Practicing Faith

Question:

I'd like to make some new resolutions about practicing the faith in our family during the year. Do you have any suggestions?

Answer:

The family is the most essential space for the formation of values and character. Practicing your faith as a family can happen both internally and externally. Consistent prayer together builds habits that can last a lifetime. With younger children, praying together as a family in the evening or at dinnertime could be fairly doable most nights. In the evening, select a few common prayers such as the Our Father, Hail Mary, or Guardian Angel prayer. Ask each of your children to thank God for three things that day and include a time for children and adults alike to pray out loud for special needs in your family. This practice could be done with older children, committed to intentional efforts in the midst of increasingly busy schedules.

Look for other opportunities to practice the faith outside the home as well. Sunday Mass should already be part of your family's weekly routine. Consider setting other monthly goals as well. This could be a family service project in your city, attending the sacrament of Confession together, or hosting a hospitality night in your home. Get your children involved in the planning process. Ask them where they'd like to volunteer or who they think is having a hard time and might need a special night just for them. Rather than simply imposing new practices, your whole family can have a dynamic role understanding and integrating faith and life.

Everyday Stewardship

Recognizing God in your

Ordinary Moments

Practicing Graciousness in the Desert

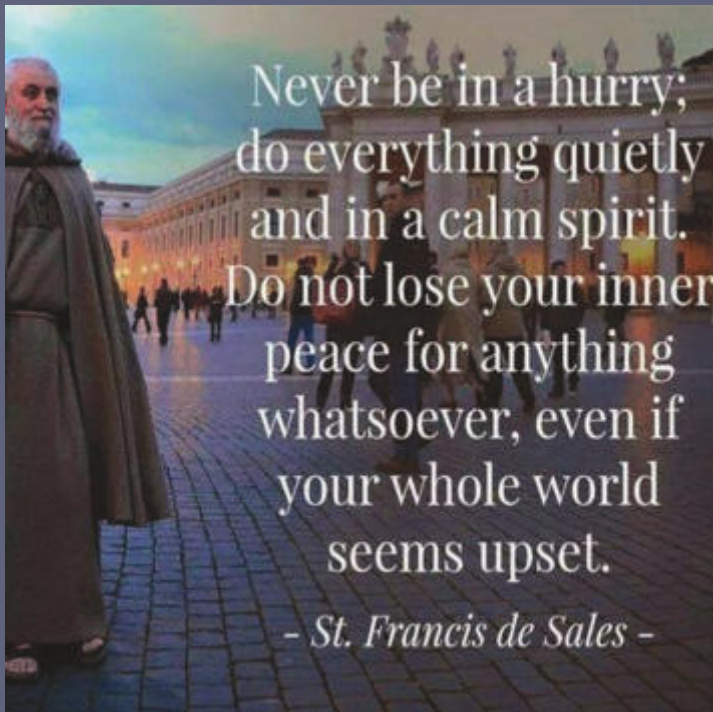

Looking back over my journey of parenthood, I know there were days when I traveled the extra mile for my children. I made their toast the way they like it, let them play in the park an extra ten minutes, or let them go to the movies with their friends and I finished up the chores on my own. And then, it happened: the attitude. The request for the smallest thing from one of them is met with disdain or bewilderment.

Sometimes you can be made breathless with the ingratitude of another person who takes so much and with so little shame, only to scoff at the idea that they, too, give even the smallest amount. But if we're being honest with ourselves, we will admit that we do the exact same thing to God. Haven't we all been the Israelites in the desert at one point or another? God has parted our Red Sea in some way. He's led us out of some great trial, given us some great blessings. But then we run into a little resistance somewhere along the way and we throw up our hands. How could you do this to us, Lord? How could you ask this of us? No, I can't go any further. No, I won't do any more.

Persisting in the blindness to the many ways God continues to protect us is nothing short of a temper tantrum. It robs our Everyday Stewardship of its graciousness, of our ability to accept with joy the trials of life because we are also constantly aware of its blessings.

VATICAN CORNER

Twenty-five years after Michelangelo painted his masterpiece the: 'Ceiling of the Sistine Chapel', and after a long, successful period working for the Medici family in Florence, he returned to the Vatican to work. He was welcomed by Pope Clement VII who commissioned him to paint a new fresco on the altar wall of the Sistine Chapel. A fresco is a technique of using wet paint on a freshly plastered wall so that it blends into the plastered surface. He had used that same technique years earlier when lying on his back painting the Chapel ceiling. Soon after the commissioning, the Pope died, but his successor Pope Paul III, had the work continue until finished. It began in 1534 and ended seven years later when Michelangelo was 67. That painting: 'The Last Judgment' shows the Second Coming of Jesus Christ and mankind being judged by God. It was a popular subject for an artist during the Renaissance period; and Giotto who is thought to be the father of the Renaissance had painted his version for the Scrovegni Chapel in Padova, Italy. However Michelangelo's unique style made the painting very controversial and it was both loved and hated when it was finished. The painting has over 300 figures with Christ sitting in the middle with his hand raised in judgment over the damned that are sinking into Hell. A Greek and Roman mythological character is taking souls to Hell in a boat and Hell is full of ghouls. Christ has rippling muscles and sits next to a sedate Virgin Mary looking at those people who have been saved. Michelangelo apparently painted his own face on Saint Bartholomew sitting on a cloud just below Christ's left foot. The figure of the Saint has skin in his hand because he was martyred after being skinned alive. There is another figure with donkey ears (representing foolishness) and with a snake wrapped around him biting his private parts. The face of Pope Paul III's Master of Ceremonies Biagio da Cesena was painted on Minos the mythological judge in Hell because he probably angered Michelangelo.. Da Cesena complained but Pope Paul III instead joked that his power did not extend to Hell, so the portrait had to stay as is. Many viewers of the fresco were not happy with the mythology mixed with religious figures and the large amount of nudity. But others appreciated the artistry and genius of the painting style. In 1563 the Church installed new reforms on religious art and probably after Michelangelo's death a painter covered up the naked private parts of the figures with drapery. About 40 figures were altered with painted drapery and two figures were completely repainted. Since the modifications were done later in dry fresco, they were easier to remove when the Sistine Chapel was restored in the 1990s. Fifteen drapery coverings were removed but some were left in place to help explain the history of the artwork. Today most art critics consider the work a masterpiece. Coming to San Francisco in September, 2021 is an exhibition of the pictures of Michelangelo's Sistine Chapel. Using licensed high definition photos and a special printing technique it is said that it will be possible to see every detail, every brushstroke, and every color of the 34 Michelangelo's frescoes, including 'The last Judgment' of the exhibition. The exhibit promoters write that "whether visitors have already been to the Sistine Chapel or not, everyone can admire the artwork up close, at their own pace, and with the ability to capture photographic memories of this iconic work. The entire experience will last about 60 to 90 minutes, and is set to take place at an exciting secret San Francisco venue.
