MASS PROGRAM

FIRST READING

They devoted themselves to the teaching of the apostles and to the communal life, to the breaking of bread and to the prayers. Awe came upon everyone, and many wonders and signs were done through the apostles. All who believed were together and had all things in common; they would sell their property and possessions and divide them among all

Acts 2:42-47

according to each one's need. Every day they devoted themselves to meeting together in the temple area and to breaking bread in their homes. They ate their meals with exultation and sincerity of heart, praising God and enjoying favor with all the people. And every day the Lord added to their number those who were being saved.

RESPONSORIAL PSALM

Give thanks to the LORD for he is good,
his love is everlasting.

Ps 118:2-4, 13-15, 22-24

SECOND READING

Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who in his great mercy gave us a new birth to a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance that is imperishable, undefiled, and unfading, kept in heaven for you who by the power of God are safeguarded through faith, to a salvation that is ready to be revealed in the final time. In this you rejoice, although now for a little while you may have to suffer through various trials, so that the genuineness of your faith, more precious than gold that is perishable even though tested by fire, may prove to be for praise, glory, and honor at the revelation of Jesus Christ. Although you have not seen him you love him; even though you do not see him now yet believe in him, you rejoice with an indescribable and glorious joy, as you attain the goal of your faith, the salvation of your souls.

1 Pt 1:3-9

GOSPEL

On the evening of that first day of the week, when the doors were locked, where the disciples were, for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood in their midst and said to them, "Peace be with you." When he had said this, he showed them his hands and his side. The disciples rejoiced when they saw the Lord. Jesus said to them again, "Peace be with you. As the Father has sent me, so I send you." And when he had said this, he breathed on them and said to them, "Receive the Holy Spirit. Whose sins you forgive are forgiven them, and whose sins you retain are retained." Thomas, called Didymus, one of the Twelve, was not with them when Jesus came. So the other disciples said to him, "We have seen the Lord." But he said to them, "Unless I see the mark of the nails in his hands and put my finger into the nailmarks and put my hand into his side,

Jn 20:19-31

I will not believe." Now a week later his disciples were again inside and Thomas was with them. Jesus came, although the doors were locked, and stood in their midst and said, "Peace be with you." Then he said to Thomas, "Put your finger here and see my hands, and bring your hand and put it into my side, and do not be unbelieving, but believe." Thomas answered and said to him, "My Lord and my God!" Jesus said to him, "Have you come to believe because you have seen me? Blessed are those who have not seen and have believed." Now, Jesus did many other signs in the presence of his disciples that are not written in this book. But these are written that you may come to believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that through this belief you may have life in his name.

Divine Mercy

"Our offenses and sins weigh us down, and we are wasting away because of them. How then can we live?" Ezekiel 33:10

When I was in college, I read an article in a psychology journal in which the author said that research showed Catholics were generally more psychologically well balanced than the general population. Generally, Catholics, the article stated, were less likely to seek or to need psychotherapy or counselling. The author went on to say that because of our sacramental system, in particular, our consistent and normative confession of sins and faults Catholics had a tendency to face their demons and receive guidance on a regular basis. The fact that confession required reflection, self-examination, acknowledgement of fault, a firm intention to try to do better and change our behavior, led to dealing with our interior issues. Dealing with our interior issues, naturally, led to changing our behavior. The frequent use of the sacrament of reconciliation, with a deep self-reflection, a recognition of sins and admission of faults, an examination of our intentions and actions, with an intention to live a better life, meant that Catholics were more inclined to live reflective lives, and adjust interior and exterior behavior for the better. This sacramental system guided our human nature, gave us purpose, and formed our way of life leading to a more reflective, purpose directed, and constantly evaluated way of living. Catholics purged their souls, hearts, and minds and had a greater sense of being freed from the festering bonds of sin. Confession moved us from the mediocrity of settling to the purposeful life which was worth living. Consequently, a more well-adjusted psychologically healthy person resulted.

I'm pretty sure that as Catholics have fallen away from the frequent use of confession the number seeking counselling and psychotherapy has increased. Sad really, when God said through the Prophet Isaiah: Why pay for what is freely available, come to the water and drink (Is 55: 1-2).

All of this is no surprise to us as we believe that we are not simply a physical being but a spiritual-material being made up of body, soul and spirit. The body and the soul are created to live in harmony with each other and the soul "informs," or directs, the body, heart, and mind. In the Garden of Eden this harmony between body and soul was perfect but after the Fall that harmony was upset. What was once easy and natural, became difficult. Sin, the turning away from God and therefore turning away from God's love, grace, light, and our very purpose in life and destiny, weights us down and crushes us beneath its terrible weight. Sin never seems heavy when we are being tempted to commit it, but it certainly drags us down when it festers in our hearts and souls after we have given into it.

The human soul, the human heart, is made to be loved by God and to love God. Without this love, cut off from this love, it can never find its completion, it can only fester and waste away. It becomes resentful, bitter, moody, anxious, demoralized, and lost. This is not what God wants for us and so God, a merciful Father, reaches out from heaven and touched our lives so that we might live again as He intended. God does this through His Divine Son, who is God's Divine Mercy. One of the sacraments of God's mercy is Confession which restores what is lost and crushed by sin – God's life of love and grace. In confession God reaches out from heaven and restores us to life. He does this freely – that is mercy – the free compassion and gift from God.

In his book "Jesus of Nazareth: Holy Week" the late Pope Benedict XVI, God rest his gentle soul, puts confession within the context of Jesus washing the feet of His disciples. From the earliest times the Church understood that before we entered the Eucharist, we needed to confess our faults/sin. In the sacrament of baptism, we are washed clean and are made righteous (restored to God). But we fail to maintain this righteousness so that occasionally we need to be cleansed, but not completely, only our feet. We did not need to be baptized again but we did need to be made righteous, to be made whole. Pope Benedict state: "The point is this: guilt must not be allowed to fester in the silence of the soul, poisoning it from within. It needs to be confessed. Through confession we bring it to the light, we place it within Christ's purifying love. In confession the Lord washes our soiled feet and over again prepares us for the table of His fellowship" (p. 74). In fact, confession allows us to live again free of the poison and crushing weight of sin pressing us down.

Mercy is a gift of compassion, forgiveness, and reconciliation – it is not deserved but freely given and freely taken. In the Merchant of Venice Shakespeare called it "dew from heaven" when Portia said: "The quality of mercy is not strained; It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven upon the place beneath. It is twice blessed; It blesseth him that gives and him that takes: It is an attribute of God Himself (Merchant of Venice Act IV, Scene I).

Mercy is a gift from God to us. It is a sign of a great soul when you see a person being merciful to others. Mercy is a "dew from heaven" that we can share with others.

DIVINE MERCY SUNDAY

Sunday, April 16th | 3:00-4:00pm
St. Aloysius on the Ohio

Join us for a Holy Hour with Exposition and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament; Divine Mercy Chaplet, Scripture reading and homily, and rosary. The image of the Divine Mercy is a depiction of Jesus Christ that is based on the visions St. Maria Faustina Kowalska had of our Lord. St. Maria was a nun who lived in Poland. On February 22 1931, Jesus appeared to her as the "King of Divine Mercy" and was robed in a white garment. She wrote that Jesus' right hand was raised in blessing, the other was touching the garment near his Sacred Heart, and that from his heart, streamed two large rays, one red, the other white. The red rays stand for the blood of Jesus, or the Eucharist, and the white rays stand for water, or Baptism. St. Maria directed the painting of the first image. The whole image is a symbol of charity, forgiveness and love of God, who is the "Fountain of Divine Mercy." St. John Paul II canonized St. Maria on April 30, 2000, the first saint of the new millennium. The Chaplet of Divine Mercy has its source from the visions of St. Maria and is a very popular devotion. Many pray the chaplet at 3pm, the hour of mercy, and in the presence of the dying. St. Maria wrote in her diary that Jesus told her, "I promise that the soul that will venerate this image will not perish. I also promise victory over enemies already here on earth, especially at the hour of death. I myself will defend it as My own glory."
