Sixteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

We see them almost every day: people who have lost their way and just can't seem to hold it together. Some of them are members of our family. The truth that we see in today's readings is that we all need help at different times, that none of us really has it all together, and that we all need a shepherd, we need Jesus. The power of the Christian tradition and of the Jewish tradition from which we take the readings from the Old Testament comes from this basic fact. Faith is not something extra that we do in order to win points with God and gain admittance to heaven. Faith is who we are; it is what founds our lives and helps us to hold it together. We may long for heaven, where things will all make sense, but for this time and in this life, it is faith in the shepherd of Israel, the good shepherd who is Jesus, that holds our life as precious, helps us to do what is right and makes us worthy to come to Communion.

So Jesus looks on us with compassion and gives us his life as the compass for our own. God comes to shepherd us by sending Jesus and so the wonderful hymn of trust contained in Psalm 23 is our song of gratitude. The letter to the Ephesians reminds us of how Christ destroyed barriers and brought the deep peace that will keep us true to his name and guide us home at the last. We who were without a shepherd are now sheep of one flock in Christ. In age of the church we can hear the call of the one who knows us and trust as he leads us through death to life.

MESSAGE FROM FR. HAMEL

Dear Sisters and Brothers,

The prophet Jeremiah gives a severe warning to the shepherds who do not shepherd the sheep properly. The warning is from the Lord, and Jeremiah is not afraid to relay it loudly and boldly as the Lord's mouthpiece. And you know what? People hated Jeremiah for it so much so that they made all sorts of plans to end his life. The threats did not discourage him! If anything, it made him more determined to speak the truth!

Jeremiah had no idea who the righteous shoot to David would be or even when he would arrive on the scene. He certainly would not have had any idea that this shoot of David would be The Lord himself in the person of Jesus. I suspect that he, like the rest of the Jews of his day, would have expected a political leader who would govern wisely and bring Israel back into a golden age. And yet his message from the Lord was apt for his day and is just as apt for the times within which we live.

When we think about the shepherds in the church today, our first thought goes to the bishops of the church. They are referred to often as shepherds, and the crosier, or pastoral staff, that they carry is purposely designed to remind us of a shepherd's staff, even though too many of them took on overly ornate design and ornamentation over the years, taking their cue from the medieval royal courts. (You will never find a shepherd with a metal staff, much less one that is either silver plated or gold plated!)

Our Church (universal) is made up of hundreds of local churches (dioceses). While the pastor of the universal Church is the Bishop of Rome / the Pope, the pastor of the local churches is the resident bishop or Archbishop. Technically, each (Arch)diocese has only ONE high priest. Ours of course is Bishop Edgar da Cunha. An Archdiocese, like Boston, also only has ONE high priest (Cardinal O'Malley) even though there may be an assistant bishop or even several assistant bishops. But any priest/bishop who exercises any type of priestly ministry does not exercise his own priesthood but is extended the right (granted faculties) to exercise the priesthood of THE local High Priest/Bishop. In other words, I only exercise the priesthood in this parish because the Bishops of Fall River have granted me the faculties to do so. And because of this, priests who work in any diocese shares the bishop's ministry and so are often also referred to as shepherds - of parishes, of shrines, of institutes of higher learning, etc...

So back to Jeremiah! Does his Old Testament warning to shepherds who mislead the sheep apply to bishops and priests today? The answer of course is a resounding yes! It certainly does. That is one of the reasons why, when Pope Francis was elected to the papacy in 2013, one of his first catchlines to become famous was that bishops and priests should have "the smell of the sheep." In other words, bishops, and by extension their clergy (priests and deacons), should be ministering among the sheep and not above the sheep!

Woe to you shepherds!!!! Honestly, we hear it all the time these days, even if not always exactly in those words. But we hear it in so much of the justified criticisms leveled at bishops and clergy for the abuses that have not only taken place in the church, but have been swept "under the rug," not tending to the needs of innocents who have been horribly harmed. In so many sad cases, shepherds fed ON the sheep, rather than feeding the sheep. Pope Francis has been working to correct this mindset by speaking out against clericalism which is basically an attitude that the ordained and vowed religious are somehow superior to the laity and therefore entitled to privileges which they have neither earned nor deserve. When Pope Francis talks about too many priests as being "little monsters" because of the way they treat their "flocks" he is in many ways showing himself to be a modern day, Jeremiah! Bishops, priests, and deacons are taken/separated from the community to exercise a sacred function. They are NOT somehow made better, superior, or more entitled than anyone else in the community. They have simply been given a greater responsibility to serve and not to be served. Unfortunately, being human, too many forget the sacred charge that was given to them at ordination, that theirs is a ministry of service.

But how does Jeremiah's warning to the shepherds apply to the rest of us? You know ... those who aren't bishops, priests, or deacons? Does it apply to us at all??? Once again, the answer is a resounding YES!!! It most certainly does!

When each and every one of us were baptized, and when we continue to baptize new people into the church, we were/are anointed on the crown of the head with Sacred Chrism. Our ritual instructs at that moment that as the baptized, we share the three-fold dignity of the person of Christ himself: Priest / Prophet / King. We recognize that each of the baptized acts as priest by offering the sacrifices of their lives to the glory of God in union with the sacrifice of Christ on the cross. We exercise the role of prophet which is in fact the role of teacher by the example of holy lives that serve to encourage others in their lives of faith. Our royal dignity is the recognition that as members of the Body of Christ, and as sons and daughters of God, we are in fact members of his royal family as are ALL OTHER PERSONS! So again, back to Jeremiah!

St. Paul reminds us in 1 Corinthians that one part of the body cannot say to another "I don't need you!" As members of Christ's body through baptism, we all need each other and affect each other. Because of this, all the baptized have the responsibility to "shepherd" others, helping to make sure that those who are prone to wandering off stay on the right path. But we know, again though human weakness, that sometimes people lead others astray. Jeremiah's warning "Woe to you" applies to them as well. Again, that is why an honest examination of conscience on a regular basis is so important for disciples. Are we giving good example at all times, or do we find ourselves leading others astray??? Shepherds in the church are not restricted to the ordained. Shepherds in the church are restricted to ALL THE BAPTIZED. Or in other words ... no restriction at all.

Do we need to pray for the "formal" shepherds, our clergy? Yes, we do. We need to pray that as a whole, they shape up and start doing a better job of pasturing the sheep, not lording it over the sheep as the pagans do, but by walking among them and at their side. But we also need to pray for ourselves and all of our brothers and sisters in faith, that each and every day we recognize not only the privilege of our discipleship - being called God's own daughters and sons - but also the responsibility to help each other to avoid the wolves at the gate who would lead us away from the body of Christ who is our Good Shepherd! And woe to us, says Jeremiah, if we do not pay attention and take it seriously! So just a word to the wise!!!
