AMAR LA TRADICIÓN

AUTOR: PADRE JOSÉ MARÍA ALBA CERECEDA, S.J.

Todos debemos amar la Tradición, y si preciso fuera, morir en su defensa. Esa actitud tradicional de nuestra vida religiosa, nos ha de diferenciar de toda otra actitud que aun llamándose católica, vive de espaldas a la tradición católica, y se entrega a un utópico modernismo sin raíces tradicionales.

La Iglesia es nuestra Madre, la Iglesia que, además de Una, Santa, Católica y Apostólica, es toda Ella Tradicional. La Iglesia es el Reino de Jesucristo en la tierra que se va transmitiendo en tradición viva de generación en generación. Sus enseñanzas no son innovaciones para cada época de la Humanidad, con diferentes posiciones, para cada pueblo, para cada color, de la historia humana. Nuestra fe de hoy, la fe de la Iglesia, hoy como ayer, enseña a todos los hombres, es la misma fe de San Pedro y San Pablo, la misma fe de los circos romanos, de las catacumbas, la misma fe que predicaron San Metodio, San Columbano, San Francisco Javier, el beato Diego de San Vítores, y los obispos y sacerdotes mártires de la persecución religiosa en España en 1936. La doctrina de la Iglesia no está sujeta a modificaciones, a incrementos de verdades que Ella enseña. Nada tiene que ver con el aumento de los contenidos científicos. Que hacen a las ciencias humanas cada vez más dilatadas, más evolucionadas, en el contenido de sus verdades científicas, abandonadas unas en el hoy, y que se consideraron tal vez intangibles en el ayer. No hay evolución, no hay cambio, sino la enseñanza de una misma fe, de la misma sabiduría, de la misma doctrina de salvación.

En medio de un mundo cambiante, con paso efímero de pueblos, civilizaciones, culturas e imperios, la Iglesia permanece siempre coherente consigo misma desde el primer día hasta la más actual modernidad. Los cambios que algunos dicen se han dado en Ella no son más que falsos enfoques de su realidad sobrenatural, porque de hecho las diferentes dimensiones de la cultura y de la evolución humana en todas sus variantes y complejos aspectos, son los que iluminan la Iglesia con su misma luz. Al reflejar esa luz, las cosas de los hombres toman colores y formas diferentes. Pero son las cosas de los hombres las que cambian, porque la luz es siempre la misma. Como la luz del sol ilumina cada nuevo día, cielos y tierras, que aparecen siempre renovados, la luz de la Iglesia ilumina todos los amaneceres humanos y todas las mutaciones de todos los siglos, siempre con su misma luz que penetra hasta los más recónditos entresijos de las creaciones de los hombres. Las circunstancias y las obras humanas cambian; pero la luz de la Iglesia no cambia al iluminarlas todas con su claridad.

La Iglesia es Tradición, amor al tesoro de los siglos, amor a todas las palabras que a lo largo de los siglos ha ido pronunciando la Iglesia para enseñar su doctrina de salvación. No "modernizar", no "acomodar" la Iglesia a las cambiantes situaciones. El esfuerzo de los hijos de la Iglesia se ha de situar en acomodar la cultura, el trabajo, la civilización del momento a las enseñanzas permanentes de la Iglesia y a su Magisterio tradicional. Novedades, no gracias. Tradición viva, sí.

THE MASS: AD ORIENTEM

AUTHOR: FATHER THOMAS KOCIK

Adoremus, Society for the Renewal of the Sacred Liturgy by Father Thomas Kocik

In her book The Desolate City, Anne Roche Muggeridge offers this trenchant proposal: If an angel allowed me one suggestion as to what more than anything else would most quickly restore the sense of the sacred to the Mass, it would be this to do away with Mass facing the people. I am convinced that the position of the priest at the altar is the single most important liturgical "external" symbol, the one that carries the most doctrinal baggage. To put the priest back on our side of the altar, facing with us towards God, would at one stroke restore the Mass from an exercise in interpersonal relationship to the universal prayer of the Church to God our Father. With the priest facing God once more as leader of the people, the importance of the microphone will diminish, and the priest can stop making faces at us. He and we can go back to thinking only about what is happening in the Mystery. (Anne Roche Muggeridge,

The Desolate City: Revolution in the Catholic Church, rev. ed. San Francisco: Harper & Row, 1990, pp.17677.)

The purpose of celebrating Mass in the traditional manner priest and people facing the same direction, toward the East (if not literally then at least symbolically) has nothing to do with seeking to obstruct people's view of what is taking place at the altar by having the priest's back to them. Nor is it even primarily for the sake of facing the altar or tabernacle. Rather, the priest stands before the altar, facing the same way as the faithful, to manifest the eschatological and sacrificial dimensions of the Eucharist. In The Feast of Faith, Joseph Cardinal Ratzinger explains: Where priest and people together face the same way, what we have is a cosmic orientation and also in interpretation of the Eucharist in terms of resurrection and Trinitarian theology. Hence it is also an interpretation in terms of Parousia, a theology of hope, in which every Mass is an approach to the return of Christ. (San Francisco: Ignatius Press, 1986, pp. 14041.)

Why the insistence on an Eastward facing position for both priest and congregation? From early on, Christians adopted the Jewish practice of praying toward Eden, in the East (Gen. 2:8), the direction from which Ezekiel saw come "the glory of the God of Israel" (Ezek 43:2,4), the direction in which Jesus ascended from the Mount of Olives and wherefrom He will return (Acts 1:11), and the direction whence the Angel of the Lord will come in the end time (Rev. 7:2). Tertullian informs us that Christian churches are "always" oriented "toward the light".

Origen asserts that the direction of the rising sun obviously indicates that we ought to pray inclining in that direction, an act which symbolizes the soul looking toward the rising of the true light, the Sun of Justice, Jesus Christ.

Saint John Damascene says that, while waiting the coming of the Lord, "we adore Him facing East", for that is the tradition passed down to us from the Apostles. Other Church Fathers who confirm this usage are Clement of Alexandria, Saint Basil and Saint Augustine. To this day, the ancient Coptic Rite of Egypt retains in its Eucharistic liturgy (just before the Sursum corda) the age old exhortation of the deacon: "Look towards the East!"

AUTHOR: FATHER THOMAS KOCIK

In The Reform of the Roman Rite (San Juan Capistrano, Calif.: Una Voce Press; Harrison, N.Y.: Roman Catholic Books, 1993, chaps. XII-XV), the late Monsignor Klaus Gamber, director of the Regensburg Liturgical Institute, demonstrates convincingly that the precedents for freestanding altars with Mass "facing the people" have been highly exaggerated. In agreement with such eminent (and unquestionably orthodox) liturgists as Father Josef A. Jungmann and Father Louis Bouyer, Gamber shows that the practice of celebrating the Eucharist versus populum flourished only in the city of Rome and in parts of North Africa, where the pagan custom of having the façade (rather than the apse) of a temple facing East was continued; But even then, the historical evidence shows that, while the celebrant did in fact face the people, they did not face him, but turned their backs on him during the prayers so that they, too, could face East.

In addition to the historical and theological justifications for returning to the Eastward-facing position, there are other reasons. Akin to Muggeridge's observations is this critique, from a psychological perspective, of Mass versus populum: While in the past, the priest functioned as the anonymous go between, the first among the faithful, facing God and not the people, representative of all and together with them offering the Sacrifice, while reciting prayers that have been prescribed for him today he is a distinct person, with personal characteristics, his personal lifestyle, his face turned towards the people. For many priests this change is a temptation they cannot handle.... Some priests are quite adept some less so at taking personal advantage of a situation.

Their gestures, their facial expressions, their movements, their overall behavior, all serve to subjectively attract attention to their person.... To [some priests], the level of success in their performance is a measure of their personal power and thus the indicator of their feeling of personal security and selfassurance. (K. G. Rey, "Pubertätserscheinungen in der Katholischen Kirche" ["Signs of Puberty in the Catholic Church"], Kritische Texte, Vol. 4 (Benzinger), pg. 25; quoted in Gamber, pp. 8687 and 16970).

Simply put, the Latinrite liturgy must be literally reoriented. (Whenever I hear the Advent hymn "People Look East", I am always tempted to interject, "including the priest!") The Eastward position emphasizes an eschatological note that is both biblical and patristic. It avoids focusing attention on the personality and mannerisms of the celebrant and reminds us that he is important only insofar as he stands at the altar in persona Christi, offering the Sacrifice of Calvary. Moreover, it symbolizes a worshipping community open to the world beyond the here and now, on pilgrimage to the Promised Land.

In fact, the current Sacramentary implicitly presumes that the priest is not facing the people when celebrating Mass; otherwise he would not be instructed by the GIRM and by the rubrics to "face the people" at specific moments of the Mass and then to turn back to face the altar (86, 107, 115, 116, 122, 198, and 199; Order of Mass, 2, 25, 104, 105, 111 and 113.)

I believe there are already signs that a return to the traditional orientation would be favorably received, not just by older Catholics, but by the young who have never experienced Mass ad orientem. One hears of the growing number of young Catholics, born well after Vatican II ended, who are drawn to the Tridentine Mass. They find in the old liturgy the sense of mystery and transcendence sorely lacking in the modern rite (as it is commonly practiced), owing largely to what is perhaps the most notable feature of the old rite (besides the Latin language): the priest facing liturgical East.
