For the Life of the World

In the Holy Eucharist, our Lord is not the master who commands; he is not the king who gives orders and whom we cannot resist without incurring penalty. He is a friend, a friend who loves us madly from all eternity; a friend who since our birth has never ceased pursuing us with his love, crying out: "My child, my brother, give me your heart." He is a devoted friend who has extended his arms for long years without becoming discouraged by our indifference and our refusal; for all that, a friend who can expect nothing from us, from whom we hold everything, who still prepares us for gifts without number, so that finally he will introduce us into his Kingdom, give us a share in his glory and his eternity, allow us to sit by his side, open his heart to us, and unite us to himself so closely that, according to his own words, we become one with him, just as he and the heavenly Father are one.

Well, represent to yourself, or rather imagine that's what it is, because it is the reality; imagine that you are going to receive a friend with no equal in the world, from whom you have been separated for some forty years, by your own fault; imagine that you have had some wrongs against him which he has completely forgotten, that he is eager to receive you into his arms, to press you to his heart, to give himself to you, to unite you to himself in the closest way possible in this world, to renew with you the relationships of a hearty, eternal friendship.

Blessed Jean-Joseph Lataste

Blessed Jean-Joseph Lataste († 1869) was a French Dominican priest who, after preaching a retreat to women in prison, founded the Dominican Sisters of Bethany. / From My Dear Sisters: Life of Bl.
