Supreme Court will consider Mississippi's 15-week abortion ban

BY CATHOLIC NEWS AGENCY MAY 17, 2021

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CNA) — The Supreme Court on Monday agreed to consider a case involving a state 15-week abortion ban.

The court will be taking up the case of Jackson Women's Health Organization v. Dobbs, involving Mississippi's ban on most abortions after 15 weeks of pregnancy. The high court agreed only to consider one question presented in the petition for certiorari, namely, "Whether all pre-viability prohibitions on elective abortions are unconstitutional?"

Mississippi's Gestational Age Act, the law in question, was signed into law in 2018 but is not currently in effect. Although it banned most abortions after 15 weeks, it included exceptions for when the mother's life or major bodily function is in danger, or in cases where the unborn child has a severe abnormality and is not expected to survive outside the womb at full term.

The law would be enforced by revocation of state medical licenses for doctors in violation, and a fine of up to $500 for falsification of medical records about the circumstances of an abortion.

Pro-life leaders praised the court's decision to take up the case.

"States should be allowed to craft laws that are in line with both public opinion on this issue as well as basic human compassion, instead of the extreme policy that Roe imposed," Jeanne Mancini, president of March for Life, stated. Roe v. Wade was the Supreme Court's 1973 decision that legalized abortion nationwide. The Roe ruling said that states could not ban abortions prior to the "viability" of the unborn child.

"Every human life is valuable, and Mississippi's law is a commonsense step toward protecting unborn children and their mothers from the harms of late-term abortion," Alliance Defending Freedom senior counsel Denise Harle stated on Monday.

"The law protects the life of a baby who can already move around and kick in her mom's womb—a child who has a heartbeat, can taste what her mom eats, and can experience pain," she stated. And the law also protects women, since late-term abortions grow increasingly dangerous to the mother's health."

The Center for Reproductive Rights sued on behalf of the abortion clinic Jackson Women's Health Organization. A district court judge ruled against the law in November 2018, and in December 2019, the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld that ruling.

fm. pg. 3 The state of Mississippi appealed to the Supreme Court in 2020, and the court on Monday agreed to hear the case.

The state's Catholic dioceses of Jackson and Biloxi have supported the law, in a written friend-of-the-court brief.

They stated that "the state's interest in protecting unborn children who have the capacity to feel pain is sufficiently compelling to support a limited prohibition on abortion."

While a challenge to federal regulations of the abortion pill regimen was the first abortion-related case for new Justice Amy Coney Barrett at the Supreme Court, the case against Mississippi's law is the most significant abortion-related case of her tenure.

Fifth Circuit court Judge Patrick Higginbotham authored the opinion for the Fifth Circuit in 2019, upholding the district court's decision.

"In an unbroken line dating to Roe v. Wade, the Supreme Court's abortion cases have established (and affirmed, and re-affirmed) a woman's right to choose an abortion before viability. States may regulate abortion procedures prior to viability so long as they do not impose an undue burden on the woman's right, but they may not ban abortions," he wrote.

"The law at issue is a ban. Thus, we affirm the district court's invalidation of the law, as well as its discovery rulings and its award of permanent injunctive relief," he added.

In the state's petition to the Supreme Court, Mississippi health officer Thomas Dobbs argued that the standard of "viability" – when an unborn child is medically determined to be able to survive outside the mother's womb – is arbitrary.

The court said in its 1973 Roe v. Wade ruling that states could not ban abortion pre-viability, and could only regulate it in the second trimester. In 1992, the court ruled in Planned Parenthood v. Casey that states could regulate abortions pre-viability, but could not pose an "undue burden" on women seeking abortion.

"Thanks to amazing progress in scientific research and medical technology, the concept of 'viability' is an ever-moving target as younger children have survived and thrived after preterm birth," stated ADF senior counsel and vice president of appellate advocacy John Bursch.

Bursch added that "'viability' has never been a legitimate way to determine a developing infant's dignity or to decide anybody's legal existence."

The state of Mississippi also argued that, according to medical experts, abortions pose greater risks to the health of the mother after 16 weeks of pregnancy, and the unborn child is capable of feeling pain after 15 weeks and possibly even before that time in the pregnancy.

The Jackson Women's Health Clinic is the only remaining abortion clinic in Mississippi.

The Senate pro-life caucus chair Steve Daines (R-Mont.) also approved of the court's taking up the case on Monday.

"There is no constitutional right to abortion, yet for nearly 50 years since Roe v. Wade was wrongly decided, more than 62 million children have been the tragic victims of abortion," Daines said. "It is long past time for the Supreme Court to right this wrong and I am encouraged to see the Court announce it will take up this case."

“Go, therefore ...”

I have noticed that people usually perceive themselves to be in the world, calling out to God. But these two words, “go, therefore,” turn that perception around. It is as though the disciples are within the embrace of the Trinity and are being sent into the world.

For forty days following his resurrection, Jesus has moved in and out of the apostles’ lives. He has appeared to them unexpectedly, enjoyed breakfast with them on the beach, and breathed into them his Spirit, giving them the power to forgive sins. Gradually he has weaned them from his daily physical presence to a new relationship with him. They will no longer see him or speak with him as they had during those blessed years before his crucifixion and death. Yet they know he is with them still, though in a different way. He is with them, and they are with him. He is in them and they are in him. They are becoming one with him who is the Way, the Truth, and the Life. Through him they also share in a relationship with the Father. They will soon be filled and anointed with his Spirit. And Jesus now exhorts them to go into the world.

What difference would it make in your life if you remembered that you are at home in the Trinity’s embrace, looking out onto the world? How would this, for instance, change your family life? Would you feel less entangled or confined or overwhelmed by what happens within relationships in your family? Would you have more options? Would it be possible to consider acting differently? Loving differently? Thinking differently?

Would you pray differently if you knew you were already in the Trinity’s embrace? Know that you are already at home, and you are already loved. You have already been given everything you need. You are already held with compassion. The striving, the frustration, the methods of prayers would melt away if you knew deeply whose you are ... already ... now.

We should leave the outside world aside and enter within ourselves. If you hear sounds let them drop away. If you have worries, let them melt. When thoughts grab your attention, bring your attention back to the depths of your spirit, where there is complete silence. Listen to the beating of your heart. In Christ we are hidden in the heart of the Trinity. We are held by the Father, filled with the Spirit, one with Jesus.

Deacon Kevin

Join us to Pray the Rosary

Saturday, June 12, 2021 is the feast of the Immaculate Heart of Mary. We will be meeting in the cemetery of St. Clement Church at noon, to pray the Rosary to Our Lady's Immaculate Heart for the "intentions of the Holy Souls in Purgatory." All are welcome. Please come and join us and help pray for our deceased family, friends, and neighbors, and answer Our Lady's Call.

Deacon Tom Thomas
St. Mary, Our Lady Queen of Families

Meditation:

Today bring to Me THE SOULS WHO ARE DETAINED IN PURGATORY and immerse them in the abyss of My mercy. Let the torrents of My Blood cool down their scorching flames. All these souls are greatly loved by ME. They are making retribution to MY justice. It is in your power to bring them relief. Draw all the indulgences from the treasury of My Church and offer them on their behalf. Oh, if you only knew the torrents they suffer, you would continually offer them the alms of the spirit and pay off their debt to My justice (Diary, St. Faustina 1226).

Since our parishes will form into one Family of Parishes in the near future, it would be appropriate to pray together for the Holy Souls in Purgatory.

Welcome to New Parishioners!

If you are not currently registered, please take a moment to fill this out and return it to an usher, the parish office, or you may drop it in the collection basket, thank you.

Words on the Word

May 30, 2021 – A Promising Path

Local folks of a certain age will recall when the Detroit riverfront paled in comparison to the waterfronts of other cities.

Chicago’s lakefront. No way.

Grand Rapids? Not even close.

And so on. But there were numerous headlines a few weeks ago noting that the last portion of Detroit’s celebrated east Riverwalk project has now begun. That section, for which ground was broken on the old Uniroyal site by the Belle Isle bridge, is the last piece left on the 3.5 mile greenway between there and the Renaissance Center.

It will replace, in the words of one of the officials who participated in the groundbreaking, “a desolate, underutilized part of the city” with a beautiful, navigable, friendly walkway/bicycle path.

All of which is great news for the generations of Detroiters to come.

It’s a promise, in many ways, of better things on the horizon as we stand at the precipice of positive progress.

And, in its own small way, it’s not unlike where Israel found itself, as a people, as they prepared to enter the promised land of Canaan, leaving behind a difficult past and looking ahead to the promise of tomorrow.

For our part, we just need to remember the source of goodness, and keep God at the forefront.

“This is why you must now know, and fix in your heart, that the Lord is God in the heavens above and on the earth below, and there is no other,” we hear in today’s first reading from the book of Deuteronomy. More to it, then, comes this:

“You must keep his statutes and commandments that I enjoin on you today, that you and your children may prosper, and that you may have long life on the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you forever.”
