PASTORAL REFLECTION

This Sunday's Gospel relates the miracle at Cana. The importance of the powerful and symbolic scene of Cana at the beginning of John's Gospel stands in sharp contrast to the scene that immediately follows it, in which Jesus clears the temple. John is challenging us to choose. We can continue attempting to find our security in the religious system to which we have become accustomed, even though it is failing to produce the wine of the Spirit which is the fruit of communion with God, or we can listen to Jesus who assures us that God is truly the Bridegroom of our souls, that we are indeed loved, and that the wine of communion with God is there for the asking.

The symbolic significance of the marriage feast of Cana is brought out well in the First Reading from the scroll of Isaiah. It was composed for the Jews who had just experienced the miracle of the return from Exile. They felt forsaken, as we all can; they were inconsolable, having seen their country devastated by war, and their city and temple destroyed; but now they are back home with the opportunity of rebuilding their lives. As the prophet says: 'You shall no more be termed Forsaken, and your land shall no more be termed Desolate; but you shall be called My Delight Is in Her, and your land Married; for the LORD delights in you, and your land shall be married. For as a young man marries a young woman, so shall your builder marry you, and as the bridegroom rejoices over the bride, so shall your God rejoice over you' (Isaiah 62:4-5).

John is giving us a dramatic portrayal of this truth in the scene at Cana. The people want to celebrate, but find themselves without wine. Mary, symbolizing every Jewish woman who has ever longed for the Messiah, comes to Jesus, and declares how empty their lives are without the wine of God's Spirit. They are going through the motions, but there is no zest and no experience of communion. Jesus first response is to draw her, and us with her, to reflect on what it is we really want. What does it really mean for us to thirst for this wine? What has this thirst to do with Jesus? Do we realize what it is that we are asking for?

There are many things for which we thirst. Is our deepest thirst really for the communion that comes only from God? Having insisted that we ponder what it we really want, Jesus goes on to assure her that there is nothing to worry about. God is about to pour out the promised Spirit over the people. He says, in what appears to me the better translation: 'Has not my hour now come?' The time for revealing God has come. It will be fully realized by the way Jesus gave himself in love from the cross, but it is about to commence. Mary is delighted, Cont. on Pg. 3

PASTORAL MESSAGE

The frigid cold and wind makes it difficult to keep our churches' sidewalks and steps free from snow and ice. Please be careful as you come and go from our church facilities. We are trying our best to get snow removed and cleaned up after it snows as best that we can!

Jesus blessed the wedding at Cana by performing his first miracle. Let us pray for all married couples this week. Here is a prayer all married couples can pray.

"Heavenly Father, You have created man and woman to be a reflection of Your love for the world. Bless our marriage and all married couples that we might truly become an image and likeness of You in the world. May our love for one another share in Your love and fill us with a generous heart that is open to life. When difficult times arise, surround us with Your presence, loving family, friends and parishioners to give us strength and grace we need. Assure all married couples of Your abiding presence with us in good times, and bad, in sickness and in health and for richer or for poorer. May our lives be a witness to the world of Your loving care, faithful commitment and persevering love for all people. Amen"

Be safe and warm!

Fr Joseph Steibeisser

and offers us the perfect advice: 'Do whatever he tells you!'

In Jesus God is revealing himself as the Bridegroom of whom Isaiah spoke. Through Jesus God is about to pour out the Spirit of his love over the people – indeed over the whole world. However, since God is love, God cannot and will not force love upon anyone. It is essential that we 'believe', that is to say that we willingly welcome the love that is offered and 'be' in that 'love'. It is essential that we do all that we can to open ourselves and our world to the miracle of God's grace. It is wine that we desire – the wine of divine communion. However, it is water jars that we have, so we must fill them with water, we must live our lives to the full as best we can, while waiting on the word of God's Messiah to transform our lives through the gift of the best wine, the wine of God's Spirit, the wine of communion with God the Bridegroom.

Last week the Church invited us to begin the period of 'Ordinary Time' by reflecting on baptism – Jesus' baptism and our own. Today, the Second Sunday, we are reminded of the essence of the Gospel – that God is love and that all God's love is being offered to us. We must, with Mary, acknowledge our need, and we must really want what God wants and be ready to follow God's inspiration, wherever it might lead us, knowing that God is, indeed, the Bridegroom of our soul, that we are not forsaken and that God truly delights in us.
