Prayer for Protection

O Mary, you always shine on our path as a sign of salvation and hope. We entrust ourselves to you, Health of the Sick, who at the cross took part in Jesus' pain, keeping your faith firm. You, Salvation of the American People, and all people, know what we need, and we are sure you will provide so that, as in Cana of Galilee, we may return to joy and to feasting after this time of trial. Help us, Mother of Divine Love, to conform to the will of the Father and to do as we are told by Jesus, who has taken upon himself our sufferings and carried our sorrows to lead us, through the cross, to the joy of the resurrection. Amen. Under your protection, we seek refuge, Holy Mother of God. Do not disdain the entreaties of we who are in trial, but deliver us from every danger, O glorious and blessed Virgin. Hail Mary(3x) Adopted from Pope Francis.

Act of Spiritual Communion

My Jesus, I believe that You are present in the Most Holy Sacrament. I love You above all things, and I desire to receive You into my soul. Since I cannot at this moment receive You sacramentally, come at least spiritually into my heart. I embrace You as if You were already there and unite myself wholly to You. Never permit me to be separated from you. Amen

LITURGICAL NOTES

Last week, we elaborated on the three characteristics that Pope St. Pius X describes as proper to true sacred music: sanctity, goodness of forms, and universality. Sacred music must firstly be “actually” sacred – that is, possessing musical characteristics that set it apart (literally the meaning of sacred/holy) for the worship of God, rendering it strange to the listener when NOT heard in the context of worship. Sacred music must also be true art – something that is grounded in musical balance and tastefulness in order to stir the heart to devotion while avoiding excess of emotion. Finally, sacred music must appeal universally, which it does naturally if it possesses the first two characteristics

Considering these principles, Pius X posits that Gregorian Chant is the model par excellence of sacred music. It developed in and alongside the Liturgy and has always been associated with (Roman) Catholic worship, confirming its sacrality. It has many forms that are suited to the different parts of the Mass and displays an overall command of melodic development and textual sensitivity. These qualities have led to its universal appreciation among musicians of various nations and have inspired great liturgical art music that has led to the development of Western culture in general.

Tra le sollecitudini, then, not only provides a synthesis of sacred music but also offers a model to be imitated, spurring a renewed interest in Gregorian Chant and encouraging musicians to draw from its theological and artistic riches to inspire new music worthy of the Holy Sacrifice. The effects of this document resonated within the Vatican II document on the liturgy (“Sacrosanctum Concilium”) with its declaration on the primacy of Gregorian Chant in Catholic worship, which continues to be felt even today. Historians will likely look back on Pius X’s work as the starting point of a new era in liturgical music, perhaps stalled by liturgical misunderstandings in the wake of the Council’s reforms, but enduring nevertheless because of its clarity of principles and the forcefulness of its claims.

HAITI: In Saltadare, Haiti, the impact has been mainly from severe inflation and difficulty acquiring essentials. The resilient Haitian people find alternatives, but support for the Haiti Tri-Parish Ministry is crucial. New members and board members are needed (bobfro@comcast.net), sponsorship funding (100 sponsors short) is essential at $14.60 a month (parishgiving.org), and support for the "Hope for Haiti" Auction and Dinner on November 16 in the Parish Hall (asanusi7@gmail.com) is vital.

FROM THE PASTOR

WHY THE SORROWS OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY

Part III

Very Rev. Joseph Mary Lukyamuzi, V.F.

“This child is destined to cause the falling and rising of many in Israel, and to be a sign that will be spoken against, so that the thoughts of many hearts will be revealed. And a sword will pierce your heart”

Luke 2:34–35

“This child is destined to cause the falling and rising of many in Israel, and to be a sign that will be spoken against, so that the thoughts of many hearts will be revealed. And a sword will pierce your heart” (Lk. 2:34–35).

As we continue to reflect upon “our Lady of Sorrows,” we are reminded that there can be no Easter Sunday without the weight of Good Friday, illustrating the crosses we bear in our lives. Our Lady of Sorrows exemplifies humility in the face of adversity, faith in the depths of despair, and the enduring flame of hope when peace seems distant.

Most importantly, she shows us the power of perseverance as she embraced the burdens that mirrored the suffering of Christ on the Cross. With all the sorrow she endured, she proclaims to us that to be a Christian means to be associated with Christ, who suffered and died for us. Mary was the first to feel this. Even as she brought her Son to the temple to participate in the celebration of the Presentation, she is “presented” with this prophecy from Simeon: “a sword your heart shall pierce.” Simon tells her that she, too, will suffer. She immediately must face what this will ultimately mean for her. “If Mary, who was sinless, would with joy accept a Sword from Divine sinlessness, then who of us,” say Sheen, “who are guilty of sin, shall ever complain if the same Jesus permits us a sorrow for the remission of our sins?”

We, too, must suffer. So often I have thoughts like: “Why me Lord?” “Why this cross?” “What have I done to deserve this?” Unlike Mary, who accepted her suffering, I often want to run from it. Pride sometimes prevents me from accepting my cross, seeking a comfortable way of life, yet when I look to Mary, I am consoled in understanding that she knows this, and she is my mother. The sword which pierced Mary’s heart did not come only from being a witness to the suffering of her Son—it also came from those who would pierce Him and deliver Him up. Her heart goes out to sinners. Her heart goes out to mine, to all of us who count ourselves as disciples of Jesus.

I believe there is something we need to accept, that sometimes our suffering could be the result of those mistakes we make and sometimes it comes to us from an external source. Either way, we must try to endure with a trusting obedience as Mary did when she and Joseph fled to Egypt with Jesus. Fulton Sheen describes why we can turn to Our Mother even when we sin and how she will always look at us with compassion: “He, on His side, will not destroy their freedom, and they, on their side, will not choose Him. But as Mary in this second dolor was not angry with the wicked but unhappy for their sakes, so now in Heaven her compassion and love of sinners almost seem to rise with the measure of their sin.” This is how Mary ultimately captures my heart, and why I turn to her so readily in times of trouble. We must not see Mary’s sinlessness as an obstacle to our relating our sorrows to hers! By her sorrow she understands more what we go through as sinners! She sorrows over our sins because she knows that they make me sorrowful, too, especially when I acquire a contrite heart! She does not stand in judgement, but instead reaches out her hand to deliver us to her Son who she knows is full of mercy. And so we continue to pray: “Pray for us sinners, now and at the hour of our death.”
