

33rd week in Ordinary Time
November 14, 2021

The Sun
will be darkened, and the Moon will not give its

Dear Followers of Jesus,

In these November days, the sacred liturgy reflects on Jesus' Second Coming as we move to the conclusion of our liturgical year next week on Christ the King. The end of time is presented to us in images and metaphors much like the beginning of creation: darkened skies, falling stars, chaos upon the earth, and deep questions rousing in our hearts. These changes will give birth to the Kingdom, much like the Kingdom gave birth to the beginning of all creation. These changes help us view what is most important today, since we do not know the day or the hour.

Praying through the images of Mark 13:24-32, Jesus says to us we must pay attention to what is revealed every day. He uses the example of the fig tree. When it blooms, we know summer is near. In the same way, when we see the moon darken and the earth change, we know God will lead us home to eternal life. We will live in his glory, in the full bloom of eternal life.

Jesus also says that heaven and earth will pass away, but his words will never pass away. In these words, we hear the echoes of the beginning of John's gospel, when he writes that in the beginning was the Word and the Word was with God and the Word became flesh. Jesus points us to what he has been trying to show us all along in his life, that his words of love, mercy, and forgiveness will be forever what we cling to. His very presence is the Word from the Father. His words and actions, his presence on earth, will reveal to us life eternal. We are invited in these last days of our liturgical year to reflect upon the love that is revealed to us today that will show us the Kingdom at the end of time. We are called to surrender to his presence every day to the Word that will unite us in heaven.

Clinging to Jesus' words reveals not only what will happen at the end of time, but allows us to live today. In our day and time, we desire love. We desire the richness of justice for people. We desire the hope that people will find real meaning in their lives and joy in his presence today. Faith is an open door. Trusting God becomes our goal on this side of the grave.

As we reflect on death in these November liturgies, we ponder the joy of his presence today. We conclude that only love will open doors. Fear shuts doors of faith. Stress and strain close potential to believe in God. Condemnation of others closes off forgiveness and peace. Fear does not lead us home. Only faith in God's presence and joy of his mercy shows us the open door to the Kingdom.

In November, we have celebrated saints and souls, and continue to reflect on our own grief in the death of loved ones and our yearning for eternal life. November, it seems, teaches us how to live throughout the year. Surrendering to brevity of life enables us a true relationship with Christ today. Our human death will not destroy the soul. Hope abounds in the hearts of those who trust in the words of Christ Jesus, for his words will never leave us, no matter what happens.

But of that day or hour, no one knows, neither the angels in heaven, nor the Son, but only the Father.

God give you peace,
Fr. Ron Raab, CSC, Pastor

THANK YOU! Art for André Fundraiser Success!

Thank you to everyone who participated in the Art for André and Second Chance Art for André fundraiser. Due to your overwhelming generosity, we raised a grand total of $45,313 from both events!! All of the money will go to the future St. André House, which we hope to be complete by March 2022. Thank you for your support!

What are parishioners doing with
Fr. Ron's art from the art sale??

Parishioner Donna Wintz made a custom frame for the art she purchased. The top line says "What do you want me to do for you?" The bottom line says "Lord, let us see your face."

Reflection

"But the wise shall shine brightly like the splendor of the firmament, and those who lead the many to justice shall be like the stars forever." (Daniel 1:3)

As we approach the end of the liturgical cycle each year, our readings focus in on the end times. We read from the Book of Daniel, and next week also from Revelation. Both are apocalyptic literature.

Apocalyptic writings were written during days of persecution and distress. The people of Daniel's time faced a tyrannical king who forbade worship of Yahweh and who desecrated the temple of the Lord. When the Book of Revelation was written, Christians were being imprisoned and tortured for their faith.

Apocalypse comes from the Greek word meaning "to uncover" (just as certain trees were named eucalyptus because they were considered "good cover" from the sun, since eu- means "good" in Greek). So what does the Book of Revelation and the Book of Daniel uncover for us?

In neither case is it the future! God does not give us the gift of seeing into the future. Instead, Daniel and Revelation tell us about the time in which they were written, and they give us hints about how to stay faithful to God in our own time.

In fact, Biblical prophecy has never been defined as predicting the future. The word prophet, like the word soothsayer, means "one who speaks the truth." The prophets of the Old Testament spoke up for God, sometimes comforting the people by sharing God's care for them, but sometimes telling the people that their sinful ways would lead to punishment. The warnings of the prophets were remembered and written down if they indeed proved accurate.

For example, the prophet Amos warned the people of the northern kingdom of Israel that they would be destroyed unless they turned back to worshiping God. After Israel fell to the Assyrians, the words of Amos were written down and remembered as a warning for future generations who might be tempted to forget God.

No, the books of Daniel and Revelation do not tell us how the world comes to an end or how Jesus will return to earth (although the fact that both will happen is certain). All of that is still "covered." What is "uncovered" is how we are called to stand up to evil. Apocalyptic writing reveals the need to be wise and to seek justice, so that we can endure persecution and difficult times when they come to us.

Interested in learning what the Church says about caring for creation and caring for God's peoples? Join us at Sacred Heart in Room 4 after the 9 am Mass once a month for our group study meeting! On Sunday, Nov. 21 we shall discuss the introduction to the Laudato Si': On Care For Our Common Home, which you can find in soft and hard-cover, or free online at <https://tinyurl.com/v9y2d79c>. Please bring your copy of the encyclical or the introductory chapter to our session.

We'll continue our meetings on Sunday, Dec. 19 and into the New Year. Our plan is to study the encyclical and learn more about the life of Saint Francis and other related topics; become Laudato Si' animators for our parish; and form our Sacred Heart Creation Care Team.

Visit our parish website www.sacredheartcos.org and click on the Laudato Si' tab at the top of the page to learn more, including how to join our parish Creation Care Team (it's easy!).

Join our Laudato Si' private Facebook group where you see the banner with the planet on the leaf, as shown above. We're All Part of God's Plan(et) is a national Laudato Si' awareness and engagement campaign for U.S. Catholics to care for creation and participate in the Vatican's Laudato Si' Action Platform. The Art of Faith– Part 2 By: Fr. Ron Raab, CSC

The pinnacle of my art happened during the pandemic. Just before the shutdown, I was commissioned by Liturgical Press in Minnesota to illustrate the “Stations of the Cross in Atonement for Sexual Abuse and the Healing of All.” At first, I resisted the invitation because I knew that my art was not what the publishing house normally uses for their publications. I thought my approach was too abstract. However, the editor of the project, John Kyler, persisted. I painted all fourteen stations in the first weeks of the shutdown and handed in the project on May 1, 2020.

After the book was published in December 2020, I began to realize that I too, was abused by a priest. I had never put the pieces together before. A priest, a family friend, sent me to another priest because I was not attractive enough for him. I never put those pieces together until doing the illustrations for the Stations of the Cross. The art has healed me. It is no wonder I told the stories of the two people who were both sexually abused when I began painting. I am amazed that at 65 years old, I am still learning about my life in so many ways, still unveiling truth.

One of the highlights so far of my years at Sacred Heart was my art exhibit at Cottonwood Gallery for the Arts in May 2021. Sacred Heart Parishioners John and Sandy Goddard were instrumental in persuading the gallery to examine my work. The month-long exhibit of the originals was an incredible experience for many people. Over 900 people viewed my work during that month. I had many people tell me the story of their own abuse by family members or family friends. The effects of the abuse still linger as a cloud over present day relationships and activities for so many people.

During that month, I learned that the priest who led me to a different priest was convicted of five counts of abuse and sentenced to prison for 8-15 years. I still cannot believe after 45 years that the sentencing happened in the same month as my exhibit. Healing abounds. Now, I have come to believe the reason I started painting was to help me get to the realization that I had been abused as well.

I mentioned to many people during the Art for André fundraiser that my relationship with Sacred Heart Parish and the parish's relationship with me is summed up in the art. These paintings represent our time together. They did not exist before I got here and will not exist after I leave the parish. These pieces of art are a segment in history of our time together. This is a beautiful reflection for me to ponder, to reflect upon in my art and in my prayer for everyone in the parish.

I never desired to hold on to the originals for long. I have found the search for my own truth and my faith more important than the final product. Over the past 8 years, I have given many of them away, donated others to fundraisers in the diocese, and sold a few. I don't view the originals as possessions to keep. The journey of a blank canvas, the intuitive approach with paint on my fingers or brush, the quiet in my studio, the act of faith, all become prayer. The act of painting, the self-expression, and the truth are all keys to my heart.

I paint with immediacy. I don't spend a long time at the canvas. It is finished when the prayer or insight is finished. I have realized in my art that I paint in a similar manner as I preach. I use words from my heart; I express them in the moment, then I am finished. I don't keep a written version of my homily because it doesn't exist. My paintings are similar; I paint them, then I am finished with that image. Words and images are immediate; they speak, and I do not cling to them.

Now, I do not know where art will lead me. I wait for the inspiration, the action of the Holy Spirit to guide my next moves into creativity and art. In the meantime, thank you for accepting my art and donating toward the next phase of our parish future for Saint André House. I look forward to celebrating our 100th Anniversary together in July 2022.
