Carthago Delenda Est

There was an article in the New York Times a number of years ago that reported on a place that scholars have called "the largest cemetery of sacrificed humans ever discovered." It's located near the North African coast, not far from the city of Tunis, the site of the ancient Phoenician city of Carthage. In its day, Carthage was one of the most powerful and wealthy cities in the world. The Carthaginians were a sea-faring people, and were able to dominate the Mediterranean with its superb navy that protected its very lucrative trade routes. But Carthage also engaged in widespread ritual infant sacrifice to their principal deity, Baal Hammon, which gave them a nefarious historical reputation. In the 1970s, however, a number of historians sought to rehabilitate Carthage. They argued that its bad reputation was the result of a racist propaganda war by Carthage's bitterest enemy, the Roman Republic. It was the Republic who, after withstanding the invasion of Hannibal's Carthaginian army in 218 B.C., ended up destroying the city of Carthage in 146 B.C. The Times article cites a historian who says: "Some scholars regard Carthaginian civilization as so advanced and sophisticated that widespread human sacrifice would have been unthinkable." Such attempts at rehabilitation, however, fly in the face of the archeological evidence. Ritual child sacrifice was practiced in Carthage on an immense scale.

Historians now want to understand why the Carthaginians would sacrifice their infants to Baal. The Times article refers to something that historians describe as a "paradox" - that one of the greatest civilizations in history would engage in such barbarous practices as infanticide. "There was a peculiar dualism in Carthage in which the thrust for commerce, prosperity and the good life were blended with a religion so intense that the richest Carthaginian could cheerfully consign a son or daughter to the flames of the sacrificial pit to redeem a pledge to the gods." But some have come to understand that these things are not really opposed to each other, but are mutually supportive. These scholars suggest that the widespread sacrifice of infants to idols, though perhaps unfortunate, protected the estates of the wealthy from the threat of having to be divided among a large number of heirs. And so it seems that one might seek to curry favor with the local deity while simultaneously protecting assets from dilution. It is also argued that child sacrifice served to control population growth, thus preserving valuable food and other resources from depletion. Thus, some contend, widespread child sacrifice to Baal was an important cultural component in Carthage's rise to power and its enjoyment of immense wealth for centuries.

Continued

In his classic work, The Everlasting Man (1925), G.K. Chesterton gives a riveting account of the conflict between the Roman Republic and Carthage, contrasting the two ancient peoples by pointing to the gods they worshipped. While Carthage worshipped Baal, who gave them wealth and power in exchange for the blood of their children, the Romans worshipped the "hearth gods," household deities who were guardians of the home and family. When Carthage sought to invade and destroy the Republic, in the end Rome was victorious. Rome defeated its loathsome enemy because, Chesterton argues, it had something of real value to fight for - the treasures of hearth and home rather than the expansion and maintenance of wealth and power.

In any case, I thought that was interesting. Did you find it interesting too?

In Christ,
Fr. John

Entrance: Holy Holy Holy 460

Introit: Everything that Thou hast done unto us, O Lord, in true judgement hast Thou done; for we have trespassed against Thee, and not obeyed Thy commandments; but give glory unto Thy name, and deal with us according to the multitude of Thy loving kindness. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son and to the Holy Spirit, as it was in the beginning, is now and ever shall be world without end. Amen.

First Reading: Nm 11:25-29

The Lord came down in the cloud and spoke to Moses. Taking some of the spirit that was on Moses, the Lord bestowed it on the seventy elders; and as the spirit came to rest on them, they prophesied. Now two men, one named Eldad and the other Medad, were not in the gathering but had been left in the camp. They too had been on the list, but had not gone out to the tent; yet the spirit came to rest on them also, and they prophesied in the camp. So, when a young man quickly told Moses, "Eldad and Medad are prophesying in the camp," Joshua, son of Nun, who from his youth had been Moses' aide, said, "Moses, my Lord, stop them." But Moses answered him, "Are you jealous for my sake? Would that all the people of the Lord were prophets! Would that the Lord might bestow His spirit on them all!"

Responsorial Psalm: The precepts of the Lord give joy to the heart.

Second Reading: Jas 5:1-6

Come now, you rich, weep and wail over your impending miseries. Your wealth has rotted away, your clothes have become moth-eaten, your gold and silver have corroded, and that corrosion will be a testimony against you; it will devour your flesh like a fire. You have stored up treasure for the last days. Behold, the wages you withheld from the workers who harvested your fields are crying aloud; and the cries of the harvesters have reached the ears of the Lord of hosts. You have lived on earth in luxury and pleasure; you have fattened your hearts for the day of slaughter. You have condemned; you have murdered the righteous one; He offers you no resistance.

Gospel: Mk 9:38-43, 45, 47-48

At that time, John said to Jesus, "Teacher, we saw someone driving out demons in your name, and we tried to prevent him because he does not follow us." Jesus replied, "Do not prevent him. There is no one who performs a mighty deed in my name who can at the same time speak ill of me. For whoever is not against us is for us. Anyone who gives you a cup of water to drink because you belong to Christ, amen, I say to you, will surely not lose his reward. Whoever causes one of these little ones who believe in me to sin, it would be better for him if a great millstone were put around his neck and he were thrown into the sea. If your hand causes you to sin, cut it off. It is better for you to enter into life maimed than with two hands to go into Gehenna, into the unquenchable fire. And if your foot causes you to sin, cut it off. It is better for you to enter into life crippled than with two feet to be thrown into Gehenna. And if your eye causes you to sin, pluck it out. Better for you to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye than with two eyes to be thrown into Gehenna, where 'their worm does not die, and the fire is not quenched.'"

Offertory: One Bread, One Body

Communion Antiphon: Be mindful of your word O Lord; this has been my comfort.

Closing: O God of Loveliness 608

Prayer to Saint Michael the Archangel

St. Michael the Archangel, defend us in battle.
Be our defense against the wickedness
and snares of the Devil.
May God rebuke him, we humbly pray, and do thou,
O Prince of the heavenly host, by the power of God,
cast into hell Satan, and all the evil spirits,
who prowl about the world seeking the ruin of souls.
Amen.

FALL BIBLE STUDY

Many Catholics want to read the Bible because they know it's God's Word, but they give up because it seems so complicated.

Unlocking the Mystery of the Bible, with the presenter Jeff Cavins, helps you get the "big picture" by showing how fourteen narrative books of the Bible tell the complete story of salvation history from Adam and Eve to Christ and the Church. You will be able to make sense of the Bible, discover the remarkable connections between the Old and New Testaments, see how the sacraments, the Church and our entire Catholic Faith is rooted in Scripture and much more.

Unlocking the Mystery of the Bible is only eight sessions; the study program includes video presentations that explore all twelve time periods of The Bible Timeline Chart, group discussion and some homework.

Order your book at: <https://ascensionpress.com/collections/unlocking-the-mystery> - $26.95 gives you both the book and access to the on-line study and video at Ascension Press for one year. You'll also receive a new Bible Timeline Chart and Bookmark.

Fall Book Study

Tactics: A Game Plan for Discussing Your Christian Convictions

In a world increasingly indifferent to Christian truth, followers of Christ need to be equipped to communicate with those who do not speak their language or accept their source of authority. In Tactics, Gregory Koukl demonstrates how to artfully regain control of conversations, keeping them moving forward in constructive ways through thoughtful diplomacy. You'll learn how to stop challengers in their tracks and how to turn the tables on questions or provocative statements. Most importantly, you'll learn how to get people thinking about Jesus. Tactics provides the game plan for communicating the compelling truth about Christianity with confidence and grace.

The study started September 8th and run Wednesdays from 6:45 p.m. - 8:15 p.m. at St. Cecilia's McDermott Hall. Space is limited. To purchase the book and reserve your spot email noelle.gross@gmail.com or call 857-345-0808.
