Today we take a break from our series on the Commandments to address the critical issue of Divine Mercy we celebrate today. It is fitting, even as we have been focusing on the areas of sin, that our only hope is in the mercy of God for the forgiveness of our sins. So, while it is important to be aware of the many ways which we can offend our Lord, it is equally necessary to be aware of the only way those sins can be forgiven.

We all know how dependent we are on the mercy of God, but we often have difficulty believing in His mercy. There are many reasons why this might be the case, but regardless of the reason, our Lord wants desperately for us to know and believe in the love God has for us. While this love is shown in many ways, it is demonstrated most profoundly in His mercy.

Perhaps we have trouble believing in God's mercy because we are not so merciful ourselves. We recall that our Lord taught us that the measure with which we measure will be measured back to us. So, if we desire mercy, He teaches us that we are to be merciful to others. But what does this mean? Because we tend to present mercy and justice as opposites, we look at justice as holding someone accountable and mercy as letting someone off the hook. Neither of these is completely correct.

In fact, for mercy to be received, we first have to be accountable. We cannot receive mercy unless we recognize our need for mercy. If we have not sinned, there is no need for mercy. Only when we acknowledge our sins will we be able to acknowledge our need for God's mercy. However, this can happen objectively and have little effect on us. In other words, we might acknowledge that we are sinners, but we either downplay the gravity of our sins or we refuse to acknowledge the sins themselves.

Mercy is extended to everyone, but not everyone will receive God's mercy. This is not because God does not give the mercy, but because the person is unwilling to receive what God is offering. The mercy of God is nothing new. When God revealed Himself to Moses on Mount Sinai 3500 years ago, He pronounced His Holy Name, but also called Himself a merciful God. So, God's mercy has been available from the beginning of time, but as people grew farther away from God and, therefore, had a more difficult time believing they could be the recipient of His mercy God, in His mercy, provided humanity with some clear proofs of His love and His mercy so no one could doubt or deny.

Throughout the years before the coming of Jesus, God prepared His people through the Prophets. Unfortunately, the more God sent prophets into the world, the more people rejected the prophet and the One Who sent the prophet. In the fullness of time, God sent His only begotten Son. We see His mercy in the Incarnation, we see His mercy in His teaching, His healings, His exorcisms, etc. Most of all, we see the depth of God's love and mercy in the Passion, death, and resurrection of our Blessed Lord.

When we consider the whole Paschal Mystery, we have to ask ourselves what else God needed to do in order to help us to believe in Him and in His mercy? Everything Jesus did in the course of His Passion was always the worst it could be. St. John tells us Jesus did not need anyone to instruct Him about human nature. Therefore, He knew that if there was anything human beings could find that was anything less than the worst, we might exploit that to say He did not do enough. In 2000 years, I have never heard of anyone trying to use that argument.

This being the case, in His mercy, God forces us to face the question about the Person of Jesus and the work He accomplished to redeem and save us. There are many people who simply choose to ignore the question and there are others who will acknowledge what our Lord did and even Who He is, but they do not let it come any closer than an arm's distance. What about us? Are we willing to allow His mercy into our hearts? That, after all, is what mercy is about. The Latin word misericordia literally means "from the misery of the heart." As an extension of what was said earlier regarding sin, now we can say that most people will not open their hearts to receive God's mercy until they face their own interior misery. Since most people today try to cover up their misery in any number of ways, we do everything in our power not to even admit that we are miserable on the inside.

Jesus asked St. Faustina to put an inscription on the bottom of the picture of Divine Mercy. The inscription says: "Jesus, I trust in You." Do we trust Jesus? Naturally, we will suggest we trust Him, but will we open our hearts and allow Him into the misery hidden therein? Will we give Him our misery? Our misery comes from our woundedness; the Latin word for wound is vulnera. Are we willing to be vulnerable, to lay open our wounds, before the Lord? Are we willing to let Him into the areas of woundedness within our hearts?

Only when we are willing to do this can we truly know His mercy. His Sacred Heart has certainly received more than its share of wounds from His human creatures who blaspheme and reject Him, so He knows what wounds feel like. Moreover, it is important to note that the picture of Divine Mercy shows the rays coming from the pierced Heart of Jesus. His mercy flows from the misery of His Heart and, if we are willing to accept, it flows into the misery of our hearts to heal them.

If we allow His mercy into our hearts, we will experience His love. One wound at a time will be healed and we will have our hearts filled with His love. This will allow us to be more merciful to others, but it will especially allow us to enter the wounds in our Lord's Heart to love Him and unite ourselves with Him in compassion for what He suffered. We need forgiveness, we need healing, we need to be loved. These are the very things our Lord's mercy holds out to us. Trust Him, open your heart to Him, let Him love you; let Him heal you. If we bring the faith we profess from our heads to our hearts, we will experience His mercy. This experience of God's mercy will lead us to that which is most important of all: to know Jesus Christ!

Tantum Ergo
By St. Thomas Aquinas

Down in Adoration falling,
Lo! The sacred host we hail;
Lo! O'er ancient forms departing,
Newer rites of graces prevail;
Faith for all defects supplying,
Where the feeble senses fail.
To the everlasting Father,
And the Son, who reigns on high,
With the Holy Ghost proceeding
Forth from each eternally,
Be salvation, honour, blessing,
Might and endless majesty.
Amen.

V. Thou gavest them bread from heaven.
R. And therein was sweetness of every kind.

Let Us Pray,
O God, Who, under this wonderful Sacrament, hast left unto us the memorials of Thy Passion;
Grant us, we beseech Thee,
So to venerate the sacred mysteries of Thy Body and Thy Blood,
That we may constantly experience within us the fruit of Thy redemption.

Who livest and reignest...

SAINT OF THE DAY – SAINT GEMMA GALGANI

Gemma was born in Borgo Nuovo di Camigliano, near Lucca, in the Tuscany region of Italy in 1873. Her mother died when she was eight and, in 1897, when her father died, she went to live with Cecilia Giannini, who treated her like an adopted daughter. Gianna wanted to join the Passionist Sisters, but was prevented from doing so by her poor health. She had suffered from a number of illnesses since childhood, including tuberculosis of the spine. She was said to have been cured after apparitions of Saint Gabriel Possenti, a Passionist brother to whom Gemma had a particular devotion and who died when he was only twenty-four from tuberculosis. Another account attributes the cure to an apparition of Saint Margaret Mary Alacoque.

Gemma is known to the world largely from over 230 letters of hers, published in 1940, to her spiritual director and confessor. She was an honest and pious young woman, generous in her response to God's love, humble and obedient to her spiritual director, and willing to suffer everything in imitation of Christ's passion. For about a year and a half, she regularly had on her body the stigmata—signs of Christ's wounds—between Thursday evening and Friday afternoon. She also went into ecstasies and was heard talking to people in her visions. Her letters reveal her as level-headed and habitually calm and peaceful. Toward the end of her life, she seems to have had a constant awareness of God's presence.

Eventually, her illness returned. She died, after a long period of physical suffering, on April 11, 1903. She was twenty-five years old. Saint Gemma Galgani, pray for us! Our Lady over Marian Hall

If you've been in the East Gathering Space of our church building recently you may have noticed the beautiful reproduction of the image of Our Lady of Guadalupe over the doors to Marian Hall. I would like to thank parishioners Doug and Kathy Williams, who had it framed and gave it to the parish, and parishioner Amy Glasscock and her husband Gary, who own Transport Graphics in Rogers, where the image was manufactured. – Father Rudolph

Help for Max?

A young man named Max who attends Mass with his family here at St. Raphael's is hoping to be able to get a diabetic alert dog to help him move forward in life with safety and confidence as he deals with the challenges of both type 1 diabetes and autism. His mother Rebecca put together a gofund.me page to try to raise money to buy one of these highly trained animals, which amazingly can respond to the smells of high and low blood sugars and alert the person with diabetes as needed to save him or her from possible hypoglycemia or insulin shock. I encourage you to check out the page at the address below for more information, and to please consider helping Max. – Father Rudolph
