3rd Sunday of Ordinary Time

“Today this Scripture passage is fulfilled in your hearing.” These words that end our Gospel this week, are easy for us to look at as truth, in hindsight. Imagine, though, what the people of the synagogue would have thought though when Jesus, after having just read from the book of the prophet uttered these words. The majority of the book of the prophet Isaiah foretells the coming of the Messiah, a Savior.

The idea of the Messiah though, was not what we have come to know him as today. The people who had waited for his coming were looking for a military leader that would cast out all of the enemies of the people of God. They had waited for someone to come and give them everything their very hearts desired. Though Jesus did this, in that the ultimate desire of our hearts is to be reunited with God, who is love, the people witnessing Jesus struggled to understand the actual message and gift that he was. They were too focused on what they wanted that they couldn't truly see what they had desired.

In life, rarely do we know what we actually need. We imagine, and at times fantasize about things going how we think is best, but many times don't take into account how us getting what we want can effect those around us. We become the center of attention, and lose focus on our unity in the Body of Christ. Jesus though, in truly fulfilling the words of the prophet, shows what we are to actually desire; unity with God.
