Inspiration for the Week

by Rev. Mark Suslenko

Alleluia, Christ is risen! What a glorious and holy day. The resurrection of Christ speaks of freedom, new life, restored faith, and enduring, unconditional love. The huge stone separating death and life has been moved, allowing God's radiant power to usher in eternal life. When we see the truth of Christ's resurrection through the eyes of love, we experience the fullness of timeless beauty, truth, and wonder revealed. The emptiness of the tomb is filled with the eternity of love. We have many stones and boulders blocking the path to freedom, love, and joy. They are often too big for us to move, and they cripple us. We can take a leap of faith today and believe with all our heart, mind, and soul that there is much more than can be seen by the naked eye. There is something very holy, sacred, and eternal stirring within us. We want to live forever! Christ's resurrection brings us joy and allows us to see ourselves as we are meant to be seen, as God's children destined for glory!

An Easter Message from Archbishop Christopher Coyne

As we embark our celebration of Jesus' resurrection, be sure check out the Easter message from Archbishop Christopher Coyne in the latest edition of Branches on the Vine from the Archdiocese of Hartford.

You've had the vision in your mind for quite a while. You've found the perfect place to build a seasonal garden with a fountain. Excited to bring your vision to life, you painstakingly design the plans, secure all the materials, purchase a stunning fountain, and clear your schedule to complete it. As you begin preparing the land, you realize one thing you failed to consider: the magnitude and density of boulders, as solid as concrete blocks, preventing you from doing anything! Unable to insert the spade into the ground, you are left dumbfounded, angered, and disappointed, wondering whether you will ever realize your vision. Boulders can weigh things down, block things off, prevent movement, and stymie the achievement of dreams. They are also the perfect way to seal a tomb.

Many boulders weigh us down. They suffocate us, closing off the tombs of our lives from light, fresh air, change, and freedom. Our boulders are like heavy sacks piled on our backs, causing our heads to hang low and impede our journey. They can cripple us, lead us to depression, rob us of joy, and hold us captive. Such boulders have the potential to seal shut the doors of our lives. They come from many different places: dysfunctional home environments, business responsibilities, economic pressures, relationships, physical or mental illness, loss, disappointment, guilt, addictions, the effects of war, violence, and suffering to name a few. Some folks carry more burdens than others. They are hard to shoulder, and we often feel powerless over them.

As we celebrate Easter, we see a world torn apart by war and its accompanying ugliness: bloodshed, violence, separation, loss, and grief. And we begin to wonder how somebody moves forward in times like these. Stripped of all they possess, what gives them hope? After being forced to witness the brutal killings of those they love, what keeps them going? And this is only one example of the world's suffering. Many others are victims of other wars, famine, disease, exploitation, greed, power, and domination. What motivates them to start another day, knowing that the boulders are still closing them off from life?

Stuck with our burdens, we can believe that we failed. Powerless and tired, do we give up and admit defeat? It seemed like Jesus had failed. His lifeless body was placed in a tomb and sealed up. His friends try to understand what has happened. Wasn't something spectacular supposed to occur to show everyone that he was telling the truth? After all, doesn't God part the seas, have manna flow down from heaven, save people from floods, and help people get to more productive and abundant lands? Good Friday seems so final and dark, just like we feel when left carrying something that weighs us down; there is no life, no freedom, and no love. Or so it seems.

The disciples invested in Jesus. They trusted. You can imagine the disappointment, despair, anger, frustration, and fear they must have felt. After all that transpired, they sat glumly, staring at a boulder. Waiting is difficult, especially when facing an apparent brick wall, uncertain of what comes next. It's frightening and chilling. We feel the same way when we look at the boulders that seal up and weigh down our fragile, struggling lives. Where are you, God? Didn't you promise that you would be here to help? Listen?

The disciples experienced many emotions, even those considered painful: anger, doubt, and fear. And then, "Life" found them! Miraculously, the stone was rolled away from the tomb, and life flowed out! Amid life's unfolding, a Presence came to them and said, "It is I. Do not be afraid. Believe." The author of faith, love, and hope revealed himself to them and touched their soul in a way that only Truth can touch. They changed. It happened just as Jesus said: He is risen! Alleluia! Even more profoundly, as they reflected on the heavy stone, discussed all that occurred, shared their feelings, and tried to comprehend what they had seen and heard, Jesus joined them. They knew it was him when they stopped for a rest and broke bread.

Pope Benedict XVI shares that "faith in the resurrection of Jesus says that there is a future for every human being; the cry for unending life which is a part of the person is indeed answered. God exists: that is the real message of Easter. Anyone who even begins to grasp what this means also knows what it means to be redeemed." There is a future. Ponder for a moment the most significant stone or boulder in your life. Do you believe you have a future despite what is before your eyes? When Life Eternal touched the disciples, they were transformed. No longer were their eyes cast down or gazing at the past; they saw the future. God always brings life.

Many of the metaphorical boulders and stones that hinder us are fixable. Others we can manage. Some require the help and support of those around us so that we can accept and carry them with grace. Allow Life Eternal, Christ, to touch your soul today. The attitudes we bring to our challenges, how we see God, the depth of our trust, and how deeply we can love are the things that matter. If we genuinely believe that God has all things in his care and that there is a future filled with life, love, and joy, then we can change and forge ahead. We can also be moved to accept the stones and boulders that cannot be changed and work around them.

The joy and beauty of the resurrection become real when we open our eyes to see the bigger picture God has planned for all of us. Our destiny is to be one with Christ. It is our future. When we lose focus and become discouraged, apathetic, overwhelmed, defeated, and disgusted, we lose touch with the most gifts we need: faith, hope, and love. These virtues supported the disciples during their darkest hours. They can get us through ours as well.

God does not abandon his people. He places within us the light and power of his love. When we listen, undistracted by other pleasures and desires, we hear that voice encouraging us to move forward. There is a future. Human beings inherently want to live and love. This is the presence of the Risen Christ, the Word made Flesh, the One without beginning or end, alive in the hearts of all of God's children. There is a future, and it is a bright one indeed! Alleluia! Pray for peace.

Easter Hymn: See What a Morning!

and Stuart Townend. This powerful hymn tells the resurrection story with joy and reverence, reminding us of our hope in Christ.

Listen to one or both of our favorite renditions of this inspiring song on the parish website and get ready to sing it with us this Easter season!

Easter in the Roman Catholic Church is always on the first Sunday after the first full moon after the spring equinox. Easter eggs, also called Paschal eggs, are decorated and used as gifts on Easter. The oldest tradition uses dyed and painted chicken eggs. A more modern custom is to substitute chocolate eggs wrapped in colored foil, hand-carved wooden eggs, or plastic eggs filled with confectionery, such as chocolate.

However, real eggs continue to be used in Central and Eastern European Christian traditions to celebrate the Eastertide. Christians see the egg as a symbol of resurrection: the egg contains a new life sealed within. In addition, one ancient tradition was the staining of Easter eggs with red "in memory of the blood of Christ, shed at the time of his crucifixion."

In Orthodox churches, priests bless Easter eggs at the end of the Paschal Vigil, equivalent to Holy Saturday. The eggs are then distributed to the faithful. Similarly, in the Roman Catholic Church in Poland, the so-called święconka is the blessing of decorative baskets with a sampling of Easter eggs (pisanka) and other symbolic foods. It is one of Holy Saturday's most enduring and beloved Polish traditions.

Being of Polish and Russian ancestry, our Dad knows all about the beautiful egg decorating tradition. I bet he will color some eggs for Easter, too! Bunnies and chicks are secular symbols of Easter, representing the beginning of spring. Thankfully, there are no bunnies at our house, Harry - just the chocolate ones in Dad's basket! And we can't eat those, either!

Happy Easter to all our friends at
SS. Isidore and Maria Parish!
