NEWS FOR ALL

MASS ATTENDANCE GUIDELINES DURING THE COVID-19 PANDEMIC

Due to the ongoing Covid-19 pandemic, diocesan and state guidelines require us to adhere to a few new requirements:
The dispensation from the obligation to attend Mass remains in effect. Although mitigating measures are in place, you could be exposed to Covid-19 while at Mass. Please use your best judgement.
+ Video streaming and recordings of the Mass will continue online.
+ Overflow seating will be provided.
+ Social distancing (~6ft.) must be followed while on campus by those not of the same household.
+Hands must be sanitized upon entering and exiting the building.
+ Masks - It is essential to follow all of our ongoing protocols for Mass attendance, especially the wearing of masks. While the COVID situation continues to improve and more people are getting vaccinated, it is still extremely important to do all we can to slow the spread of the virus, which still poses a significant threat to the vulnerable and elderly. The use of masks is one of the best ways to do this.
+ All are strongly encouraged to receive Holy Communion in the hand until further notice; no one choosing to receive on the tongue will be denied Holy Communion.
+ Offerings and gifts may be dropped in the indicated collection basket or collection point on your way into the nave.

CHURCH HOURS Due to COVID-19 and sanitizing requirements our church may not be open regular hours on Holy Days, or days we have a Funeral. The Church will be open 1 hour prior to the scheduled Mass time.

FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK

Jesus' virtue of temperance (self-moderation of one's survival appetites for food, drink, and sex), when lived by Christians, helps them to grow in self-mastery. One does not become a master of one's appetites for these things without first seeing oneself honestly and with the appropriate shame of one's words and deeds. Thus, as mentioned here last week, shamefacedness and integrity are prerequisites that we must master. If we do not master them and instead indulge in vices against temperance, we become dis-integrated and de-based, i.e., our psychological base weakens, our will weakens and we are easily overcome by temptations. The person who does not feel ashamed of drinking too much alcohol is likely to continue the habit until it disintegrates their good habits. The person who does not see integrity or "being a well-ordered person" as a more important choice than succumbing to a temptation to look at porn is less and less likely to say no to porn the next time.

A sense of good shame (shamefacedness) is a fear of anything disgraceful, and it is a prerequisite for self-mastery and temperance, (e.g., we have a natural fear of the disgrace of getting caught doing something wrong). Shamefacedness is not a virtue in the strict sense of the word, but rather a praiseworthy feeling which makes people blush as soon as they come in contact with anything shameful.

A love of integrity (propriety/honesty) is to be honest about something, in so far as it has a certain beauty through being regulated by reason. Integrity is the flip side to shame. It is essential to temperance. It means an appreciation of the beauty of someone who is well put together. Integrity speaks to a beauty above and beyond honesty, to someone who is whole, well-integrated. Temperance is the virtue whereby our lower appetites are integrated with our higher faculties. The virtues come to reside in the appetites themselves. The appetites become spiritualized into harmony with our high faculties, and that integration is something beautiful.

If someone is unwilling to look at him or herself honestly and frankly and to have a sense of shame about doing good and avoiding evil, then temperance does not make sense, it is to remain in a kind of psychological denial, e.g., "I can eat this (drink this or do this sexual act), for any reason I want. Who is to tell me otherwise?" They do not see a better version of themselves having mastered their appetites and become a well-integrated person.

One of the things that goes into the psychology of temperance is that we have an instinctive fear of actions that would cause us to be in a debased condition, we shrink from such things. The more advanced we are in the virtue of temperance, the more we shrink from those things that would debase us. It is a protection, a good and wholesome fear. On the other side, the more we choose against this instinctive fear and against temperance the less we shrink away from what should be shameful to us or threatening to our integrity. Have you ever known someone who regularly gave into base pleasures in high school or college and still is trying to sustain that lifestyle into adulthood? They struggle to maintain healthy relationships because living for the next pleasure is more important.

By having a good sense of shame and a love of integrity we grow in our mastery over our appetites of food, drink, and sex (and we might add electronic entertainment here).

STEWARDSHIP AS A WAY OF LIFE:

"I am the good shepherd … and I lay down my life for the sheep … and they will heed my voice." — John 10:14-16

When you pray, do you only ask Jesus for the things that you want? Do you ever ask Him what He wants from you? How do you listen for His response? Many times Jesus responds in "quiet whispers" that are not so obvious. So, take time every day, in silence, to actively listen for His voice.
