Message from the manager

Happy New Year! Now, that 2022 is here, let's hope that this new year will be a happier and healthier one for all. The past two years have been challenging for all of us. Now, it's time to look forward. We hope you and yours are healthy heading into this new year.

Here at the Senior Center, we're proud to have been open five days a week since July while taking precautions to ensure everyone's safety. That being said, the safety of everyone who comes to the Center is our top priority. Everyone who enters the building must be fully vaccinated or wear a mask. We are grateful for everyone's cooperation in this regard.

Our offering of activities has continued to grow. These activities include fitness classes, tai chi, trivia and card games, weekly bingo, computer class, community breakfast and entertainment. Hot and cold lunches are offered each day the Center is open. We're continually look for new programs to offer and welcome your suggestions at any time. Please watch this newsletter along with Facebook, emails and our website for updates.

We hope the coming year is filled with good health and happiness for you. Please make the Center part of your plans. Thank you so much and stay safe!

The Hornets Nest

On our tree lined street, a huge hornets nest hung high in the maple tree in front of our house. It was the end of October, and the nest was vacant. The hornets life span is short lived.

On my daughters routine visits she opened the door and said. "Hi mom, come and see what's at your door." It was the huge hornets nest. A very strong wind broke the limb it hung on, and blew it there.

We examined it carefully. I was in awe to see how beautifully built it was. The scallop pattern was identical all around the hive. I was amazed at their great engineering skills in building their nest. They work diligently until it's complete.

The nest was covered with a silver gray, and brownish material made by the hornets chewing old wood and fibrous plants which is held together by their saliva. I would have never thought of a hornets nest as beautifully built, until I looked at this closely.

Nature provides for all living things, and I find beauty in all nature. My daughter intends to show the hive to all the children in the family, when we all get together for Christmas Eve dinner at her house.
