PASTOR COLUMN

When St. John Vianney arrived in the small village in Ars, it was just like other villages in France in the wake of the French Revolution, that is, there was the loss of faith. The local taverns seemed to be the center of the life of the village. The people were given over to worldliness and pleasure seeking; they were weak and indifferent to the faith and the things of religion.

He ventured out to gather in his scattered sheep: he visited families, got to know them, got to know their moral situation; above all, he prayed: he was seen to wake up early and go to the blessed sacrament to beg conversion for his parishioners.

Two prayers were the bulwark of John Vianney's prayer life, the Divine Office and the Holy Rosary. He could be seen going from home to home praying his office as he traveled; and also the rosary, asking Our Lady for that grace of conversion. He would also hand out rosaries to encourage that devotion among his parishioners.

After 8 years, there was a transformation in the village of Ars. What was at first a place of lukewarmness with respect to the faith became fervent. There was regular attendance at Mass and Catechism lessons.

St. John Vianney is the patron of priests, and also a shining example for all Christians. Perseverance and constant prayer are needed in our mission of spreading the Gospel. God often sends us into those lukewarm, faithless places to rekindle faith and to spread the faith anew. And we mustn't become disheartened when our efforts are not met with immediate success. It takes time for hearts to become warmed to the Gospel, to begin to see the emptiness in living without God.

Constant prayer helps us to remain attuned to God and the heart of the Shepherd, so that we do not become disheartened and to help us love with godless with compassion and patience.

St. John Vianney said: "My dear brethren, not only is prayer very efficacious, but, even more, it is of the utmost necessity for overcoming the enemies of salvation." The enemies and obstacles to salvation in our day are great, may we be fervent in prayer for all those who have fallen away or do not know Christ, and that we may be faithful in working for the glory of God and salvation of souls.
