A LETTER FROM OUR PASTOR, FR. MATTHEW

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ,

Living our mission to help others come to know the love of Christ and help them to respond with a lived Catholic faith flows from our own relationship with Jesus.

For us to have a living contact with the Lord, we also need to know the Gospels well. Loving someone flows from knowing them. For us, then, like the saints that came before us, we must have the stories of the life of Jesus come alive in our minds and hearts.

A devotional focus of the Catholic Church every October can help us do that. During this month, we highlight the importance of the Holy Rosary and what part it can play in our own discipleship.

The Rosary has pride of place in this month, as we commemorated Our Lady of the Rosary on October 7. The history of this feast day dates back to the Battle of Lepanto, when the greatly outnumbered Christian alliance of naval forces defeated and halted the growing Ottoman Empire, significantly changing the course of history as we now know it. Believers attribute the victory to the call of Pope St. Pius V to the people of Rome to pray the Holy Rosary for a positive outcome when hope seemed lost.

Aside from its historical origins, the celebration of October 7 is significant to us because it puts the importance of the Holy Rosary back on our spiritual radar. We are invited to appreciate, once again, the profound effect it can have on our spiritual lives.

“For me, the Rosary is meditation on the life of Jesus Christ,” says Gabriel Castillo, lay evangelist and author of the book The Power of the Rosary. This simple definition highlights how we focus while praying the Rosary. As we recite the series of Our Father, Hail Mary, and Glory Be prayers, we are invited to imagine and reflect on the scenes of the life of Christ.

Traditionally, each day gives us a different set of scenes of the Gospel to focus on. On Mondays and Saturdays, we contemplate the Joyful Mysteries and the beginning of the life of Christ. On Tuesdays and Fridays, we pray the Sorrowful Mysteries, which focus on the passion and death of Christ. On Thursdays, we pray the Luminous Mysteries, which center on Jesus’ public ministry. On Wednesdays and Sundays, we pray the Glorious Mysteries and reflect on the power of Christ’s resurrection.

Whether you have recently decided to take up this devotion again because of the Holy Month of the Rosary or you have been praying the Rosary daily for a while, we ask our Blessed Mother, who knows Christ best as his first and perfect disciple, to unpack for us the mysteries of her Son so that we might follow him more closely each day.

In Christ,
Fr. Matthew

REFLECTIONS ON BECOMING CATHOLIC

Here parishioners share stories about their journey to becoming Catholic.
May we all continue to grow in deeper friendship with Jesus!

"I went back and forth on this but I wanted to tell you some big news: I'm getting baptized to be a Catholic. I'm a little nervous and embarrassed about telling you (and many others) because there is a part of me that felt like this was a result of my emotional vulnerability and social pressure."

I wrote that nine days before the Easter Vigil, to a lapsed Catholic I loved like a father. I didn't tell him the other part.

I was agnostic most of my life. I used to wonder about praying for sports games. If you throw a Hail Mary and it's dropped, do you just go "meh" and move on? If it's caught, it's gotta be God, right? I didn't know a Hail Mary was a prayer. I thought it was football.

I had married into a Filipino Catholic family and showed up at Mass for my wife. I learned to tuck my knees in so people could get past me to Communion.

Would you like to deepen your friendship with Christ and learn more about becoming Catholic?
Contact Lesli Rivera at lgeerivera@sichurch.com

My father-in-law died in October 2017. He was the one who checked on me down the pew to make sure I was paying attention. We did the novena in our living room, in the spot where he used to sit and watch my kids play. Thirty people on folding chairs. When it was my turn to lead, I scanned ahead for words I could mispronounce. Hail Mary, full of grace. Again. And again. Now and at the hour of our death. Somewhere around the third round, it occurred to me that this is where the football play got its name. Night after night. I said it hundreds of times.

A year later, I was thirty-three, in Fremont with my wife and two small kids, working at a startup. From the outside you couldn't tell. Inside was a whole life of not belonging. I moved at twelve. It was a gift, and I knew it, and I still never felt at home. The American dream was never about freedom or a roof. It was a good school, and then making the move worth it. Winning, by everyone else's score. Teeth clenched, bulldozing through the next problem. More isolated every year, and more selfish. I was sleep deprived and unwell, and I missed him.

One night in November I'm in my truck in the driveway and I can't breathe. My heart skips a beat, then a few, and I am sure I am dying, and I am not ready. I run inside, my back hits the wall, my knees go out, my hands clasp without my telling them to, and I am on the bedroom floor. I ask to be saved, which I have never done in my life. Just: please. Have mercy.

The week after that I barely sleep. And at some point in it, I see God. I still have trouble writing that with the certainty that is in my heart. Bright light and energy, above eye level. It is love. It is mercy. After that, one day of complete peace.

Then the questions started. If that was real, what else is real? Why me? Why now? I ran them day and night and couldn't stop. Eight days after that night on the floor, I was in the hospital.

> "...I see God...It is love. It is mercy. After that, one day of complete peace."

Medicine helped. So did the prayers of a lot of believers around me. They got me through the crisis. What medicine couldn't reach was the hunger. Something had happened to me and I didn't know what it meant, and I could not leave it alone.

I filled notebooks. A doc of questions for a chaplain at my doctor's office. Zoom calls with a Baptist pastor in Chinatown who had been my best friend's dad's seminary roommate. Trips back to the places where it had hit me hardest. Apologetics Discord, Reddit rabbit holes, YouTube at two in the morning. A timeline my wife made. Then I looked up the RCIA page on St. Isidore's website.

I signed up in the fall of 2021. The program is called OCIA now. I asked a lot of questions. One night, I told the director it all reminded me of pledging. I said it like an observation. I didn't say it was the first place I'd belonged since I got off the plane.

He took a moment. Then he took it all the way intellectual. The merits of initiation. Shared experience. Gangs, the kids he'd worked with. I stopped hearing the details. He didn't bend. Alone with a rosary, I was whispering "I believe in God" for months before I could say it out loud.

> "Alone with a rosary,
> I was whispering 'I believe in God'
> for months before I could say it > out loud."

Before the retreat at San Damiano, we were assigned the Samaritan woman at the well: "He told me everything I ever did." I had three years of notebooks. I sent the letter, and left the rest out.

I'm still looking for Him. I threw one on a bedroom floor in Fremont. It was caught. I'm still not sure who caught it. I go to Mass anyway.

Mike, St. Isidore parishioner, husband and father of three, was welcomed into the Catholic Church in 2022.
