REMEMBER FAMILY AND FRIENDS WITH A CONTRIBUTION TO THE COMFORT GOLDEN AGE CENTER THIS HOLIDAY SEASON.

As we enter into a very unique 2020 Holiday Season . . . when shopping will be very difficult or restrictive, what can we give that is sanitary and virus free?

How about a gift to a favorite non-profit in honor of the recipient? For example, I will be giving a financial gift in honor of my grandchildren to the church that my daughter's family attend.

What better way to help our local charities during a difficult time while honoring and remembering loving family and friends? Please join Kathy and me in a contribution to the Comfort Golden Age Center recognizing the senior adults in your life.

LOCAL HISTORY

BARTOLO GARCIA

From Mexican Revolutionary with Pancho Villa to the Caboose in Comfort, Texas

Part 2 of 2

I could hear a small giggle from her. She knew the real truth! She said, “No. It was a very small trailer.” I asked, “Why was it called a caboose?” Again I could hear her giggling. She said, “Back then in the 1940s and 1950s someone called it a caboose. It got stuck with that name but it was really a small trailer.” It was a caboose, now it is a trailer. History was changed.

Then the Great Flood hit our town, Comfort, Texas, August 2, 1978, and washed the “caboose” away! It was a day no one in Comfort will ever forget. I remember that day. My wife, Lucy, and I barely made it out of the house. The water was rising very fast.

We lived on the corner of 7th and Broadway Streets. That area was and still is called “The Flats”. The water was up to the floorboard in our car. Many houses were destroyed. Nothing was spared. And as for the “caboose” it was gone! It was nowhere to be seen ever again. It is now July 6, 2020 and that flood was 42 years ago.

Bringing this all together is Bartolo Garcia who told about his life to his niece, Julia Garcia Arizola. During his time in power, Villa himself kidnapped Bartolo. Bartolo rode beside Pancho Villa. When he rode with Villa, he also fought beside Villa. Again Bartolo himself told the stories to his niece, Julia, of the brutalities that they had done while riding with Pancho Villa.

Because Bartolo was “Un Dorado de Villa” he was able to have “any woman he wanted single or married, anything he wanted, legally or illegally.” The story in Garcia Roots continued, “He would ride into his parents’ ranch and shoot all the chickens.”

There was a horror story he also personally told his niece, Julia. He told about a boy they kidnapped, took him to a cave, chained him and left him to die. Bartolo never forgave himself. It is not yet known what year Bartolo left his life in Villa’s army and crossed the Rio Grande into the United States.

While living in Comfort, Bartolo worked for Mr. Stieler, Mr. Adolph Stieler, “goat king of the world”, Bartolo worked as a cook. It is said he made “really good biscuits.” He also helped out with “odd jobs around the ranch.” Sometime during the 1940s or 50s Bartolo moved into town and lived behind the Garcia home on 7th Street. He took up residence in the caboose.

There was “moonshine back in them days” and he drank lots of moonshine. Julie said that when there was no moonshine to drink that Bartolo drank rubbing alcohol.

He was a very good horseman. He trained his horse to stand on its hind legs. There are no known pictures of Bartolo but I talked to my other favorite cousin, Patricia “Patsy” Ontiveros Bill. (P.S. They are all my favorite cousins.) Patsy’s husband, Jerry, loves talking about Area 51 in Roswell, New Mexico.

Patsy was a little girl about 9 or 10 years old when Bartolo lived in the “caboose.” She said she took his meals to him and he would give her pennies and nickels. She would go across the street to Juanita Castro’s store to buy candy.

I asked her, “Do you remember what he looks like?” She said, “Yes.” Wow! I finally got someone who remembered what he looked like. Amazing. This was good news for me. She goes on to say “he had black-and-white -pepper hair, a light beard and a mustache. He was very scary looking. She also recalled seeing riding gear like spurs and quirts or whips in the “caboose” where he lived. I will take what I can get.

Now I have another cousin, Janie, from San Antonio. She says she has a picture of the “caboose” and now I have to wait until she finds it. Well, I guess I just have to sit on my rocking chair and wait.

Bartolo Garcia was born May 2, 1878 in Mexico, died November 6, 1959 in Comfort and is buried in San Jose Cemetery, Comfort, Texas. On his tombstone is engraved the legend: Un Dorado de Villa.
