A Message from Monsignor Bob

We gather this weekend to celebrate the Feast of Corpus Christi, the Body and Blood of Christ. This solemnity reminds us of the greatest gift that Christ gave to us, His very life, His own body and blood. This is a gift given freely to each of us to enable us to grow in our faith and have the strength to embrace and live the teachings of the Gospel. When we reflect on the sacrifices that Christ underwent for us, His suffering and death, we remember that it was His death that gave us life. That life is renewed every time we receive the Holy Eucharist. The sadness of these times is how many Catholics no longer receive this greatest of all gifts. It is that lack of participation in the Body of Christ that weakens His message to the world, a message that needs to be heard and lived now more than ever before. The very word "Eucharist" means thanksgiving. In spite of the times in which we are living, we have much for which to be grateful. Even when we choose to turn our backs to the Lord, He is still there waiting for us...that alone is a gift! Let us fall on our knees in gratitude this weekend. Let us receive Eucharist more earnestly and reverently. Let us partake of this life-giving gift with a newness of heart. Jesus tells us unless we eat of His body and drink of His blood, we have no life in us. Let us find our way back to that life and encourage others to do the same!

We gather this weekend to honor our fathers, grandfathers, great grandfathers, godfathers and those men who are like fathers to us. We are blessed to have these men in our life, these men who gave us life. While most men are somewhat shy about accepting our thanks and praise on a day like this, let that never keep us from thanking them and letting them know how special and important they are in our lives. No one is perfect, but this is a day to remember all that is good and thank God for them.

My youngest brother, Tom, wrote this essay/poem about our father. Dad and Tom had a special bond that developed over Dad's workbench that carried him through his life. It represents the phases of their time together, including when Dad was diagnosed with dementia and eventually passed. It is a very personal reflection, but one that I am sure many of us can identify with when we think of those special times with our father.

For Pop

My father worked with wood that day with me all thumbs; I tried to help and he touched my shoulder and smiled. There were lots of trips to Sears and the lumber yard. There were lots of "can I's?" and "not yet's." Soon though that led to "that's your side" and "not bads." Saturdays upon Saturdays of wood and glue and nails.

My father worked with wood that day. The saws roared and the sawdust fell from cutting and sanding. Teenage years turned into my 20's and I didn't help that much. I was too tired or too withdrawn or too depressed or too alone. He wanted to help me but he did not know how.

My father worked with wood that day, a project for the church. I got a frantic call from Mom. I drove Dad to the hospital, his thumb torn from an unforgiving blade. He stared at his finger, tightly wrapped in a blood soaked cloth and he said he guessed he was no good for anything anymore. The stitches closed his wound but not the ones from his ego or confidence. The drive home was one in silence. I wanted to help, but I did not know how.

My father never worked with wood again. I helped him sell his tools. The tools were quiet and collected dust. His thumb healed but never his spirit.

As the last years went by his mind lost its edge. I kept buying him watches – Father's Day, birthdays, Christmas- some with glowing dials, easier to see in the darkness; some with day/date displays, easier to know what day and month and year it was. I guess I was trying to buy him more time, time to let the fog lift and return him to whole.

His heart failed him. Days and nights in the hospital took a toll on Mom. I sternly told her to go home. She would be of no use to him if she were exhausted. He died alone that night. Alone. I carry that guilt with me every day.

When all was said and done, years passed and Mom left our house. We sold the contents, the memories, the stuff and his tools. I kept his back-up hammer – he had two. His favorite was an old one he had as long as I can remember. The other was his back-up, one of the same age and brand, the metal blued with age, the handle slightly darker in color and cracked and worn by calloused hands, his and mine, the one I mostly used. I watched his good one leave in a bucket of other tools from the carport sale. I felt I did not deserve that one, so I have his back-up.

I've worked with wood- on many days. Over the years. I've built some things. I feel connected to him every time I hear the hum of the saw or the sander- but now I use a nail gun. He would laugh at that!

And, sometimes, when I close my eyes (but never when the saw is running!) I feel his hand on my shoulder and I see his smile.

I miss him every day.
