RECOGNIZE GOD IN YOUR ORDINARY MOMENTS

Faith Like a Child

If you Google Search recommendations on how to raise generous children, almost every list of ideas begins with — or at least contains — the directive for adults to be good models of generosity themselves. Our children learn from our actions much more than from our words. Of course, when I think back over the years while my children were growing up, I think I may have learned as much from them as they learned from me. There is a time between early childhood and middle school where a child seems to be freer to give and share than at any other time in life. It is around the age of First Communion when the cries of “mine” turn to laughter and smiles, and the urge to be a part of something bigger than oneself leads to sharing. Before you know it, the child hits the pre-teen years, and once again, he or she becomes the center of the universe.

I believe that the previous paragraph is all true, however, the stages described seem to repeat themselves throughout adulthood. Don't you agree? Sometimes we fall into seeing ourselves as the center of the universe, or we become consumed by our state in life or with what we have acquired. Also, we at times are generous and loving people. It is sin that draws us back into ourselves and away from any meaningful life of stewardship and generosity. In order to be freed for love, we need role models to help us see what really matters. We need to reflect on the example of many of our brothers and sisters in Christ. And, yes, we need to look to children who may be at the point in their lives where sharing is fun, and love is something in abundance.

RECONOCE A DIOS EN TUS MOMENTOS ORDINARIOS

Fe como un Niño

Si buscas en Google las recomendaciones sobre cómo criar hijos generosos, casi todas las listas de ideas comienzan con, o al menos contienen, la directive para que los adultos sean buenos modelos de generosidad. Nuestros niños aprenden de nuestras acciones mucho más que de nuestras palabras. Por supuesto, cuando pienso en los años mientras mis hijos crecían, creo que aprendí tanto de ellos como ellos aprendieron de mí. Hay un tiempo entre la infancia temprana y la escuela secundaria en el que un niño parece ser más libre para dar y compartir que en cualquier otro momento de la vida. Es alrededor de la edad de la Primera Comunión cuando los gritos de "mío" se convierten en risas y sonrisas, y la necesidad de ser parte de algo más grande que uno mismo lleva a compartir. Antes de que te des cuenta, el niño llega a los años de la preadolescencia y, una vez más, se convierte en el centro del universo.

Creo que el párrafo anterior es todo cierto, sin embargo, las etapas descritas parecen repetirse a lo largo de la edad adulta. ¿No estás de acuerdo? A veces caemos en vernos a nosotros mismos como el centro del universo, o nos consumimos por nuestro estado en la vida o con lo que hemos adquirido. Asimismo, a veces somos personas generosas y amorosas. Es el pecado lo que nos atrae de nuevo a nosotros mismos y nos aleja de cualquier vida significativa de responsabilidad y generosidad. Para ser libres para amar, necesitamos modelos a seguir que nos ayuden a ver lo que realmente importa. Necesitamos reflexionar sobre el ejemplo de muchos de nuestros hermanos y hermanas en Cristo. Y sí, tenemos que mirar a los niños que pueden estar en el punto de sus vidas donde compartir es divertido y el amor es algo en abundancia.

June 22, 2023 was the 40th anniversary of the disappearance of Emanuela Orlandi the 15-year-old schoolgirl and daughter of a Vatican lay employee of the papal household. She went missing after a music lesson in central Rome. Her father reported her missing to the police and the search for her began the next morning. Her photo was published in the Italian newspapers and Pope John Paul II issued an appeal to those responsible for her disappearance. There have been many theories about what happened to her, such as it being linked to a plot to kill Pope John Paul II; or being a kidnapping by the Roman underworld and connected to a Vatican Bank financial scandal; or she was the victim of a group of priestly pedophiles; or she was taken and is still alive living in central Europe or the Middle East. Over the years questions were asked why the Vatican never opened an official investigation into the disappearance. The official answer was that the disappearance was on Italian territory, and it fell under Italian jurisdiction. However some information suggests that the Vatican may have also made an investigation of its own. In 2001, a skull was found in a bag in a confessional in San Gregorio VII church near the Vatican. It turned out not to be Orlandi's, but it publicized again the mystery of her disappearance. On Good Friday, 2007 Reverend Raniero Cantalamessa in St. Peter's Basilica advised the congregation to make amends for sins before dying. This got people thinking that he was talking to someone in the Vatican who might have information about the Orlandi disappearance. Vatican spokesperson Rev. Federico Lombardi issued a detailed statement regarding Vatican cooperation with the Italian investigators over the years and that all materials from the Vatican had been handed over to them. In October 2018, the Orlandi family received an anonymous letter which suggested where Emanuela's body may have been buried. The Vatican opened the site and did not find her remains, but did find many ancient bones that were unknown to be there. In October 2022, Netflix released a four-part documentary entitled Vatican Girl which explored different theories surrounding her disappearance. On January 9, 2023, the Vatican opened its first official investigation and Pope Francis appointed Alessandro Diddi to lead the probe. Italian investigators have also reopened their own investigations. Diddi's office reported that they "collected all the evidence available in the various institutions of the Vatican and the Holy See, while also seeking evidence through conversations with persons in charge of certain offices at the time of the events." They proceeded "to examine the material, confirming certain lines of investigation worthy of further investigation" and all the relevant documentation has been transmitted "to the Public Prosecutor's Office in Rome, so that the latter may examine it and proceed in the direction it deems most appropriate." On Sunday June 25, 2023, Pope Francis addressed the crowd in St. Peter's Square, including Orlandi's brother Pietro standing with a group of supporters holding up photographs and banners that called for "truth" and "justice". He offered prayers and solidarity to the Orlandi's family. Francis said he wanted "to express once again my closeness to her family, especially her mother, assuring my prayers." Pietro Orlandi said he welcomed the Pope's remark, calling them "a positive signal" and "a good step forward." Earlier in 2023, Pietro Orlandi played an audio tape on Italian television from an alleged gangster who said girls were brought into the Vatican to be molested and that Pope John Paul II knew about it. Pope Francis called those allegations offensive and unfounded insinuations".
