Call to a Spiritual Life

(part 2)

Recognize that we all have the spark of love that is God within us, and learn to honor that love so that you can know and experience the Oneness of all that is.

A spiritual person will deeply believe in the existence of an intimate God, and concede the Lord has a sovereign right over his life. He will want to develop a close relationship with his Maker.

The spiritual man and woman long more than anything else to obey God. The spiritual person views things in terms of eternity, not time.

A spiritual individual subordinates the material to higher interests. He sets his mind on the things that are above, not on the things that are upon the earth.

Rather, he seeks foremost the Kingdom of God (Mt. 6:33), and trusts the Lord to provide for his needs. One who is truly spiritual strives for balance in his existence.

and you will set the world on fire.”*

Recently, we celebrated some good news: The Department of the Interior committed to phasing out the sale of single-use plastic products in national parks and other public lands. Ending plastic pollution in national parks will have a big impact. Single-use plastics make up half of all trash in Yellowstone National Park, and the National Park Service currently manages nearly 70 million pounds of trash every year. Closer to home in the Grand Canyon, 20% of the waste stream consists of single-use plastic bottles alone. While there is a ten year implementation timeline to make the necessary changes in all national parks and public lands, this is a great first step!

Momentum is clearly building for a plastic-free future throughout the country. Thirteen states have already passed legislation banning some of the worst plastic products, like styrofoam which just never goes away!! Bless you for everything you do to keep our Mother Earth clean and healthy for the next generation.

DISCIPLESHIP

The man asked Jesus, "And who is my neighbor?"

Luke 10:29

Few questions are fraught with more angst and controversy than this simple one: who is my neighbor? In answer, Jesus pointed to a Samaritan, the Jews' despised and hated long-time antagonist. Who would we point to today?

SPECIAL COLLECTION

Next week, our parish will take up the 138th annual National Black and Indian Mission Collection.

Our support of this collection helps build the Church in African American, Native American, and Alaska Native communities from coast to coast.

Schools, parish religious education programs, and diocesan ministries depend on your generosity to help them spread the Gospel of Jesus Christ!

Please give by using your offertory envelope, the 2nd collection envelopes on the information tables or give online. Thank you!

St. Vincent de Paul

In today's Gospel, when Jesus asks "which of these three, in your opinion, was neighbor to the robber's victim?" the scholar of the law answered, "the one who treated him with mercy". Jesus then said, "Go and do likewise".

This week you can also "treat the poor with mercy" by praying for our ministry of helping the poor in our community. Any gift you choose to give will also fulfill this directive from Jesus to do likewise.

We are hoping that you are actively considering the call to come to see about volunteering with St. Vincent de Paul, Sacred Heart Conference. Join us at our Wednesday meeting at 9:15am in the St. Anthony Claret room in the lower level of the church. We are looking forward to meeting with you. Please remember our Thrift Store "Christmas in July" sale beginning on Monday, July 11 through July 16. All of our Christmas items will be available for purchase. Also, all items in our store will be 50% off on July 15 and 16. Hope to see you there for this fantastic sale of quality merchandise. All profits from sales at our thrift store are used to fund our ministry.

God Bless you.

UNDERSTANDING THE GOOD SAMARITAN PARABLE

Who were the Samaritans?

Dr. Amy-Jill Levine of Vanderbilt University explains how getting an accurate answer to the question “Who were the Samaritans?” can shed light on how shocking the Good Samaritan parable would have been to Jesus’ audience.

The Good Samaritan parable is one of the most beloved gospel stories for young and old alike. The story is told in Luke 10:29–37: A man going from Jerusalem to Jericho is attacked by robbers who strip him and beat him. A priest and a Levite pass by without helping him. But a Samaritan stops and cares for him, taking him to an inn where the Samaritan pays for his care.

As Dr. Amy-Jill Levine discusses in a column in the January/February 2012 issue of Biblical Archaeology Review, the story has proven a popular one for sermons over the years, and it has been interpreted in many different ways—ranging from a tale about ritual purity to lessons about personal safety and even freedom fighters or universal healthcare. These sometimes-unusual interpretations are no doubt an attempt to find meaning in the parable for the times and concerns of a changing audience. And although that may be a worthy cause, Levine notes that in order to grasp the full import of the story, one must understand the times and concerns of first-century Judea, where Jesus and his followers lived. To do this, one must understand the relationship between Jews and Samaritans. This is sometimes hinted at in modern interpretations of the parable but rarely fully grasped.

So who were the Samaritans, really? Levine explains that they were not simply outcasts: They were the despised enemies of the Jews. Yet where listeners would have expected a Jew to be the hero of Jesus’ story, instead they would have been shocked to hear that it is a Samaritan. As Levine explains, only by understanding this reality does the powerful message of the parable come through:

The parable offers . . . a vision of life rather than death. It evokes 2 Chronicles 28, which recounts how the prophet Oded convinced the Samaritans to aid their Judean captives. It insists that enemies can prove to be neighbors, that compassion has no boundaries, and that judging people on the basis of their religion or ethnicity will leave us dying in a ditch.
