Eleventh Sunday in Ordinary Time

On this Eleventh Sunday in Ordinary Time, Jesus uses two short parables – the seed growing secretly and the mustard seed to explain the Kingdom of God. Each parable contains a simple, single message. The first parable seeks to inculcate trust in Jesus, because in Him God's kingdom is already taming root and growing. Invisible, at first, the seeds of this Kingdom will eventually reap a bountiful harvest. The Good News of Salvation will well up goodness in the hearts of all believers and the goodness will attract the rest of the humanity to the wonderful life of the redeemed in Christ. The parable of the mustard seed – like the first – also speaks of growth with the added stress that the enormity of the tree so strikingly contrasts the smallness of the seed. The seed symbolizes the insignificant beginnings of Jesus' ministry, while the huge tree suggests the final cosmic event of the fulfillment of God's kingdom. Are we making part of God's Kingdom?

June 13th St Anthony Preaches to the Fishes

St. Anthony preached for several days to a great number of heretics, reasoning with them on the faith of Christ and on the Holy Scriptures. They not only resisted his words, but were hardened and obstinate, refusing to listen to him.

At last St. Anthony, inspired by God, went down to the sea-shore, and began to speak to the fishes as if the Lord had sent him to preach to them, and said: "Listen to the word of God, O ye fishes of the sea and of the river, seeing that the faithless heretics refuse to do so."

No sooner had he spoken these words than suddenly so great a multitude of fishes, both small and great, approached the bank on which he stood, that never before had so many been seen in the sea or the river. All kept their heads out of the water, and seemed to be looking attentively on St. Anthony's face; all were ranged in perfect order and most peacefully.

St. Anthony began to preach to them most solemnly, saying: "My brothers the fishes, you are bound, as much as is in your power, to return thanks to your Creator, who has given you so noble an element for your dwelling; for God, your bountiful and kind Creator, when He made you, ordered you to increase and multiply, and gave you His blessing. In the universal deluge, all other creatures perished; you alone did God preserve from all harm. By a singular mystery you were the nourishment of the eternal King, Jesus Christ, before and after His resurrection. Because of all these things you are bound to praise and bless the Lord, who has given you blessings so many and so much greater than to other creatures."

At these words the fish began to open their mouths, and bow their heads, endeavoring as much as was in their power to express their reverence and show forth their praise.

St. Anthony, seeing the reverence of the fish towards their Creator, rejoiced greatly in spirit, and said with a loud voice: "Blessed be the eternal God; for the fishes of the sea honor Him more than men without faith, and animals without reason listen to His word with greater attention than sinful heretics."

And while St. Anthony was preaching, the number of fishes increased, and none of them left the place that he had chosen. And the people of the city hearing of the miracle, made haste to go and witness it. With them also came the heretics of whom we have spoken above, who, seeing so wonderful and manifest a miracle, were touched in their hearts; and threw themselves at the feet of St. Anthony to hear his words. The saint then began to expound to them the Catholic faith. He preached so eloquently, that all those heretics were converted, and returned to the true faith of Christ; the faithful also were filled with joy, and greatly comforted, being strengthened in the faith.

"Hammer of Heretics" (1195-1231), Feast Day June 13

"If you are an ardent reader, seek not brilliant and erudite texts; otherwise the demon of haughtiness will strike your heart. But like a wise bee that gathers honey from flowers, so also through your reading obtain healing for your soul."
