LIVE THE LITURGY

Inspiration for the week

When Jesus was physically with his disciples, he guarded and protected them. One of his greatest desires was that they share his joy completely. God's love is the source of all things and their sustenance. As we conduct the normal routines of our lives it is easy to get caught up in the immediacies of this world and lose focus. We become very self and worldly dependent, forgetting that God wishes to guard and protect us. The joy the resurrected Christ can offer cannot be found in this world. It takes a bit of faith to realize that God's will is a constant in our lives and that God desires only the sustenance and goodness of both our bodies and our souls. We need to trust in God's constant and rejuvenating love. This radical resurrection trust allows us to experience the joy of God's presence in all of the good and the bad, positive and negative, life building and life destructive events that we encounter. God remains where love remains.

MAGALLANES

MAY 9	POPE FRANCIS: THE PANDEMIC AND COMMUNITY
MAY 16	THE POPE'S R _x FOR OUR PARISH

In Fratelli Tutti, his latest encyclical, Pope Francis tells us that we cannot go back to living the way we did before the pandemic. What does this mean for Christ the King parish? In a series of three Zoom sessions on Sunday, May 3, 10, and 17, parishioners and educators Bob O'Gorman and Paul Dokecki will help us examine what it means to be church after Covid-19. Find the Zoom information on our website.

The Pale Caste

Presented by Victor Judge

10:30am-11:30am on June 6, 13, 20, & 27

In her novel Passing, published in 1929, Harlem Renaissance writer Nella Larsen (1891-1964) explores the fluidity of racial identity that resonates today. According to scholar Emily Bernard, Passing is a "meditation on the inextricable relationship between whiteness and blackness and the impossibility of self-invention in a society in which nuance and ambiguity are considered fatal threats to the social order—a social order in which race is a function of law, history, and politics." The primary question that emerges from the pages of Larsen's novel is: Where does race reside—in blood, ancestry, or emotion, and why do any efforts to quantify race ultimately prove absurd? During the month of June, we shall examine how Larsen incarnates this question in Passing. The lecturer for the course will be Victor Judge who serves as the assistant dean for academic affairs at Vanderbilt University Divinity School. See <http://www.ctk.org/adult-formation> for the Zoom link.

WORD on FAITH

I can't say that I pray without ceasing, yet I do often try to pray meditatively. One of the most famous prayers that is to be said repetitively as a form of meditation is the Jesus Prayer - "Lord Jesus Christ, Son of God, have mercy on me." Often said in sync with one's breathe or heartbeat, the prayer is meant to descend from one's mind to one's heart, to become an embodied prayer.

I hope you won't think me too arrogant, but I have changed some of the words of this prayer. Believe me, I know that I am in need of mercy. It is simply that it seems to me the spiritual life is like the steps up to my back porch - there are two of them. The first step is receiving God's mercy; the second step is giving away what I have received. While I continue to be grateful for mercy, grace and love received, what I need help in doing is carrying that mercy, grace and love out into the world. And so I pray, teach me to love.

Our tradition is big on examining our lives, naming our faults and seeking forgiveness and mercy. May we never lose track of that step in the spiritual life. But I also want to take the second step - the paying it forward. I believe we are meant to make manifest mercy, grace and love. Mercy, grace and love flow from their source, God, to me - and then are meant to continue on their journey.

I am getting old. At this point of my life, I want my prayer life to be more about gratitude than guilt, more about giving than receiving. And so I pray, Lord Jesus Christ, Son of God, teach me to love.
