VATICAN CORNER

An Italian priest who refuses to accept Pope Francis as the Pope called Francis, a “masonic Jesuit”. That priest has since been excommunicated for his disloyalty. It is correct that Pope Francis is from the Roman Catholic order of Jesuits, founded by St. Ignatius of Loyola, of which the order is noted for its educational, missionary, and charitable works. However Pope Francis is not a Mason, and he reaffirmed to the Vatican’s Department of the Doctrine of the Faith, in November, 2023, that the Catholic Faith and Freemasonry are incompatible. Filipino Bishop Julito Cortes of Dumanguete in the Philippines expressed his concern to the Vatican’s Department of the Doctrine of the Faith, of the continuous increase in the number of members of Freemasonry in his diocese. The Vatican, with the approval of Pope Francis, advised the Bishop that “active membership in Freemasonry by a member of the faithful, or by any priest, is prohibited. The Vatican suggested that instructions should be given in all the parishes of that diocese to explain the ‘irreconcilability between the Catholic faith and Freemasonry.’” The Code of Canon Law published in 1917 condemned Freemasonry and stated that excommunication was the penalty for those who were affiliated with Freemasonry. The new Code of Canon Law of 1983 approved by John Paul II did not explicitly condemn Freemasonry, but said that Catholics affiliated with Masonic lodges are “in a state of grave sin and may not approach Holy Communion.” The association of Masons, also known as Freemasons, began in the early 1700s accepting non-craftsmen as member due to the decline of cathedral building in the aftermath of the Protestant movement. Eventually the guilds became places for the discussion of ethics and morality while retaining their secret signs, symbols and gestures of the original guild. Freemasonry defined itself as “a science which is engaged in the search after the divine truth.” Masons hold that God, “the Great Architect,” founded Freemasonry, and list Jesus as “the Grand Master” of the Christian Church. The Catholic Church believes that Freemasonry is a kind of religion unto itself, with its temples, altars, a moral code, worship services, vestments, feast days, a hierarchy of leadership, initiation rites, burial rites, and promises of eternal reward and punishment. The cross is considered merely a symbol of nature and eternal life, without Christ’s sacrifice for sin. Freemasonry has traditionally been enemies with royalty and the Catholic pope. When one reaches the 30th degree in the Masonic hierarchy, the person crushes with his foot the papal tiara and the royal crown, and swears to free mankind “from the bondage of despotism and the slavery of spiritual tyranny. The bishops of the United States in 1985 affirmed the negative position on Masonic associations, since their principles are regarded as irreconcilable with the Church’s doctrine. Many other Christian bodies condemn Freemasonry, including many Lutherans, Evangelicals, Pentecostals, Baptists, Orthodox, and the Mormons. Freemasonry treats all religions as equal but inferior to its own wisdom. The Catholic Church and Freemasonry can never be reconciled.
