RECOGNIZE GOD IN YOUR ORDINARY MOMENTS

What We Carry from Town to Town

In my experience, there are two kinds of people: the folks who kick off their shoes the second they walk through the door, and the ones who don't. People can feel strongly about this on both sides.

The main thrust of the Shoes-Off Brigade seems to be this: we track a lot of weird stuff on the soles of our feet. Little reminders of all the places we've been — whether it's a private home or a public bathroom — cling to our shoes long after we leave.

This same theory applies to our spiritual lives. As human beings and as disciples, we visit a lot of figurative towns and pick up a lot of figurative dust. Sinfulness. Shame. Defeat. Anger. Fear. Doubt. No matter how hard we try to keep free of it, these things have a way of attaching themselves to us, sometimes without us even noticing. We need to take a good look at what unhelpful and unconstructive baggage from our past we're tracking into our present and future encounters.

What is the "town" God is asking you to visit today in His name? Is it a tough conversation with a friend, a brief witness to a stranger in the checkout line, a call to be present to someone in your family? Before you go, remember, shake off the dust. Don't let a past disappointment constrain you. Don't allow yesterday's failures or burdens to keep you from the joy of today's witness, whatever form it might take.

RECONOCE A DIOS EN TUS MOMENTOS ORDINARIOS

Lo que llevamos de pueblo en pueblo

En mi experiencia, hay dos tipos de personas: las personas que se quitan los zapatos en el momento en que entran por la puerta y las que no lo hacen.

La gente puede sentirse muy convencida de esto en ambos lados. El principal impulso de la Brigada sin zapatos parece ser el siguiente: rastreamos muchas cosas raras en las plantas de nuestros pies. Pequeños recordatorios de todos los lugares en los que hemos estado, ya sea una casa privada o un baño público, se aferran a nuestros zapatos mucho después de que nos vamos.

Esta misma teoría se aplica a nuestra vida espiritual. Como seres humanos y como discípulos, visitamos muchos pueblos figurativos y recogemos mucho polvo figurativo. Pecaminosidad. Vergüenza. Fracaso. Enojo. Miedo. Duda. No importa cuánto tratemos de mantenernos libres de ellas, estas cosas tienen una forma de adherirse a nosotros, a veces sin que nos demos cuenta. Necesitamos echar un buen vistazo al equipaje inútil y poco constructivo de nuestro pasado que estamos rastreando en nuestros encuentros presentes y futuros.

¿Cuál es la "ciudad" que Dios te pide que visites hoy en Su nombre? ¿Es una conversación difícil con un amigo, un breve testimonio a un extraño en la fila de la caja, una llamada para estar presente con alguien de tu familia? Antes de irte, recuerda, sacúdete el polvo. No dejes que una decepción pasada te limite. No permitas que los fracasos o las cargas de ayer te alejen del gozo del testimonio de hoy, cualquiera que sea la forma que adoptes.

VATICAN CORNER

Many times reports of Marian apparitions and other divine phenomena end up on the front page of the newspaper well before a bishop can determine if they are authentic. Due to shortages of church personnel and the expense of an investigation, the determination period can get quite long. In the case described below, the first local bishop avoided intervention for years, saying “We need time” while the crowds grew larger and tensions among the Catholic community grew. It was finally with a new bishop in March of 2024 when a more aggressive approach was taken. Italian’s had been captivated by the stories of alleged sightings of the Madonna at the town of Trevignano, a small town of 6,000 people, located about 40 minutes north of Rome on the shores of Lake Bracciano. There were alleged sightings of Mary and Jesus by an alleged visionary who claimed to regularly communicate with them. A statue of Mary called the Madonna at Trevignano allegedly shed tears of blood and there were stories of the miraculous multiplication of gnocchi. The story began when a 54-year old Sicilian, woman Maria Biuseppa Scarpulla also known as Gisella Cardia, moved to Trevignano after receiving a two-year suspended sentence for bankruptcy when her ceramics firm in Sicily went broke in 2013. Cardia the supposed visionary had purchased a statue of Mary at the Bosnian apparition shrine of Medjugorje, and set up a makeshift shrine containing the statue on a hillside in Trevignano. Cardia would tell the stories of her being with the Madonna and how her statue wept blood. On the third day of every month for six years Cardia hosted apparition events, passing on messages from the Madonna, including describing catastrophes Satan was brewing, including the destruction of Rome by an earthquake, and the takeover of the Catholic Church by Communism. She said she discovered that at apparition events the gnocchi and pizza multiplied to feed the hundreds of visitors. She created a nonprofit association that accepted donations. New local Bishop Marco Salvi, after consulting with experts in Mariology, psychology, and canon law, declared the apparitions were “not supernatural”. He described several theological errors in the supposed Marian messages, including one that asked pilgrims to pray on a specific hillside where angels would make them invisible. On March 6, 2024, the Vatican’s doctrinal watchdog confirmed the decree by the local bishop that the alleged apparitions were not supernatural, and he warned the faithful to refrain from organizing or attending gatherings at the alleged apparition site. Cardia said “I intend to keep staying here and I won’t budge an inch because I’m in the house of God and I have the Madonna on my side”. The Vatican’s new norms for investigating alleged apparitions calls for local bishops to act quickly and decisively when faced with an alleged apparition or an alleged supernatural occurrence, yet cautions against a rush to judgment.
