From
Deacon Joe MacDonald

As you may have noticed from listening to the Universal Prayer (formerly called the Prayers of the Faithful) we have had a plethora of funerals these past few weeks. Each funeral has come with its own requests for music. We often get requests from what I call the “favorite hits list”; Amazing Grace; On Eagles Wings; How Great Thou Art and Ave Maria to name a few.

One of the questions we often get is “How many songs can I pick?” Frankly, this isn’t the best way to approach picking music for a funeral or any Mass for that matter.

There are three kinds of music:

1. Secular (This includes songs that have no content related to faith – we cannot use these at Mass)
2. Religious (This might include Christian Rock, and many other styles that speak of praise and devotion – wonderful to listen to but usually not suitable for Catholic Liturgy)
3. Liturgical (This is music that relates specifically to Catholic Liturgy and Worship)

As you may have already guessed, it’s the third category of music that is appropriate for any liturgy. To help families make suitable choices the parish has prepared a document that contains selections of readings as well as music for this purpose and there are bereavement ministers to help guide through the process as well.

Each part of the Liturgy has its own characteristics as does the music that accompanies these actions. For example, the Entrance Song has three purposes.

1. To foster unity among the gathered faithful
2. Raise our thoughts into the mystery of the particular celebration or season
3. Accompany the procession.

Therefore, the entrance song should be sung by the congregation in order to foster unity among those gathered. A solo piece like Ave Maria or an instrumental piece is not an option here. The song should, at a funeral, raise our thoughts and hearts toward the Paschal Mystery, that is, the life, death and resurrection of Christ. So, while “Songs of Thankfulness and Praise” is liturgical music and it has the characteristics of an entrance song it isn’t a good choice for a funeral because it fails to raise our minds to the Paschal Mystery.

Since the Entrance Song accompanies a procession, it needs to be something that drives that particular action. A quiet meditative song such as “All I Ask of You” would not meet this need whereas, “I Know That My Redeemer Lives” does.

It is true that each part of the liturgy, the Psalm, Offertory, Communion and Recessional each has its own qualities that need to be addressed when choosing music. Families should not hesitate in contacting me personally to help guide you in the process.

We invite families to participate in planning the funeral liturgy as much as they are comfortable with but at no time should anyone feel compelled to do so. The pastoral staff has a great deal of experience in these matters and we are happy to make the selections for you.
