history will both end. Then we will go to meet the ascended and risen One who stands in the heavens waiting for and waiting on those who have lived a lifestyle of ready welcome to him, especially as he comes to us in the poor and marginalized. The Lord's arrival will be as unexpected as a night thief, and the Eucharist is the sacrament of vigilant hope that nourishes and strengthens us for such eager service.

Whereas the first part of the gospel was lovingly addressed to the whole Christian community, Jesus's "little flock," the second parable is told in response to Peter's question and is more specifically directed at the leaders of that flock. Jesus has gifted them with a share of his authority over the household of God's people, but they still remain servants of the Master. A leader's authority, therefore, is an authority of service. If a steward becomes drunk with power and status, physically or psychologically abusing the members of the household (Luke typically mentions both sexes), he will earn the Master's great displeasure at his return. The church's leaders are not exempt from the demands of discipleship.

As Augustine told his people: "For you I am a bishop; with you I am a Christian"—and a Christian of whom even more will be expected because of the gifts that are entrusted to a leader. This gospel throws into tragic relief the shadows cast over the church by the sexual abuse, financial misappropriation, or lavish lifestyles of some of its leaders. The word "punish," which is translated in some lectionaries as "cut off" (dichotomein), literally means "to cut in two" and, in the context of the parable, is a fittingly ironic and symbolic statement about the fate of one who lives a double, "divided" life.

Ad multos annos!

Fr. Bernard Starman
Pastor

Anointing of the Sick

In the Church's Sacrament of Anointing of the Sick, through the ministry of the priest, it is Jesus who touches the sick to heal them from sin – and sometimes even from physical ailment. His cures were signs of the arrival of the Kingdom of God. The core message of his healing tells us of his plan to conquer sin and death by his dying and rising. The Rite of Anointing tells us there is no need to wait until a person is at the point of death to receive the Sacrament. A careful judgment about the serious nature of the illness is sufficient. The Pre-Vatican II teaching was different in that the Sacrament of Extreme Unction was to be administered as close to the point of death as possible. Vatican II doesn't completely reverse the previous teaching, but it does provide the opportunity for individuals to experience God's grace and mercy earlier in their physical, mental or spiritual struggles. When the Sacrament of Anointing of the Sick is given, the hoped-for effect is that, if it be God's will, the person be physically healed of illness. But even if there is no physical healing, the primary effect of the Sacrament is a spiritual healing by which the sick person receives the Holy Spirit's gift of peace and courage to deal with the difficulties that accompany serious illness or the frailty of old age. The point of all this is we are asking people to not wait until the last minute to call for a priest to come and anoint them or a family member or friend.

WITH SINCERE SYMPATHY

We remember the souls of Opal Bosn, and Kelly Appleby, and all who have died. May God grant them eternal rest. We pray that her families will find comfort in God's presence and peace.
