Why We Must Oppose Some Freedoms

It might sound wrong, even un-American, to say that some freedoms are not good and we should oppose them. After all, we all want the freedom to decide what we will eat, what we will buy and what job we will have. We rightfully treasure our freedom of speech and our freedom of religion. Shouldn't we welcome and accept all freedoms? Short answer: No! Sometimes a freedom desired by one person means severe harm for others, and so that freedom must be opposed.

Imagine a teenager with a large pickup truck who says, "I want the freedom to go as fast as I want, without stopping for red lights!"

Exercising that freedom will very likely result in injury or death to others. The freedom of that person to drive like that can easily result in the loss of freedom for others. That is why the police enforce laws against that kind of freedom.

Or what about somebody who insists on the freedom to take illegal, dangerous and highly addictive drugs? He might insist, "I am free to do what I want with my own body!" But his use of those drugs is likely to hurt many people besides himself. Many illicit drug users turn to theft and violence in order to support their expensive habits. Beside, the money they pay for the illegal drugs often ends up in the hands of the cartels which are terrorizing Mexico. One person's freedom to use illegal, dangerous and addictive drugs will likely mean that many others will lose their freedom to live in peace. People of all faiths and people of no faith should be able to agree that we must oppose those freedoms which cause unjustified harm or death to others.

In the 1850's a black slave named Dred Scott filed a lawsuit in the United States, claiming the right to be free. But his owner insisted on his own freedom, his freedom to own slaves. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled, in Dred Scot vs. Sandford, in favor of the freedom of the owner to have slaves. The Dred Scott decision was a factor leading to the Civil War. The decision was finally overturned in 1868 by the ratification of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution.

About 50 years ago, many people demanded the freedom to abort unborn babies. In 1973 the U.S. Supreme Court decided in Roe vs. Wade that all of the many laws of that time restricting or prohibiting abortions violated the U.S. Constitution. The Court somehow claimed that their ruling was based on the 14th Amendment to the Constitution [which was passed when most states had laws against abortion]! Because of that ruling, all 50 states were forced to allow abortions at practically any time before birth. Of course, by allowing people the freedom to have abortions, the Court was taking away the freedom of millions of prenatal girls and boys to live.

On Friday, June 24th, the Solemnity of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, 6 members of the U.S. Supreme Court finally corrected that terrible decision, courageously ruling that states may have laws to protect babies before they are born. That ruling does not make abortion illegal in the United States, but it allows each state to decide whether or not to protect prenatal babies.

If we choose to exercise a freedom which we know will harm or even kill others, we are denying the dignity of those who will be hurt by our actions. That is how sin hardens our hearts to others. And when our hearts are hardened, we easily develop habits of sinning again and again. So, exercising the freedom to sin, we become slaves of our sins. As Jesus said, "Amen, amen, I say to you, everyone who commits sin is a slave of sin." (John 8: 34) In fact, serious sin (called mortal sin), if unforgiven, can lead us to hell, where we lose all our freedoms.

If you know of anybody who has been involved in any serious sin, remind them that God is our merciful Father who longs to forgive us when we are sorry for our sins, especially in the sacrament of Confession (John 20:19-23). When we confess to a priest and we intend not to sin again, God will always forgive us and help us return to Him. Jesus came to set us free from our slavery to sin! May we oppose those freedoms which cause harm or even death to others. May we choose instead the true freedom of being God's children, loving others as He loves us.

Por qué debemos oponernos a algunas libertades

Puede sonar mal, incluso antiestadounidense, decir que algunas libertades no son buenas y debemos oponernos a ellas. Después de todo, todos queremos la libertad de decidir qué comeremos, qué compraremos y qué trabajo tendremos. Atesoramos legítimamente nuestra libertad de expresión y nuestra libertad de religión. ¿No deberíamos acoger y aceptar todas las libertades? Respuesta corta: ¡No! A veces, una libertad deseada por una persona significa un daño severo para otros, y por eso hay que oponerse a esa libertad.

Imagine a un adolescente con una camioneta grande que dice: "Quiero la libertad de ir tan rápido como quiere, sin detenerse en los semáforos en rojo!" Ejercer esa libertad muy probablemente resultará en lesiones o la muerte a otros. La libertad de esa persona para conducir así puede resultar fácilmente en la pérdida de libertad para los demás. Por eso la policía hace cumplir las leyes contra ese tipo de libertad.

¿O qué pasa con alguien que insiste en la libertad de tomar drogas ilegales, peligrosas y altamente adictivas? Podría insistir: "¡Soy libre de hacer lo que quiera con mi propio cuerpo!". Pero es probable que su uso de esas drogas perjudique a muchas personas además de él. Muchos usuarios de drogas ilícitas recurren al robo y la violencia para mantener sus costosos hábitos. Además, el dinero que pagan por las drogas ilegales muchas veces termina en manos de los cárteles que aterrorizan a México. La libertad de una persona para usar drogas ilegales, peligrosas y adictivas probablemente signifique que muchas otras perderán su libertad de vivir en paz. Las personas de todos los credos y las personas sin credo deberían poder estar de acuerdo en que debemos oponernos a aquellas libertades que causan daños injustificados o la muerte a otros.

En la década de 1850, un esclavo negro llamado Dred Scott presentó una demanda en los Estados Unidos, reclamando el derecho a ser libre. Pero su dueño insistió en su propia libertad, su libertad para poseer esclavos. La Corte Suprema de los Estados Unidos falló, en Dred Scott vs. Sandford, a favor de la libertad del dueño de tener esclavos. La decisión de Dred Scott fue un factor que condujo a la Guerra Civil. La decisión fue finalmente anulada en 1868 por la ratificación de la 14ª Enmienda a la Constitución.

Hace unos 50 años, muchas personas exigieron la libertad de abortar bebés por nacer. En 1973, la Corte Suprema de los EE. UU. decidió en Roe vs. Wade que todas las muchas leyes de esa época que restringían o prohibían los abortos violaban la Constitución de los EE. UU. ¡La corte de alguna manera afirmó que su decisión se basó en la Enmienda 14 de la Constitución [que se aprobó cuando la mayoría de los estados tenían leyes contra el aborto]! Debido a ese fallo, los 50 estados se vieron obligados a permitir los abortos prácticamente en cualquier momento antes del nacimiento. Por supuesto, al permitir a las personas la libertad de abortar, la Corte les estaba quitando la libertad de vivir a millones de niñas y niños prenatales.

El viernes 24 de junio, Solemnidad del Sagrado Corazón de Jesús, 6 miembros de la Corte Suprema de los Estados Unidos finalmente corrigieron esa terrible decisión, dictaminando valientemente que los estados pueden tener leyes para proteger a los bebés antes de que nazcan. Ese fallo no hace que el aborto sea ilegal en los Estados Unidos, pero permite que cada estado decida si protege o no a los bebés prenatales.

Si elegimos ejercer una libertad que sabemos que dañará o incluso matará a otros, estamos negando la dignidad de aquellos que serán heridos por nuestras acciones. Así es como el pecado endurece nuestro corazón hacia los demás. Y cuando nuestros corazones están endurecidos, fácilmente desarrollamos hábitos de pecado una y otra vez. Así, ejerciendo la libertad de pecar, nos convertimos en esclavos de nuestros pecados. Como dijo Jesús: "Amén, amén, os digo que todo el que comete pecado es esclavo del pecado". (Juan 8: 34) De hecho, el pecado grave (llamado pecado mortal), si no se perdona, puede llevarnos al infierno, donde perdemos todas nuestras libertades.

Si conoces a alguien que haya estado involucrado en algún pecado grave, recuérdale que Dios es nuestro Padre misericordioso que anhela perdonarnos cuando nos arrepentimos de nuestros pecados, especialmente en el sacramento de la Confesión (Juan 20:19-23). Cuando nos confesamos con un sacerdote y tenemos la intención de no volver a pecar, Dios siempre nos perdonará y nos ayudará a volver a Él. ¡Jesús vino a liberarnos de nuestra esclavitud al pecado! Que podamos oponernos a aquellas libertades que causan daño o incluso la muerte a otros. Que elijamos en cambio la verdadera libertad de ser hijos de Dios, amando a los demás como Él nos ama.
