GO DEEPER into Today's Gospel

“Spiraling out of control,” is a phrase that can easily describe the current display of human existence. In addition to the violence, unrest, uneasiness and turmoil that are common elements of our daily news, other essential pieces are misplaced or missing. Many lack an objective center around which to order and structure their lives or a clear set of definable goals or mores to act as guideposts and life directives. It appears that “feelings” have become a “new god” and traditional structures and ideals set aside. It is almost as if history only shows that we got this whole thing wrong and many are determined to finally set things right. The real truth, however, is that while wrongs and errors are certainly a part of our often-checkered past, it is hardly the case that all was wrong. It is not our task to rewrite the history of our lives, but to learn from mistakes that were made, and preserve the perennial wisdom at the root of our successes. Learning is an essential part of being human.

The question becomes, however, from whom do we learn? Some have such a hard time placing God in that position, but that is precisely where God needs to be. God is the Master Teacher from whom all of humanity learns and gets its cues. It is in and through this relationship with the Gardener of Life that we are fashioned and pruned into the people we are intended to be and can be. It is only in God that we are able to find our best selves. Sadly, many think that religion too, as well as history in general, has also gotten all this wrong. Yet, our resurrection faith tells us differently. We are reminded, today especially, that we are meant to remain in Christ as Christ remains in us. We are also reminded that Jesus, the Incarnate God, is the vine upon which we grow, the branches that flow from the source of God's life.

Giving up our will to God's can be a painful endeavor. It is not easy to set our own desires and wants aside and allow God to step in and direct and guide our growth. But this is the only way to prevent deadly weeds from overtaking us and bringing us to a place of self-destruction. God's commandments are the very guideposts and benchmarks we need, yet many seek to remove them from all public view because they appear to limit self-expression and suppress what is considered by many to be “human freedom.” They are the only way we can find freedom, however. And, until we learn this fundamental lesson, we will continue to spiral out of control, never really knowing who we are, what our potential can be or how life really can be lived. We will not know peace.

A Family of Saints

Zelie and Louis Martin

St. Therese of Lisieux is one of the most beloved saints of our time. Her life reminds us that we don't need to accomplish great feats in order to become a saint. We can become holy by saying yes to God in the tasks and events of everyday life.

Most of us are familiar with St. Therese and her "Little Way." But did you know that St. Therese comes from a family of saints?

In 2015, Pope Francis canonized St. Therese's parents, Louis and Zelie Martin. This canonization was unprecedented because no other married couple has been recognized as saints at the same time. Zelie helped her children to grow in holiness during her short time on earth. She was diagnosed with breast cancer and died at the age of forty-five. She embraced the physical pains of cancer, but suffered over the sorrow that her death would cause her family. However, she fully surrendered herself to God's will and kept her faith in His sovereignty.

Louis also suffered much loss in his life. He lost Zelie to breast cancer and later, each of his daughters entered the convent. Essentially, he had to let go of his family as they followed God's will for their lives. Despite the loss he endured, he kept his love for Christ and his faith in Him.

Louis and Zelie had five daughters, most of whom are saints or Servants of God: Marie, Pauline, Leonie, Celine, and Therese. When Zelie died, Marie and Pauline had to act as the mother figure for their younger sisters. Leonie was declared a Servant of God in 2015. She suffered a difficult temperament and was abused by a servant several times, unbeknownst to her mother. She had to leave several convents (because of poor health) before successfully remaining in the Visitation convent at Caen. Leonie is a great patron for those who have suffered abuse and trauma.

Celine waited to enter the convent because she was worried about her father's declining health. She believed that she was called to the religious life, but a part of her was unsure. As Louis suffered various mental and physical illnesses, Celine remained at his side and trusted in God's hand in everything. She entered Carmel after her father's passing. Celine is a phenomenal example of trusting that God is in control when you are not sure about your vocation or plan for your life. She is also a model for those who are caregivers for family and friends.

In one sense, St. Therese and her family seem so ordinary—but that is exactly what makes them so special. When we look at the lives of many saints, we're inspired by their heroic actions but tend to think, "That's awesome, but I could never do THAT. How could I ever become a saint?" St. Therese and her family prove that it is possible for anyone to become a saint simply by having faith and saying yes to God in the midst of day-to-day activities and struggles.

Branching out isn't always what it's cracked up to be

“That’s a really beautiful tree branch. Man, would you look at the bark on that thing? The others are real duds, but that low-hanging branch has really got it all together.”

I’ve never heard anyone say this. Maybe I just need to hang out with more arborists, but I can’t recall ever hearing someone admire the particular beauty of a single branch. When someone comments on a tree, it’s usually the whole tree – perhaps a visual element of it, like the color of the leaves or its height. But people don’t usually zero in on one branch.

Maybe that’s because usually, if one branch is looking a little weak, chances are every other branch is, too.

The Bible tells us that when we bear fruit as good everyday stewards, it is for the Father’s glory. We are the branch on His magnificent tree. What we have is from Him, and what we do likewise points back to Him. We also tend to reflect how well the other branches around us are incorporating the nutrients coming their way. That’s all fine and good in theory. In practice, it can be an arduous exercise in humility.

When I do something virtuous or charitable or kind, there is a part of me that wants to stand out for it. I think that’s true for all of us. We’ve given of ourselves in some way or overcome some human temptation to accomplish a little bit of good in this world, and even though we know God sees us, we’d really love for everyone else to see it, too.

It’s a struggle, for sure. But we need to remember that our fruit belongs to the whole tree.

– Tracy Earl Welliver
