Third Sunday of Easter

Today's liturgy highlights both the truth and the ramifications of the resurrection. In the Gospel passage, Jesus demonstrates the reality of his risen body; the same Jesus who was crucified is now risen, and we respond with a joy that compels us to ask God to bring us "forth into the light of day to stand in your presence until eternity dawns" (alternative opening prayer).

Our Easter joy comes with Easter duty, however, and Peter's sermon in the first reading reinforces this charge. Christ's death and resurrection has opened the mystery of God's saving plan to us; now we must answer Christ's call, choosing life over death, love over hate, hope over fear. Our Sunday liturgy and our Christian lives must give witness to our Easter faith. The baptism we share joins us in a great vocation: to look forward in hope to eternity's dawn, and to live today as children of the world to come.

St. Francis of Assisi & St. Dominic
2021 Mass Book

It is very easy to remember a loved one in our own personal way, but what better way than a Mass or Mass Card. Both are available at St. Francis of Assisi and St. Dominic's. All you need to do is contact the appropriate Rectory to schedule a Mass or acquire a Mass Card. Masses are now available in both churches for the 2021 Mass Book through June. Candles are also available.

Every attempt will be made to accommodate your requests for specific dates, but we cannot promise. Your understanding is appreciated. Please call the rectories during business hours.

Pray for the Repose of the Soul of Normand Dupere and Janet Arruda

Dear Sisters and Brothers,

Saint Peter addresses us in the first reading from the Acts of the Apostles. When we listen to his words, it is important to remember that while he was addressing first century Jews, his words are in fact addressed to all people of all times and places. "You denied the Holy and Righteous One and asked that a murderer be released to you. The author of life you put to death, but God raised him from the dead."

All too often we tend to shrug off responsibility for the death of Jesus, failing to recognize that our own sin contributed to the weight of the cross in a very real and personal way. I suspect that part of the reason why we do not invest ourselves totally into a role of guilt is because the events that led to Jesus' death took place two thousand years before we were born. Nonetheless, Jesus is not simply son of Mary, but also the eternal Son of God who died for the sins of ALL mankind. In other words, he died for the expiation of all sin committed prior to his birth, those committed during the thirty-three years of his earthly life, and every single sin committed since - including each and every sin that we have committed and have yet to commit. The notion of "all sin" of "all time" is a rather overwhelming one if one truly meditates on weight of its full meaning. It is a notion that should truly horrify us, but unfortunately does not because we fail to think about it seriously. Too often, we let the stories of Jesus life and passion pass simply as nice stories, rather than events in which we play a part - and yet we do!

I suspect that if any one of us were to strike and kill an animal while driving our cars, we would feel terrible. I suspect that the feelings would be compounded hundreds of times if we were responsible to a motor vehicle fatality, particularly if we knew that the accident was our own fault and that it could easily have been avoided. Yet how do we approach the death of Jesus? Do we, or can we, acknowledge our own culpability and feel real regret? Often-times, it is our own "spiritual vehicles", carelessly maneuvered, that wound others and in doing so wound the person of the Christ. Sin kills the soul, and our sin wounds the Christ. We cannot say that we had no part in the death of Christ, but the fact is that we did, and continue to do so every time we approach God or another living soul with an absence of love in our hearts. Sin is the opposite of love, and hence failure to love is to commit sin.

This realization on our part should spur us on to acts of reconciliation with God by encouraging us to love always with God's own love, but it should not paralyze us. That is why our first reading today is accompanied by the second reading from the First Letter of St. John. St. John, the beloved disciple, reminds us that if we do sin, and he knows that we're bound to at times, we have an "Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous one. He is the expiation for our sins, and not for our sins only but for those of the whole world."

This knowledge that Jesus is the expiation of sin for the whole world is what can sometimes cause complacency. It is easy to think that if Jesus died to overcome all sin, then I have a "free pass". This would also be a wrong spiritual approach. The thought of our sinfulness should not paralyze us AND the thought of Jesus overcoming all sin should not cause us to see sin as being of no consequence.

The challenge of discipleship is to try our best each and every day to balance our spiritual lives between acts of penance and acts of praise: Penance for the wrong that we do that contributed to the Cross; Praise to give glory to God for his love that assures us of forgiveness and salvation.

This past Lent, I suggested that in our Lenten penance, rather than "giving up" something - penance that borders on punishment - we might focus on penance where we "do" something loving for God or for another person. How we approach acts of penance in our lives can make all the difference in the world. Punishment is counterproductive. But if our acts of penance are loving and other-centered, then our penance does not become paralyzing but freeing. At the same time, our recognition of Jesus being the expiation of sin does not become a free pass, but rather another opportunity to love God and neighbor in a thanksgiving of praise to God. For the mature Christian, penance and praise easily go together if both are rooted in love, because acts rooted in love are rooted in God.

If we, as disciples of the Risen Christ, are to be rooted in God, then we have to be deeply rooted in the Risen Christ who we claim to acknowledge as Lord. That means that our prayer lives have to have real substance. It means that we have to approach the sacraments, particularly the Eucharist, with proper preparation and reverence. We have to train our ears, eyes, hearts, and voices to be prepared to meet and reverence Christ in those with whom we come in contact regardless of appearance. Sometimes may not seem as easy as it sounds, but honestly, it is not as difficult as some may suspect - especially if we try to focus on penance and praise equally rooted in love. If we love God with our whole being, then our prayer life becomes a joy. If we love God with our whole being, then we reverence Christ in the Blessed Sacrament whenever we come into his presence and as we receive him in the Eucharist. If we love God with our whole being, then loving others is simply an extension of loving God. So, in the end, discipleship comes down to love: the love God first has for us, and our response to that very same love!
