BLESSED AMONG US:

SAINT JOSEPHINE BAKHITA

Bakhita was born in southern Sudan in 1869. When she was nine she was kidnapped and sold into slavery. Transferred from one master to another over a period of years, she was finally sold to an Italian family who brought her back to Italy to work as a servant and nursemaid to their baby. When this child was old enough to be sent to a boarding school run by the Daughters of Charity, Bakhita accompanied her. It was there that she first heard the Gospel and divine God's will that she be free. When Bakhita's mistress announced plans to return to Sudan, Bakhita expressed her intention to remain. When pleading did not change her mind, the Signora sued in court for the return of her "property." Only then did Bakhita discover what no one had bothered to inform her: that slavery was illegal in Italy. She had been free all along. By this time Bakhita heard a voice urging her to consecrate herself to God. She was baptized with the name Josephine Bakhita and accepted into the novitiate of the congregation that had shelter her. She lived to the age of 78, mostly engaged in simple tasks, cooking, sewing, serving as doorkeeper. No work was unimportant when done for "the Master" - her favorite word for God. Living through two world wars, she earned a growing reputation for holiness. She died on February 8, 1947, and was canonized in 2000.
